Drive To Cut Foreign Aid Program May Bring Eisenhower Back To U.S.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—A powerfully-backed drive to slash President Truman's request for $7,900,000,000 of new foreign aid may bring new pressure for return of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to present his views to Congress.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) told this reporter he will vote to cut out "all economic aid, amounting to two and a half billion dollars" from the mutual security program for the year starting July 1.

Byrd said this country has provided 40 billions of foreign aid since World War II "and I believe straight military aid will produce enough economic benefits without

Prison Security Officer Says Communist Prisoners Shot Down By South Korean Soldiers After 'Rock Fight' Erupted

KOJE ISLAND, Korea, Sunday, March 16 (AP)— A violent rock fight between rival groups of North Korean prisoners in this Allied stockade erupted into a shooting in which 12 Communist prisoners were killed and 26 wounded Thursday.

Capt. Walter R. Leahy of Newton, Mass., prison security officer, reported the shooting was done by South Korean soldier guards after he himself had been downed by a stone in the face and despite his orders not to fire.

The outbreak was the second in less than a month on this rocky island prison off the coast of Southeast Korea.

Seventy - eight interned Korean civilians and an American soldier were killed in a riot in the stockade Feb. 18. Brig. Gen. Frank T. Dodd, Koje commander, said that disturbance was a deliberately-plotted Red riot in contrast to Thursday's "spontaneous" outbreak.

Leahy told correspondents the North Korean prisoners in compound 93 had renounced Communism about five days ago and had begun displaying Republic of Korea and United Nations flags. The prisoners in an adjacent compound, No. 92, evidently remained ardent Communists.

Thursday morning a work party of about 150 prisoners from 3 passed along a dirt road parallel-

Makes Formal Announcement Of Candidacy For City Board

William. S. Gannaway, 35, 1711 McGuire announced today that he would be a candidate for the Monroe city school board.

"I hereby make formal announcement of my candidacy to membership on the Monroe City School Board at the election for that office to be held in connection with the coming city election.

"In common with other parents of growing children, I am very vitally interested in our schools, since the early school training which our children receive constitutes probably the most important influence upon their future lives.

"I feel that every candidate for public office, high or low, should make known to the citizens whose votes he seek for the principles for which he stands. I recognize that in an office such as school board member no candidate should commit himself in detail to a prejudged course of action, but the people are entitled to know the basic principles by which any aspirant to this office will be guided in his consideration of any problems which may come before the board.

"First, I believe that the primary function of any school system is the proper education of our children, and that all policies adopted by your school board

Storms Lash S. Calif., Flood Streets, Homes

LOS ANGELES, March 15 (AP)— The full fury of a pouring, blasting, storm swept down from the north upon Southern California today, flooding homes and streets in some lowland areas and piling up new feet of snow in the mountains.

The flatlands were raked by gusts of up to 40 miles an hour which bowled over trees and caused isolated damage. At upper elevations 55 mile winds piled powder snow into huge drifts.

Thus far only one storm-caused death has been reported—that of a farmer pinned under his tractor when it overturned as he tried to ford a wash in the Newhall area.

In the High Sierras near Bishop snow plows worked toward two bus loads of Marines, stranded by five-foot drifts while returning from a high altitude training camp to their base at Camp Pendleton.

A huge snow slide roaring down from crags above swept over the mill building of the U. S. Vanadium Corp.'s tungsten mine in the Sierra Nevadas. The sheriff's office said no lives were reported lost.

The mill, largest of its type in the world, lies in the bottom of narrow, creek canyon, about 30 miles northwest of Bishop, Calif. The mine it serves is the world's largest tungsten mine.

Sheriff's deputies said the slide — several hundred feet across — also swept over several homes near the mill. Apparently no one in the homes was killed, deputies said.

The slide struck without warning this morning in the midst of

The local chapter of the American Red Cross has collected slightly over one half of the $40,000 goal set for this year's drive, Harold Brady, campaign chairman, said yesterday. He set the total donations as recorded late yesterday at $21,685.

Friday night a meeting of all drive chairmen was held at which time Brady said encouraging reports were given by those present. He urged that all workers and the general public continue to cooperate with the drive as they have done since its commencement. The chairman expressed hope that the goal will be reached within the next ten days, and, if possible, the parish will exceed that goal.

"When we think of the fine work being done over the world by the Red Cross, it is no wonder that so many people are cooperating with the efforts of those aiding in the drive," he said.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)— Secretary of Defense Lovett warned the Communists tonight they are in for heavy losses if they start up large scale attacks again in Korea.

Lovett, discussing Korean truce negotiations, also said that "We seek an end to hostilities, but never at the price of appeasement."

His remarks were contained in a semi-annual report to the President and Congress on the Defense Department's operations during the last half of 1951. He commented that United Nations negotiators in the truce talks "have earned the gratitude of the free world for their skill and patience under exasperating conditions."

"During the past six months," he wrote, "United Nations forces established a very strong defensive position across the central portion of Korea. Any resumption of the offensive by the enemy will involve him in critical losses of men and materiel.

Hillbilly Wedding In June Is Planned In West Monroe

In West Monroe, where they do things in a big way, there's going to be one of the biggest June weddings ever held in the Ouachita Valley. The bride and groom will be the toast of the city and nothing will be spared to send them into a happy married life with fond memories of a "Hillbilly Wedding in June."

The newlyweds will receive gifts worth thousands of dollars, including an expense-free honeymoon trip that will carry them to some scenic honeymoon spot.

Nobody knows yet who the lucky couple will be. It could be any couple in the Ouachita Valley who has been bitten by the love bug. The door is wide open for candidates.

The Hillbilly Wedding in June," which will be sponsored by the Ouachita Valley Jamboree with the cooperation of West Monroe merchants, was announced yesterday by Jamboree officials.

The ceremony will be performed at the Ouachita Valley Fair Building before an audience of several thousand people expected to attend. The date has not been announced.

However, plans for the wedding are already being made. The bride will be spirited out of downtown West Monroe in a buggy at 6:30 p. m. and taken to the scene of the ceremony. The groom and the minister will arrive astride white horses, but in western attire.

A $500 altar arrangement, with a western theme, will be arranged by Scott's Flower Shop.

On the day of the wedding, West Monroe will "go western." Big hats, blue jeans and boots will be in style. Hillbilly bands will dot the city. All these, and many other salutes, will be in honor of the bride and groom.

Selection of the couple will be put on a balloting basis. Second and Third place winners will also be married at the same time, making the event a triple wedding.

Hugh Taylor, chairman of the "Hillbilly Wedding in June" committee, said any couple interested in trying for the contest would receive detailed information by writing a letter to Box 2287, West Monroe.

Taylor said the letter should give length of courtship, church affiliation, full name of both, employment status of both, etc.

The major issues still were stuck solidly. Both sides agreed Saturday to hand the one on voluntary or forced repatriation of war prisoners back to staff officers who earlier this year failed in 22 sessions to resolve it.

Both matters were up for discussion in talks opening at 11 a. m. today (9 p. m., EST, Saturday) at Panmunjom.

The prisoner issue was inflamed by a new outbreak Thursday of Communist prisoners at the Allies' Koje Island stockade.

A U. N. Command spokesman said the Communist negotiators Saturday that 11 Reds were killed and 26 were injured during the rioting. The Communists termed it a "sanguinary incident" and indicated they would make a strong protest later.

In its package deal, the Allied team offered to accept a Communist plan for five instead of six ports of entry—where neutral inspectors could observe truce conditions. Other items in the "package" included an offer to yield on Allied demands for periodic reports on locations of major military units and a ban on concentrations of forces posing a threat to the other side.

In return, the Allies insisted that the Reds drop demands for inspection of secret weapons during a truce and deletion of the word "Korea" from a truce clause ban-

Stock On Highways In Ward 1 Endangers Plant Workers

The Ouachita parish sheriff's department issued an urgent appeal to livestock owners in Ward 1 stating that the large number of animals on the public highways was contributing a large hazard to all motorists in this area.

In Ward 1 there are five large plants at which thousands of workers commute each day. The large plants are the Commercial Solvents, Interstate Gas, Southern Carbon, Texas Gas, and Thermatomic.

At the present time there are thousands of new workers coming into the area being employed by construction companies for enlargements of the present plants, stated deputies. Officer Bill Booth stated that in the area of Fairbanks at certain times during the day the roads were made impassable by animals. "This is a great hazard and may claim many lives if action isn't taken to prohibit it," said Booth.

The sheriff's department asserted that since the peril was increasing each day the ordinance prohibiting livestock on public highways would be strictly enforced. The department gave a warning period of 30 days and stated that after this time all those found violating the law would be prosecuted according to law.

"Section 1. Be it ordained by the Police Jury of the Parish of Ouachita, State of Louisiana, in legal session convened, that on and after the effective date of this ordinance, it shall be unlawful for the owner of any horses and mules to allow said horses and mules to run, roam or be at large on any of the public highways or on any property in the parish of Ouachita, state of Louisiana, other than the property of the owner of said horses and mules.

"Section 2. Be it further ordained that the violation of this ordinance be and it is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than 10 days, or both at the discretion of the court.

"Section 3. Be it further ordained that authority to seize and impound any stock on highways running at large in [illegible]

GANNAWAY IN SCHOOL RACE

Makes Formal Announcement Of Candidacy For City Board

William S. Gannaway, 35, 1711 McGuire announced today that he would be a candidate for the Monroe city school board.

"I hereby make formal announcement of my candidacy to membership on the Monroe City School Board at the election for that office to be held in connection with the coming city election.

"In common with other parents of growing children, I am very vitally interested in our schools, since the early school training which our children receive constitutes probably the most important influence upon their future lives.

"I feel that every candidate for public office, high or low, should make known to the citizens whose votes he seek for the principles for which he stands. I recognize that in an office such as school board member no candidate should commit himself in detail to a prejudged course of action, but the people are entitled to know the basic principles by which any aspirant to this office will be guided in his consideration of any problems which may come before the board.

"First, I believe that the primary function of any school system is the proper education of our children, and that all policies adopted by your school board

In West Monroe, where they do things in a big way, there's going to be one of the biggest June weddings ever held in the Ouachita Valley. The bride and groom will be the toast of the city and nothing will be spared to send them into a happy married life with fond memories of a "Hillbilly Wedding in June."

The newlyweds will receive gifts worth thousands of dollars, including an expense-free honeymoon trip that will carry them to some scenic honeymoon spot.

Nobody knows yet who the lucky couple will be. It could be any couple in the Ouachita Valley who has been bitten by the love bug. The door is wide open for candidates.

The Hillbilly Wedding in June," which will be sponsored by the Ouachita Valley Jamboree with the cooperation of West Monroe merchants, was announced yesterday by Jamboree officials.

The ceremony will be performed at the Ouachita Valley Fair Building before an audience of several thousand people expected to attend. The date has not been announced.

However, plans for the wedding are already being made. The bride will be spirited out of downtown West Monroe in a buggy at 6:30 p. m. and taken to the scene of the ceremony. The groom and the minister will arrive astride white horses, but in western attire.

A $500 altar arrangement, with a western theme, will be arranged by Scott's Flower Shop.

On the day of the wedding, West Monroe will "go western." Big hats, blue jeans and boots will be in style. Hillbilly bands will dot the city. All these, and many other salutes, will be in honor of the bride and groom.

Selection of the couple will be put on a balloting basis. Second and Third place winners will also be married at the same time, making the event a triple wedding.

Hugh Taylor, chairman of the "Hillbilly Wedding in June" committee, said any couple interested in trying for the contest would receive detailed information by writing a letter to Box 3387, West Monroe.

Taylor said the letter should give length of courtship, church affiliation, full name of both, employment status of both, etc.

The major issues still were stuck solidly. Both sides agreed Saturday to hand the one on voluntary or forced repatriation of war prisoners back to staff officers who earlier this year failed in 22 sessions to resolve it.

Both matters were up for discussion in talks opening at 11 a. m. today (9 p. m., EST, Saturday) at Panmunjom.

The prisoner issue was inflamed by a new outbreak Thursday of Communist prisoners at the Allies' Koje Island-stockade.

A U. N. Command spokesman told the Communist negotiators Saturday that 12 Reds were killed and 26 were injured during the rioting. The Communists termed it a "sanguinary incident" and indicated they would make a strong protest later.

In its package deal, the Allied team offered to accept a Communist plan for five instead of six ports of entry—where neutral inspectors could observe truce conditions. Other items in the "package" included an offer to yield on Allied demands for periodic reports on locations of major military units and a ban on concentrations of forces posing a threat to the other side.

In return, the Allies insisted that the Reds drop demands for inspection of secret weapons during a truce and deletion of the word "Korea" from a truce clause ban-

Stock On Highways In Ward 1 Endangers Plant Workers

The Ouachita parish sheriff's department issued an urgent appeal to livestock owners in Ward 1 stating that the large number of animals on the public highways was contributing a large hazard to all motorists in this area.

In Ward 1 there are five large plants at which thousands of workers commute each day. The large plants are the Commercial Solvents, Interstate Gas, Southern Carbon, Texas Gas, and Thermatomic.

At the present time there are thousands of new workers coming into the area being employed by construction companies for enlargements of the present plants, stated deputies. Officer Bill Booth stated that in the area of Fairbanks at certain times during the day the roads were made impassable by animals. "This is a great hazard and may claim many lives if action isn't taken to prohibit it," said Booth.

The sheriff's department asserted that since the peril was increasing each day the ordinance prohibiting livestock on public highways would be strictly enforced. The department gave a warning period of 30 days and stated that after this time all those found violating the law would be prosecuted according to law.

"Section 1. Be it ordained by the Police Jury of the Parish of Ouachita, State of Louisiana, in legal session convened, that on and after the effective date of this ordinance, it shall be unlawful for the owner of any horses and mules to allow said horses and mules to run, roam or be at large on any of the public highways or on any property in the parish of Ouachita, state of Louisiana, other than the property of the owner of said horses and miles.

"Section 2. Be it further ordained that the violation of this ordinance be and it is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both, at the discretion of the court.

"Section 3. Be it further ordained that authority to seize and impound any stock so running or roaming at large is hereby granted

Scenic Spots In Parish Are Marred By Garbage Dumping

Dr. Summer Says Conditions Detrimental To Citizens' Health

Citizens of Ouachita parish are faced with an alternative—do you want your parish a beautiful scenic spot or one that is marred with garbage?

The situation in the past year has worsened tremendously leaving hardly any area outside of the city in which rubbish and garbage are not dumped.

Both state and parish roads bear the mark of persons who have carelessly thrown their garbage at the first place they see. Many even disregard "No Dumping" signs and place their garbage there in direct disobedience of the signs asking them not to.

At the regular meeting of the Ouachita parish police jury last week Toby Bancroft and W. B. Corry appeared before the body and pointed out that the increased violation of the dumping ordinance was a hazard to Ouachita parish. Dr. Carroll Summer, health officer, stated that the existing condition was detrimental to the health of all citizens.

The garbage problem is a strategic one in that the health of the community is at stake. Some garbage dumped on the sides of the roads is near homes where there are many young children. The germs from this waste will carry a long way and are a hazard to both youths and adults.

Where does the waste disposal come from? In the heaps of garbage piled on the sides of the roads the contents denote that they have been brought from restaurants, private homes, service stations, packing houses and many other places.

The cities of Monroe and West Monroe both maintain dumping grounds for garbage. Monroe has two dumping grounds as does the city of West Monroe. These places are open to everyone to dump their garbage and are maintained so as not to be an eye sore to the community or a threat to the health of all concerned.

The police jury voted at its regular meeting for a strict enforcement of the parish ordinance prohibiting the dumping of waste materials on public highways immediately. Ordinance No. 6994 reads as follows:

"Section 1. Be it ordained by the police jury of the parish of Ouachita, state of Louisiana, in legal session convened, that it shall be unlawful for any person, persons, firm or corporation, to place, deposit or dump trash, rubbish, or waste material of whatsoever kind or nature, in any ditch drain, water outlet or inlet, constructed or maintained by the parish of Ouachita, and also any bayou, lake, river or other body of water whatsoever.

"Section 2. Be it further ordained, that any person, persons, firm or corporation, or if by a corporation, the officers thereof, and the agents, servants or employees of any person, persons or association of persons, firms or corporation, who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 or imprisoned for not more than ten days, or both, at the discretion of the court."

The ordinance was adopted on November 12, 1948.

The citizens of Ouachita parish are proud of the beautiful parish in which they live and would like for those who in the past have not taken pride in it, by dumping garbage on the side of the roads, to do so in the future.

MALICIOUS GARBAGE DISPOSAL IS RUINING SCENIC VIEW OF OUACHITA PARISH

The March 12 meeting of the Claiborne P.-T. A. featured an interesting panel discussion on establishing good working relationships between peoples of a community. The program topic, "Do You Know Your Neighbor?" was introduced by Mrs. Orie Hatten, program chairman who said, "The National Congress is pledged not merely to discover what conditions already exist wherever children learn and live and grow, but to encourage, advance, and contribute to whatever improvements will promote the well - being of these children."

Now this getting acquainted is only the first step in community well-being, and like most steps it is a very important one if we are to take our place in the family of nations. If parents and teachers are to move forward together to assure the citizen child his destiny — —a free world, the local community must explore all avenues of information pertaining to peaceful living, beginning at home, school, church and community."

Miss Bess Sharp, executive secretary of the Y. W. C.. A. told of the activities of the Y. W. C. A. in reaching the whole community. She said in part, "Building an ideal community is a slow continuous process. Community betterment is a task large enough and important enough to challenge the best efforts of all citizens. Natural resources as well as human resources should be used effectively. The P.-T. A. has developed a high degree of social consciousness. The test of a democratic organization is the democratic conduct of its members."

Mrs. Bernie Emery, the president reported that the Publicity Scrap book of the Claiborne P.-T. A. was one of the six such books that won superior rating at the 5th district P.- T. A. Conference at Sterlington March 5.

The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: president, Mrs. Grady Haynes; vice - president, Mrs. Chas. Feazel, secretary, Mrs. Chas. Martin; treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Purvis.

The finance committee reported that the next money - raising project would be a talent show.

Soviets Charged With Holding Slav Prisoners

BELGRADE, March 15 (AP)—Premier Marshal Tito charged today that Soviet Russia now holds approximately 15 millions of its citizens in prison.

He gave this figure in talking to a Yugoslav Student Congress in Belgrade. He appealed to its representatives to distinguish between the Russian government and the Soviet people. His remarks were made public by the official Belgrade radio tonight.

Tito spoke against a background of a cold war, now four years old, between his country and the Russian - led Cominform, which stemmed from his refusal to accept the decrees and domination of the Kremlin.

Denouncing the "dirty and slanderous" anti-Yugoslav propaganda from Moscow, Yugoslavia's chief said "It is wrong to identify the masses with their government.

"The Russian people would never tolerate 15 million people in prison if they could express their opinion."

Who Will Control World?

Complete military control of the entire world for all time can be seized by one nation within the next 10 years by the simple expedient of building a space station 1,075 miles from the earth. Cost of building such a station will be only $400,000,000, or just twice the amount spent in creating the atomic bomb, or less than one-fourth of the American military appropriation.

These statements are set up as positive facts in a startling group of articles by leading American scientists in a late issue of Collier's Magazine.

This magazine and these scientists are calling upon the United States to start immediately on the construction of a space station. Otherwise, they say, Russia might build one first and would thereafter be able to prevent any other nation from building one any time in the future.

The proposed space station would put the entire world under a spyglass and it would be possible to watch the most minute military preparations of the whole world. One-eighth of the world would be under observation at all times and the whole world would be visible within every two-hour space, as the motion of the world and the space station combined would make the world appear to turn completely around every two hours.

Such a space station would put an end to all "iron curtains" and all military action. Instruments on the space station would make it possible to pinpoint vision so closely that the watchers would be able to see any point as accurately as if they were only 5,000 feet away.

At the proposed point there is no atmosphere and no gravity. Material for construction of the space station could merely be pushed out of the space ships and moved into place as desired, as it would not fall and would not move unless propelled.

If the space station can be built as easily and as cheaply as the scientists say it can, this appears to be a perfect solution of the problem of how to prevent Russian aggression—provided the United States does it before Russia does.

Anyone interested in the fact that man has conquered space and is ready not only to establish stations in the sky but to make trips to other planets would do well to read the dramatic editorials, stories and descriptions on this subject in Collier's.

Not Stay-At-Homes

An all-time high of $733,000.000 was spent by Americans last year on foreign travel. The increase over the previous year was $6,000,000 which, while small, is remarkable because it followed the Holy Year celebrations at Rome in 1950, which were an incentive to many thousands to make European trips that year, rather than another.

These are the carefully prepared figures of the Office of Business Economics of the Department of Commerce. Broken down they show that Americans spent $282,000,000 on transportation—more than half of it on American ships and airlines— leaving them with amply supplied wallets, from which they disbursed $451,000,000 in foreign countries.

This ought to give pause to Europeans still inclined to regard Americans as provincial at a time when their governments — notably British, French and Italian — are bidding for tourist trade to bolster dollar credits. The American people are the world's most widely traveled, whether by auto, ship or plane.

Going places, besides being of cultural advantage, is habit-forming, and to a greater degree than other peoples Americans are joyful addicts.

Travel to Europe in 1951 fell of 10 per cent, which the OBE inclines to ascribe to the Korean War, but the unrest in the Middle East doubtless kept some from visiting Mediterranean lands. Western Hemisphere countries in consequence gained more than 10 per cent in revenue from American travel, with growing popularity of Caribbean trips and of picturesque Mexico as a place to visit.

Not Forgotten

Ranking American diplomats from Eastern Europe are conferring at Paris about the problems of that area, not the least among which is the problem of freeing American correspondent William N. Oatis from imprisonment in Communist Czechoslovakia. American diplomats stationed at Prague are reported to have some hope that Mr. Oatis will be released.

Great discretion is being exercised in official discussion of this outrageous case. The object is to get Mr. Oatis out. If this involves recognizing the principle of ransom—as in the Vogeler case—either in the form of cash or other concessions, the price will no doubt be paid. To such depths has American diplomacy fallen.

Involved are the welfare, the freedom and perhaps the survival of an American citizen, a press correspondent jailed on the false accusation of espionage. Mr. Oatis' real offense was that he represented a free press.

Murder And Insanity

Examples of deterioration of the human mind are on the increase. In previous generations a single murder case was sufficient to excite the nation. Now murders of the most senseless and cruel character are routine in the daily news.

There is the case of the New York mother who strangled her three small children one after another. Society is helpless against such twists of human character. Best minds in the nation are being devoted to a study of disordered mentalities, with little success except to reveal that insanity is on the increase, and there doesn't seem to be much that can be done about it.

Too many slayers are escaping the death penalty on the plea of insanity, temporary and otherwise. Granted they are crazy, it is also a fact they are murderers. One school of thought holds that no person in his right mind would kill another. If this theory prevails the death penalty will be abolished entirely.

'Tails I Win, Heads You Lose'

Everyone, right down to those in the low income brackets, feels the tremendous burden of present-day taxation. Everyone kicks about it. But there is one phase of the tax problem which is given much less consideration than it deserves—and that is what it is doing to the whole financial structure of the nation.

Economic Intelligence, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, dealt with this when it said, "Steeply progressive taxation has virtually dried up the sources of venture capital, so essential for launching new enterprises. It has become more and more difficult, therefore, for the exceptional man, the ambitious employee, the man with a new idea, to get himself up in his own business. And such activities have been the traditional well springs of our American way of life."

BASCOM TIMMONS
In Washington

Every candidate in the 1952 national election will stress the fight against Communism, his party's efforts to preserve world peace and the necessity of keeping domestic expenditures at the lowest possible level. That sounds like a high plane for a political campaign, until one checks on what the American public is already being fed about the various and several candidates. Then the coming campaign assumes possibilities of being one of the dirtiest.

Already smears are being circulated, at both high and low levels, which indicate that mud slinging will reach a notable peak even before the conventions. That, of course, is nothing new in a year when competition is keen in both parties.

Governor Gene Talmadge of Georgia has called Senator Estes Kefauver "the darling of the Communists" which must have been rather a shock to the Senator, who probably would not know a Commie if he met him in the middle of Pennsylvania Avenue. Governor Earl Warren of California has been called 'A New Deal Wolf in Republican sheep clothing", an allusion to the occasions on which Warren (and other candidates as well) have run on both tickets, which is permissible in that state and frequently done.

A pamphlet widely circulated calls General Dwight D. Eisenhower "a New Deal stooge," referring to the several occasions on which President Truman has spoken of the general in complimentary terms and to the uncertainty, until recently, whether "Ike" regarded himself as a Republican or a Democrat.

A Portland, Md. lawyer has gone into business as a political pamphleteer supporting Senator Robert A. Taft and saying every insulting thing he can think of about the other Republican possibilities. But Taft has not been immune himself. Some of the things said about him in cheap paper booklets make him out an ogre, a foe of every laboring man and a candidate whose only loyalty is to big business and the very rich. Some of these throw - aways are apparent reprints of those circulated by the thousands by Ohio labor groups against Taft in his 1950 campaign for the senatorship.

On a higher level, innuendoes about General Eisenhower's personal conduct in England and France during World War II are being spread, with promises that the whole story will presently be exposed. So far, however, there have been only hints of the nature of the expose, together with an attempt to substantiate reports that he has high blood pressure, could not possibly last under the stress of the presidency.

President Truman and Vice President Barkley are probably better off than the Republican candidates because just about everything which can be said has been tossed at them. The President this year is up against a stiffer barrage than in 1948, authorities on campaign polemics are convinced, because enough criticism has accumulated to give greater weight to previous stories of Prendergastism, oil stock deals and his alleged failure to pay off bankrupt indebtness.

Other smears have been directed at Adlai E. Stevenson, governor of Illinois and President Truman's reputed choice to succeed himself, because of his divorce after he became governor and at Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, a candidate for president "if Truman doesn't run" for his oil wealth.

The President's observation that he did not envy General Eisenhower if he returned to face the shower of mud, brickbats and slime which would be hurled at him as a candidate for the presidency has sound basis in fact. But it does not apply to Eisenhower.

Other Presidents Have Said "No"

—Feuding between presidents and Congress over refusal of the former to turn over to congressional committees records and documents did not originate with Harry S. Truman. In fact it began with the very first of the line, George Washington, who had a hot tilt with the legislators over his refusal to give them information about the Jay Treaty.

That was the treaty which cleaned up a number of important controversial issues between the United States and Great Britain dating back to the Revolution. It was finally ratified in 1796 by barely the two thirds vote of the Senate required by the Constitution.

Jefferson would not tell Congress all it wanted to know about Aaron Burr's conspiracy, until Burr was tried for treason. Andrew Jackson would not accede to demands for a copy of his instructions to government heads regarding removal of bank deposits. Lincoln would not give Congress copies of dispatches from Major Anderson to the War Department concerning the defense of Fort Sumter and Theodore Roosevelt refused to give the Attorney General's reasons for failing to prosecute the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Franklin D. Roosevelt set a record by refusing Congressional demand for official papers six times.

BE A GOOD NEIGHBOR

Good neighbors are priceless. They have been known to increase the value of real estate, to give their neighborhood a reputation for harmony, good will and happy living. They have been known to make an environment of great inspiration to healthy growth, to good living, for the children of the community. They are indeed priceless.

Are you a good neighbor? Like everything else worth while, this requires work, time, and the will to give oneself in service. A mother of a household will be likely to say, "How can I, with a group of children, a husband, a house and relatives, find time and energy to do anything outside my home? I have all I can do right there. I mind my own business and let the neighbors mind theirs if they will."

That is not being a good neighbor. Each of us has all the time there is, twenty -four hours a day, and it is not the length of time we have that matters, but what we do with it. It does not take much time or energy to smile as one passes a neighbor, to say a cheerful wor, to speak an appreciative word about the baby, the geraniums in the window, or indicate sympathy with a neighbor's difficulty. Yet that little gesture of word and tone and smile warms the heart of the one who receives it.

Trouble strikes in every family, own nolessthan others. Sure-ly the our own no less than others. Surely there is time for a telephone call, a knock at the door, a few words of understanding, or no words at all; a glass of jelly handed over the doorsill or a pan of hot biscuits at tea time lifts more than a hundred times its weight from a heavy heart. Remember, the time must come when the shadow falls on your own doorstep, and a friendly voice and a neighborly hand will mean so much to you.

Children are children the wide world over. They trespass, they do damage, they make a noise, they fight, break windows, behave like children wherever they are, and a good neighbor understands that and allows for it. An apology, an effort to make good any damage the children have created, an honest effort to train the children to respect the neighbors' feelings, rights and possessions will go a long way toward creating and maintaining a neighborly attitude throughout the community.

To have a good neighbor it is necessary to be one. Of course it takes working at, and time and thought, but the effort will be returned with heavy interest in turned with heavy interest in friendliness, community feeling and community reputation. Beyond that is the feeling of well being within oneself that neighborliness creates. That is very much worth while.

Your child will be obedient by the time he is three or four if given the proper training from the beginning. Dr. Patri explains how to guide children in obedience in his booklet No. 201. To obtain a copy send 2 cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

What Others Say
EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

FOREIGN AID

On the amount of President Truman's foreign aid request, editors appear to divide into three roughly equal groups. One group feels the amount is probably about right. Another would cut it substantially, if not drastically. The third group sees only detailed examination by congressional committees as providing any satisfactory answer.—A considerable minority of editors would limit aid to spur greater defense efforts by our Allies in Europe. But majority opinion now opposes such a move as a direct act of pressure.

Atlanta (Ga.) Journal (Dem.): "In the Mutual Security bill there doubtless are places where waste can be eliminated. But there also are places where the suggested appropriations are entirely too small to do the job. The president is probably right that the over-all total is none too great. . . . If we are going to support our Allies over seas—as we must—it would be folly to support them too little and too late. The alternative to erecting strong defenses wherever we can, as President Truman pointed out, is national suicide."

Toledo (Ohio) Blade (Ind.): "Whether the president's figure of $7.9 billion . . . is too much, too little, or just right, no one can honestly say at this point. It's up to committees of congress now to determine such matters. . . . The specific sums now asked—over $5 billion for direct military aid to our Allies, $1.7 billion for bolstering their arms program with raw materials and machinery, $900 million for Point Four assistance—should be carefully examined. Perhaps it will be necessary to trim them, along with a lot of other budget items, so as to keep our economy, the best weapon in the western arsenal, sound."

Providence (R. I.) Journal (Ind.): "Sober, authoritative observers have insisted that some trimming of the over-all security budget could safely be attempted, and we are not ready to say they are wrong. . . . We are ready to say, however, that the foreign aid budget should be the last to go under the knife if such paring is attempted. Non-defense spending offers a logical starting point, heavy with 'fat.' The military service approoriations might be next in line. But foreign aid promises such rich returns in security and defense for such modest outlay that we can least of all afford ill-considered cuts in this area."

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.): "Foreign aid must be cut sharply, as must all other items in the budget. Our Allies should also be required to fulfill their promises to us before we give them another nickel. The American people have been patiently bearing the heaviest tax burden in the world for five years. . . . We have spent $50,000,000,000 aiding Europe since World War II. . . . If we send $4,000,000,000 to Europe instead of the $7,000,000,000 the president demands . . . that amount of money would still far outbalance the contributions being made by European nations in their own defense."

Charlotte (N. C.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Certainly the U. S. taxpayer has given to Europe with magnanimity. . . . Nevertheless . . . despite the fact that our NATO Allies' total production is about a third of ours, their contribution to defense has been con-

Memos of a Girl Friday

Dear Mr. W: Mr. Truman's book, "Mr. President," is assured of at least 55 million readers (all over the world) when Reader's Digest runs the condensation a forthnight after publication. It will be reprinted in 27 Digest editions via 15 languages. The letter to "a well - known columnist" in it went to Arthur Krock of the N. Y. Times. . . .I hear Mr. Truman mails his own torrid missives these days, instead of depending on anv of the White House staff. . ."U. S. A. Confidential" by Lait & Mortimer appears to be asusred of a heavy sale, too. So many of its targets landing on their local front pages with threats of reprisal and lawsuits, etc. . .The Houston (Texas) papers gave oilman Glenn McCarthy's threat (to the authors) war banner headlines. This is what is called money in the bank. . . Judge Medina, who sentenced the 11 top Reds, is now guarded by two detectives after threats.

Judy Garland's divorce is due on the 22nd. She is nursing fiance S. Luft at Palm Beach, Fla. . . Joan Bennett's daughter is in her first serious romance. He is Dick Van Patten, the teevy thespian. . . Frank Paris, the puppeteer, has retained Wm. Fitelson, the Broadway barrister, to handle his $2 million suit against NBC and Howdy-Doody. Says he helped originate it. . . Eisenhower's victory in New Hamoshire reminds me that the trend was indicated in the post-card poll you ran in 1948. When he led with over 110,000 cards the first 3 days!

In spite of the worst box office business in years, "Pal Joey" turned away over 400 at the Wed. matinee. . .George Frazier in the April Esquire reports that producer Leland Hayward's income is $40,000 weekly, $25,000 of that from his plays and the rest from substantial holdings in various corporations. . .Over at the Knickerbocker Hospital a room in the alcoholic ward is called "Duffy's Tavern."

The Johnston censor office made United Artists raise the necklines on all of Linda Darnell's sarong photos for lobby and newspaper display . . . Elaine Stricth, who is so good in "Joey" told the Armando's crowd that attorney Herbert Moss is strictly a pal. But their chums give that the old tee-hee . . . I hear the real reason A. J. Balaban gave up the reins of the Roxy is that he wouldn't use a whip. A very kindly man. . . . The Warner Theater (Strand) resumes stage shows on April 7th, specializing in ballets. Straight movie fare being a costly experiment . . . Melody Thompson must have a press agent with all those romance fillers. Charles Addams, the cartoonist, however, has the situation in hand.

Latest to-do over at the Met is between Rudolph Bing and prima donna Ljuba Welitsch. Backstagers hear she probably won't return next season . . . Barbara Alexander Brady, grandghtr of the late Wm. A. Brady, was married this week at Fort Smith, Arkansas. He is Col. D. Russell Beatright . .. Agnes DeMille is rounding up a troupe of girls. For a full evening's excerpts from her various Broadway hits. The troupe will tour Europe and return here for some dates . . . Helen Hayes is happier these days, not only because "Mrs. McThing" is such a success but because husband Charles MacArthur has completely recovered from his long illness . . . The Bill Dolls expect one. Mrs. D. is actress Karen Marsh.

One of the season's best sellers was "The Sea Around Us," nonfiction. Auth'd by Rachel L. Carson. First ran in The New Yorker and still a click. Her earlier tome, "Under the Sea-Wind," will be re-published next month. When it was unveiled it got nowhere—coming out when Pearl Harbor was attacked . . . Ran into Susan Hayward and groom Jess Barker last night. All they talked about was Eisenhower. His most rabid rooters . . . Thyra Samter Winslow called. She's been writing since she was 14 and never had a phone call about her novels or stories. Since her "Think Yourself Thin" came out, it is murder! . . . Lawyers say the acquittal of Rocco Fischetti (on contempt charges) pulls the fur hat of oblivion over the Kefauver Comm. ears.

There has been scads of mis-info printed about the split between the Andrews Sisters and Lou Levy, their guide for 15 years. You are assured there was no blow-up. It is being done with dignity. Until the papers are signed he owns 25 per cent of all their mutual enterprises . . . Leigh Allen (she's understudy to Anne Jeffreys in "Jamie") becomes a bride this Spring. His name is Mark Brown . . . They aren't complaining about business over at the Blue Angel, the Embers or La Vie En Rose. But it's oof'ly depressing in nearly all the other spots . . . Steve Hannagan sums it up best, I think. "It's the high prices, not high taxes!"

If you'd like to help some needy artists from Israel, they have 40 paintings on exhibit over at Altman's. Haven't had much publicity and need the money badly . . . Judy Garland's luck is still good. If she'll agree to her life story (in book form) they promise her $80,000 . . . Claudette Colbert is looking for someone in the market for a home in Hollywood. Only $225,000 . . . It's a girl for the D. Manesses of Collier's . . . When Horace Dodge is busy, Gregg Sherwood's "baby-sitter" is Rick Roman of "Viva Zapata." O, mister! . . . I assume you read that Washington announced Dr. W. P. Schrieber (the Nazi you mentioned Sunday night) would be kicked back to Germany.

WASHINGTON — Chester Bowles, new U. S. Ambassador to India, probably misses his 40 - foot yawl and his dogs. But the Bowles family is used to change and has already made itself "at home" in New Delhi.

Mrs. Bowles, a former social worker, speaks Hindustani. She learned it during several months spent in India after she graduated from Vassar. The Bowles' three younger children, Cynthia, 15, Sally, 13, and Samuel, 12, are attending public school. Cynthia teaches Sunday school in a clinic. Samuel, a baseball fan, now is crazy about cricket. Even the Bowles Connecticut cat purrs happily about the house.

The Bowles have been used to moving about since the head of the house left his highly successful advertising business to become national director of the wartime OPA in Washington. The family moved then from its rambling stone house with its long water front in Essex County Conn. to a rented residence in McLean, Va. In Hartford, while Mr. Bowles served as governor of Connecticut, the family had lived in an 18-room house staffed by seven servants (with all bills, including laundry and grocery, footed by the state).

In India, the family lives today in a six - room house with only a small garden. "It's comfortable, and we all like it," Mr. Bowles said on a quick trip alone to Washington. He thinks, however, that Mrs. Bowles misses the Connecticut farm garden a little. She used to run the place and once said she rised enough to provide the entire family with about three-fourths of its food. At the Connecticut family place, she also used to do most of her own housework, a chore she always enjoyed.

Friends of the Bowles family who predicted they would work hard at giving "face" to Uncle Sam in New Delhi were not wrong. The widow of a former missionary doctor in Southern India, now in charge of a British - sponsored welfare project at Madras, wrote Washington friends in glowing terms of a recent visit the ambassador and his wife paid that city. She described the impression they made as "remarkably happy."

"After the furore at home regarding his appointment, India awaited him with very mixed feelings," the correspondent wrote. "It is a joy to report that he and his family are an unqualified success. He had sent word that there were to be no parties, with food supplied for those who would be well fed anyhow, and that he was coming to learn and to see."

George E. Sokolsky:
THESE DAYS

"MR. PRESIDENT"

I now know that Harry Truman intends to run for President again because I have received an ornate volume entitled "Mr. President" written by William Hillman. It is full of pictures, many in color, done by Alfred Wagg. The book praises Mr. Truman and on no subject does otherwise — which is the way press agents usually prepare books about men who seek to be favored.

Mr. Hillman, who is an experienced journalist, more recently given over to radio, says in this volume: ". . .Certainly the people of this country should welcome disclosure of a man they rarely meet — for that in effect is what most of the Presidents of the United States have been to the American people. The man he would meet — while he is still in the White House — is what every American would like to know . . ."

But no man could be quite as perfect as Mr. Truman is, according to this book. It might be said that the author and photographer had no intention of doing a definitive biography but a compilation of what Truman has to say about himself.

Mr. Truman says this:

". . .I was never an egoist. But, as you know, I studied the lives of great men and famous women; and I found that the men and women who got to the top were those who did the jobs they had in hand, with everything they had of energy and enthusiasm and hard work. . .

"The presidency of the United States is a terrible responsibility for one man. Luckily, the ten years I spent in the Senate gave me some idea and background of what to expect."

Now that requires anaylsis. Elbert Hubbard once wrote a series of pamphlets which he called "Little Journeys," that told about great men and women. I have read them all because they were brilliantly done. Yet, I would not believe that such gazing upon the virtues or foibles of the great could fit me, for instance, for the Presidency.

More than reading biography is necessary. The Presidency has become an extraordinarily broad position, requiring not only knowledge, but profound judgment and political prescience. Mr. Truman has not made a competent President because, with the best of intentions, he lacks the background for the job. And being in the Senate 10 years could not have given him or anyone else that background.

". . .Here is where Mr. Sokolsky comes in. Provided he has not already done so, I would suggest that he immediately contact Mr. Truman and tell him to give Mr. Keyserling, the present economic adviser, the air and appoint him in his place. . ."

Were Mr. Truman to accept this advice, he would fare badly. The United States has many technical economists of great merit who think within the margins of American tradition. I am not a technical economist although I can recognize the difference between one who is an advocate of statism. Mr. Truman once employed an excellent technical economist, one of the best in the world, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse. But he let him go because Nourse wanted to be an economist and not a politician.

Curious statements appear in this book, like this one:

". . .the President must be a sort of super - public relations man. His powers are great, but he must know how to make people get along together. . ."

The Constitution says nothing about that. If that is Harry Truman's concept of the Presidency, why does he not get along with Congress? No President in our history has had such a difficult time with Congress. Mr. Truman gives every evidence of not quite understanding the constitutional relations between the Executive and Legislative branches of our government.

Yet, Mr. Truman does seem to realize that the country could get along without him. He says:

"There is no indispensable man in a democracy. When a republic comes to a point where a man is indispensable, then we have a Caesar.

"I do not believe the fate of the nation should depend upon the life or health or welfare of any one man."

Who Will Control World?

Complete military control of the entire world for all time can be seized by one nation within the next 10 years by the simple expedient of building a space station 1,075 miles from the earth. Cost of building such a station will be only $400,000,000, or just twice the amount spent in creating the atomic bomb, or less than one-fourth of the American military appropriation.

These statements are set up as positive facts in a startling group of articles by leading American scientists in a late issue of Collier's Magazine.

This magazine and these scientists are calling upon the United States to start immediately on the construction of a space station. Otherwise, they say, Russia might build one first and would thereafter be able to prevent any other nation from building one any time in the future.

The proposed space station would put the entire world under a spyglass and it would be possible to watch the most minute military preparations of the whole world. One-eighth of the world would be under observation at all times and the whole world would be visible within every two-hour space, as the motion of the world and the space station combined would make the world appear to turn completely around every two hours.

Such a space station would put an end to all "iron curtains" and all military action. Instruments on the space station would make it possible to pinpoint vision so closely that the watchers would be able to see any point as accurately as if they were only 5,000 feet away.

At the proposed point there is no atmosphere and no gravity. Material for construction of the space station could merely be pushed out of the space ships and moved into place as desired, as it would not fall and would not move unless propelled.

If the space station can be built as easily and as cheaply as the scientists say it can, this appears to be a perfect solution of the problem of how to prevent Russian aggression—provided the United States does it before Russia does.

Anyone interested in the fact that man has conquered space and is ready not only to establish stations in the sky but to make trips to other planets would do well to read the dramatic editorials, stories and descriptions on this subject in Collier's.

Not Stay-At-Homes

An all-time high of $733,000,000 was spent by Americans last year on foreign travel. The increase over the previous year was $6,000,000 which, while small, is remarkable because it followed the Holy Year celebrations at Rome in 1950, which were an incentive to many thousands to make European trips that year, rather than another.

These are the carefully prepared figures of the Office of Business Economics of the Department of Commerce. Broken down they show that Americans spent $282,000,000 on transportation—more than half of it on American ships and airlines— leaving them with amply supplied wallets, from which they disbursed $451,000,000 in foreign countries.

This ought to give pause to Europeans still inclined to regard Americans as provincial at a time when their governments — notably British, French and Italian — are bidding for tourist trade to bolster dollar credits. The American people are the world's most widely traveled, whether by auto, ship or plane.

Going places, besides being of cultural advantage, is habit-forming, and to a greater degree than other peoples Americans are joyful addicts.

Travel to Europe in 1951 fell of 10 per cent, which the OBE inclines to ascribe to the Korean War, but the unrest in the Middle East doubtless kept some from visiting Mediterranean lands. Western Hemisphere countries in consequence gained more than 10 per cent in revenue from American travel, with growing popularity of Caribbean trips and of picturesque Mexico as a place to visit.

Not Forgotten

Ranking American diplomats from Eastern Europe are conferring at Paris about the problems of that area, not the least among which is the problem of freeing American correspondent William N. Oatis from imprisonment in Communist Czechoslovakia. American diplomats stationed at Prague are reported to have some hope that Mr. Oatis will be released.

Great discretion is being exercised in official discussion of this outrageous case. The object is to get Mr. Oatis out. If this involves recognizing the principle of ransom—as in the Vogeler case—either in the form of cash or other concessions, the price will no doubt be paid. To such depths has American diplomacy fallen.

Involved are the welfare, the freedom and perhaps the survival of an American citizen, a press correspondent jailed on the false accusation of espionage. Mr. Oatis' real offense was that he represented a free press.

Murder And Insanity

Examples of deterioration of the human mind are on the increase. In previous generations a single murder case was sufficient to excite the nation. Now murders of the most senseless and cruel character are routine in the daily news.

There is the case of the New York mother who strangled her three small children one after another. Society is helpless against such twists of human character. Best minds in the nation are being devoted to a study of disordered mentalities, with little success except to reveal that insanity is on the increase, and there doesn't seem to be much that can be done about it.

Too many slayers are escaping the death penalty on the plea of insanity, temporary and otherwise. Granted they are crazy, it is also a fact they are murderers. One school of thought holds that no person in his right mind would kill another. If this theory prevails the death penalty will be abolished entirely.

'Tails I Win, Heads You Lose'

Everyone, right down to those in the low income brackets, feels the tremendous burden of present-day taxation. Everyone kicks about it. But there is one phase of the tax problem which is given much less consideration than it deserves—and that is what it is doing to the whole financial structure of the nation.

Economic Intelligence, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, dealt with this when it said, "Steeply progressive taxation has virtually dried up the sources of venture capital, so essential for launching new enterprises. It has become more and more difficult, therefore, for the exceptional man, the ambitious employee, the man with a new idea, to get himself up in his own business. And such activities have been the traditional well springs of our American way of life."

Taxes now take close to one-third of the entire national income—which means that, on the average, each of us works one day out of three for the government. In the higher income brackets, taxes take the majority of the income. Thus, if a man takes a chance, risks his time and money and energy, and succeeds, as much as 90 per cent of all he earns may go to government. If he fails, he must bear the loss himself. It is strictly a "tails I win, heads you lose," proposition. Nothing is more damaging to ambition, incentive, progress.

A nation can destroy itself from within—and no weapon is more powerful than excessive taxation, along with flagrant waste and corruption in government. This is the dark road we have been traveling.

BASCOM TIMMONS
In Washington

Every candidate in the 1952 national election will stress the fight against Communism, his party's efforts to preserve world peace and the necessity of keeping domestic expenditures at the lowest possible level. That sounds like a high plane for a political campaign, until one checks on what the American public is already being fed about the various and several candidates. Then the coming campaign assumes possibilities of being one of the dirtiest.

Already smears are being circulated, at both high and low levels, which indicate that mud slinging will reach a notable peak even before the conventions. That, of course, is nothing new in a year when competition is keen in both parties.

Governor Gene Talmadge of Georgia has called Senator Estes Kefauver "the darling of the Communists" which must have been rather a shock to the Senator, who probably would not know a Commie if he met him in the middle of Pennsylvania Avenue. Governor Earl Warren of California has been called 'A New Deal Wolf in Republican sheep clothing", an allusion to the occasions on which Warren (and other candidates as well) have run on both tickets, which is permissible in that state and frequently done.

A pamphlet widely circulated calls General Dwight D. Eisenhower "a New Deal stooge," referring to the several occasions on which President Truman has spoken of the general in complimentary terms and to the uncertainty, until recently, whether "Ike" regarded himself as a Republican or a Democrat.

A Portland, Md. lawyer has gone into business as a political pamphleteer supporting Senator Robert A. Taft and saying every insulting thing he can think of about the other Republican possibilities. But Taft has not been immune himself. Some of the things said about him in cheap paper booklets make him out an ogre, a foe of every laboring man and a candidate whose only loyalty is to big business and the very rich. Some of these throw - aways are apparent reprints of those circulated by the thousands by Ohio labor groups against Taft in his 1950 campaign for the senatorship.

On a higher level, innuendoes about General Eisenhower's personal conduct in England and France during World War II are being spread, with promises that the whole story will presently be exposed. So far, however, there have been only hints of the nature of the expose, together with an attempt to substantiate reports that he has high blood pressure, could not possibly last under the stress of the presidency.

President Truman and Vice President Barkley are probably better off than the Republican candidates because just about everything which can be said has been tossed at them. The President this year is up against a stiffer barrage than in 1948, authorities on campaign polemics are convinced, because enough criticism has accumulated to give greater weight to previous stories of Prendergastism, oil stock deals and his alleged failure to pay off bankrupt indebtness.

Other smears have been directed at Adlai E. Stevenson, governor of Illinois and President Truman's reputed choice to succeed himself, because of his divorce after he became governor and at Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, a candidate for president "if Truman doesn't run" for his oil wealth.

The President's observation that he did not envy General Eisenhower if he returned to face the shower of mud, brickbats and slime which would be hurled at him as a candidate for the presidency has sound basis in fact. But it does not apply to Eisenhower.

Other Presidents Have Said "No" —Feuding between presidents and Congress over refusal of the former to turn over to congressional committees records and documents did not originate with Harry S. Truman. In fact it began with the very first of the line, George Washington, who had a hot tilt with the legislators over his refusal to give them information about the Jay Treaty.

That was the treaty which cleaned up a number of important controversial issues between the United States and Great Britain dating back to the Revolution. It was finally ratified in 1796 by barely the two thirds vote of the Senate required by the Constitution.

Jefferson would not tell Congress all it wanted to know about Aaron Burr's conspiracy, until Burr was tried for treason. Andrew Jackson would not accede to demands for a copy of his instructions to government heads regarding removal of bank deposits. Lincoln would not give Congress copies of dispatches from Major Anderson to the War Department concerning the defense of Fort Sumter and Theodore Roosevelt refused to give the Attorney General's reasons for failing to prosecute the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Franklin D. Roosevelt set a record by refusing Congressional demand for official papers six times.

Our Children

BE A GOOD NEIGHBOR

Good neighbors are priceless. They have been known to increase the value of real estate, to give their neighborhood a reputation for harmony, good will and happy living. They have been known to make an environment of great inspiration to healthy growth, to good living, for the children of the community. They are indeed priceless.

Are you a good neighbor? Like everything else worth while, this requires work, time, and the will to give oneself in service. A mother of a household will be likely to say, "How can I, with a group of children, a husband, a house and relatives, find time and energy to do anything outside my home? I have all I can do right there. I mind my own business and let the neighbors mind theirs if they will."

That is not being a good neighbor. Each of us has all the time there is, twenty -four hours a day, and it is not the length of time we have that matters, but what we do with it. It does not take much time or energy to smile as one passes a neighbor, to say a cheerful wor, to speak an appreciative word about the baby, the geraniums in the window, or indicate sympathy with a neighbor's difficulty. Yet that little gesture of word and tone and smile warms the heart of the one who receives it.

Trouble strikes in every family, own nolessthan others. Sure-ly the our own no less than others. Surely there is time for a telephone call, a knock at the door, a few words of understanding, or no words at all; a glass of jelly handed over the doorsill or a pan of hot biscuits at tea time lifts more than a hundred times its weight from a heavy heart. Remember, the time must come when the shadow falls on your own doorsteo, and a friendly voice and a neighborly hand will mean so much to you.

Children are children the wide world over. They trespass, they do damage, they make a noise, they fight, break windows, behave like children wherever they are, and a good neighbor understands that and allows for it. An apology, an effort to make good any damage the children have created, an honest effort to train the children to respect the neighbors' feelings, rights and possessions will go a long way toward creating and maintaining a neighborly attitude throughout the community.

To have a good neighbor it is necessary to be one. Of course it takes working at, and time and thought, but the effort will be returned with heavy interest in turned with heavy interest in friendliness, community feeling and community reputation. Beyond that is the feeling of well being within oneself that neighborliness creates. That is very much worth while.

Your child will be obedient by the time he is three or four if given the proper training from the beginning. Dr. Patri explains how to guide children in obedience in his booklet No. 301. To obtain a copy send 2 cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

FOREIGN AID

On the amount of President Truman's foreign aid request, editors appear to divide into three roughly equal groups. One group feels the amount is probably about right. Another would cut it substantially, if not drastically. The third group sees only detailed examination by congressional committees as providing any satisfactory answer.—A considerable minority of editors would limit aid to spur greater defense efforts by our Allies in Europe. But majority opinion now opposes such a move as a direct act of pressure.

Atlanta (Ga.) Journal (Dem.): "In the Mutual Security bill there doubtless are places where waste can be eliminated. But there also are places where the suggested appropriations are entirely too small to do the job. The president is probably right that the over-all total is none too great. . . . If we are going to support our Allies over seas—as we must—it would be folly to support them too little and too late. The alternative to erecting strong defenses wherever we can, as President Truman pointed out, is national suicide."

Toledo (Ohio) Blade (Ind.): "Whether the president's figure of $7.9 billion . . . is too much, too little, or just right, no one can honestly say at this point. It's up to committees of congress now to determine such matters. . . . The specific sums now asked—over $5 billion for direct military aid to our Allies, $1.7 billion for bolstering their arms program with raw materials and machinery, $600 million for Point Four assistance—should be carefully examined. Perhaps it will be necessary to trim them, along with a lot of other budget items, so as to keep our economy, the best weapon in the western arsenal, sound."

Providence (R. I.) Journal (Ind.): "Sober, authoritative observers have insisted that some trimming of the over-all security budget could safely be attempted, and we are not ready to say they are wrong. . . . We are ready to say, however, that the foreign aid budget should be the last to go under the knife if such paring is attempted. Non-defense spending offers a logical starting point, heavy with 'fat.' The military service appropriations might be next in line. But foreign aid promises such rich returns in security and defense for such modest outlay that we can least of all afford ill-considered cuts in this area."

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.): "Foreign aid must be cut sharply, as must all other items in the budget. Our Allies should also be required to fulfill their promises to us before we give them another nickel. The American people have been patiently bearing the heaviest tax burden in the world for five years. . . . We have spent $50,000,000,000 aiding Europe since World War II. . . . If we send $4,500,000,000 to Europe instead of the $7,900,000,000 the president demands . . . that amount of money would still far outbalance the contributions being made by European nations in their own defense."

Charlotte (N. C.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Certainly the U. S. taxpayer has given to Europe with magnanimity. . . . Nevertheless . . . despite the fact that our NATO Allies' total production is about a third of ours, their contribution to defense has been con-

Dear Mr. W: Mr. Truman's book, "Mr. President," is assured of at least 55 million readers (all over the world) when Reader's Digest runs the condensation a forthnight after publication. It will be reprinted in 27 Digest editions via 15 languages. The letter to "a well - known columnist" in it went to Arthur Krock of the N. Y. Times. . . .I hear Mr. Truman mails his own torrid missives these days, instead of depending on any of the White House staff. . .'U. S. A. Confidential" by Lait & Mortimer appears to be asusred of a heavy sale, too. So many of its targets landing on their local front pages with threats of reprisal and lawsuits, etc. . .The Houston (Texas) papers gave oilman Glenn McCarthy's threat (to the authors) war banner headlines. This is what is called money in the bank. . . Judge Medina, who sentenced the 11 top Reds, is now guarded by two detectives after threats.

Judy Garland's divorce is due on the 22nd. She is nursing fiance S. Luft at Palm Beach. Flu. . . Joan Bennett's daughter is in her first serious romance. He is Dick Van Patten, the teevy thespian. . . Frank Paris, the puppeteer, has retained Wm. Fitelson, the Broadway barrister, to handle his $2 million suit against NBC and Howdy-Doody. Says he helped originate it. . . Eisenhower's victory in New Hampshire reminds me that the trend was indicated in the post-card poll you ran in 1948. When he led with over 110,000 cards the first 3 days!

In spite of the worst box office business in years, "Pal Joey" turned away over 400 at the Wed. matinee. . .George Frazier in the April Esquire reports that producer Leland Hayward's income is $40,000 weekly, $25,000 of that from his plays and the rest from substantial holdings in various corporations. . .Over at the Knickerbocker Hospital a room in the alcoholic ward is called "Duffy's Tavern."

The Johnston censor office made United Artists raise the necklines on all of Linda Darnell's sarong photos for lobby and newspaper display . . . Elaine Stricth, who is so good in "Joey" told the Armando's crowd that attorney Herbert Moss is strictly a pal. But their chums give that the old tee-hee . . . I hear the real reason A. J. Balaban gave up the reins of the Roxy is that he wouldn't use a whip. A very kindly man. . . . The Warner Theater (Strand) resumes stage shows on April 7th, specializing in ballets. Straight movie fare being a costly experiment . . . Melody Thompson must have a press agent with all those romance fillers. Charles Addams, the cartoonist, however, has the situation in hand.

Latest to-do over at the Met is between Rudolph Bing and prima donna Ljuba Welitsch. Backstagers hear she probably won't return next season . . . Barbara Alexander Brady, grandghtr of the late Wm. A. Brady, was married this week at Fort Smith, Arkansas. He is Col. D. Russell Boatright . .. Agnes DeMille is rounding up a troupe of girls. For a full evening's excerpts from her various Broadway hits. The troupe will tour Europe and return here for some dates . . . Helen Hayes is happier these days, not only because "Mrs. McThing" is such a success but because husband Charles MacArthur has completely recovered from his long illness . . . The Bill Dolls expect one. Mrs. D. is actress Karen Marsh.

One of the season's best sellers was "The Sea Around Us," nonfiction. Auth'd by Rachel L. Carson. First ran in The New Yorker and still a click. Her earlier tome, "Under the Sea-Wind," will be re-published next month. When it was unveiled it got nowhere—coming out when Pearl Harbor was attacked . . . Ran into Susan Hayward and groom Jess Barker last night. All they talked about was Eisenhower. His most rabid rooters . . . Thyra Samter Winslow called. She's been writing since she was 14 and never had a phone call about her novels or stories. Since her "Think Yourself Thin" came out, it is murder! . . . Lawyers say the acquittal of Rocco Fischetti (on contempt charges) pulls the fur hat of oblivion over the Kefauver Comm. ears.

There has been scads of mis-info printed about the split between the Andrews Sisters and Lou Levy, their guide for 15 years. You are assured there was no blow-up. It is being done with dignity. Until the papers are signed he owns 25 per cent of all their mutual enterprises . . . Leigh Allen (she's understudy to Anne Jeffreys in "Jamie") becomes a bride this Spring. His name is Mark Brown . . . They aren't complaining about business over at the Blue Angel, the Embers or La Vie En Rose. But it's oof'ly depressing in nearly all the other spots . . . Steve Hannagan sums it up best, I think. "It's the high prices, not high taxes!"

If you'd like to help some needy artists from Israel, they have 49 paintings on exhibit over at Altman's. Haven't had much publicity and need the money badly . . . Judy Garland's luck is still good. If she'll agree to her life story (in book form) they promise her $60,000 . . . Claudette Colbert is looking for someone in the market for a home in Hollywood. Only $225,000 . . . It's a girl for the D. Manesses of Collier's . . . When Horace Dodge is busy, Gregg Sherwood's "baby-sitter" is Rick Roman of "Viva Zapata." O, mister! . . . I assume you read that Washington announced Dr. W. P. Schrieber (the Nazi you mentioned Sunday night) would be kicked back to Germany.

In Washington

WASHINGTON — Chester Bowles, new U. S. Ambassador to India, probably misses his 40 - foot yawl and his dogs. But the Bowles family is used to change and has already made itself "at home" in New Delhi.

Mrs. Bowles, a former social worker, speaks Hindustani. She learned it during several months spent in India after she graduated from Vassar. The Bowles' three younger children, Cynthia, 15, Sally, 13, and Samuel, 12, are attending public school. Cynthia teaches Sunday school in a clinic. Samuel, a baseball fan, now is crazy about cricket. Even the Bowles Connecticut cat purrs happily about the house.

The Bowles have been used to moving about since the head of the house left his highly successful advertising business to become national director of the wartime OPA in Washington. The family moved then from its rambling stone house with its long water front in Essex County Conn. to a rented residence in McLean, Va. In Hartford, while Mr. Bowles served as governor of Connecticut, the family had lived in an 18-room house staffed by seven servants (with all bills, including laundry and grocery, footed by the state).

In India, the family lives today in a six - room house with only a small garden. "It's comfortable, and we all like it," Mr. Bowles said on a quick trip alone to Washington. He thinks, however, that Mrs. Bowles misses the Connecticut farm garden a little. She used to run the place and once said she rised enough to provide the entire family with about three-fourths of its food. At the Connecticut family place, she also used to do most of her own housework, a chore she always enjoyed.

Friends of the Bowles family who predicted they would work hard at giving "face" to Uncle Sam in New Delhi were not wrong. The widow of a former missionary doctor in Southern India, now in charge of a British - sponsored welfare project at Madras, wrote Washington friends in glowing terms of a recent visit the ambassador and his wife paid that city. She described the impression they made as "remarkably happy."

"After the furore at home regarding his appointment, India awaited him with very mixed feelings," the correspondent wrote. "It is a joy to report that he and his family are an unqualified success. He had sent word that there were to be no parties, with food supplied for those who would be well fed anyhow, and that he was coming to learn and to see."

George E. Sokolsky:
THESE DAYS

"MR. PRESIDENT"

I now know that Harry Truman intends to run for President again because I have received an ornate volume entitled "Mr. President" written by William Hillman. It is full of pictures, many in color, done by Alfred Wagg. The book praises Mr. Truman and on no subject does otherwise — which is the way press agents usually prepare books about men who seek to be favored.

Mr. Hillman, who is an experienced journalist, more recently given over to radio, says in this volume: ". . .Certainly the people of this country should welcome disclosure of a man they rarely meet — for that in effect is what most of the Presidents of the United States have been to the American people. The man he would meet — while he is still in the White House — is what every American would like to know . . ."

But no man could be quite as perfect as Mr. Truman is, according to this book. It might be said that the author and photographer had no intention of doing a definitive biography but a compilation of what Truman has to say about himself.

Mr. Truman says this:

". . .I was never an egoist. But, as you know, I studied the lives of great men and famous women; and I found that the men and women who got to the top were those who did the jobs they had in hand, with everything they had of energy and enthusiasm and hard work. . .

"The presidency of the United States is a terrible responsibility for one man. Luckily, the ten years I spent in the Senate gave me some idea and background of what to expect."

Now that requires anaylsis. Elbert Hubbard once wrote a series of pamphlets which he called "Little Journeys," that told about great men and women. I have read them all because they were brilliantly done. Yet, I would not believe that such gazing upon the virtues or foibles of the great could fit me, for instance, for the Presidency.

More than reading biography is necessary. The Presidency has become an extraordinarily broad position, requiring not only knowledge, but profound judgment and political prescience. Mr. Truman has not made a competent President because, with the best of intentions, he lacks the background for the job. And being in the Senate 10 years could not have given him or anyone else that background.

". . .Here is where Mr. Sokolsky comes in. Provided he has not already done so, I would suggest that he immediately contact Mr. Truman and tell him to give Mr. Keyserling, the present economic adviser, the air and appoint him in his place. . ."

Were Mr. Truman to accept this advice, he would fare badly. The United States has many technical economists of great merit who think within the margins of American tradition. I am not a technical economist although I can recognize the difference between one who is an advocate of statism. Mr. Truman once employed an excellent technical economist, one of the best in the world, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse. But he let him go because Nourse wanted to be an economist and not a politician.

Curious statements appear in this book, like this one:

". . .the President must be a sort of super - public relations man. His powers are great, but he must know how to make people get along together. . ."

The Constitution says nothing about that. If that is Harry Truman's concept of the Presidency, why does he not get along with Congress? No President in our history has had such a difficult time with Congress. Mr. Truman gives every evidence of not quite understanding the constitutional relations between the Executive and Legislative branches of our government.

Yet, Mr. Truman does seem to realize that the country could get along without him. He says:

"There is no indispensable man in a democracy. When a republic comes to a point where a man is indispensable, then we have a Caesar.

"I do not believe the fate of the nation should depend upon the life or health or welfare of any one man."

How true! How true!

Pensacola (Fla.) Many feel that a stiffer attitude by the United States would compel European Allies to make a greater effort to finance their own arming and preparation of troops. France, now in far better economic position than any time since the war and some say even better off than before the war, has seen one government fall after another over the question of tax increases to finance its arms program."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "We can press for greater sacrifice abroad, but America, the most prosperous country in the world, would display woefully slight knowledge of human reactions if it sought to fashion an instrument of pressure out of its dollars. Politicians might be inclined to respond to such pressure, but the difficulties abroad are based in popular dissents and confusions, not so much in official obstinacy. . . . We need, in the cases of respective countries, to know what are both the economic and military needs, and the place of those countries in our over-all structure of containment of Red aggression."

do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot evade, we cannot cheat, we cannot underestimate this tax. The collectors, clever and sly, who compute here, have gone far beyond our poor power to add and substract.

"Our creditors will little note nor long remember what we pay here, but the Bureau of Internal Revenue can never forget what we report here.

"It is not for us, the taxpayers, to question the tax which the government has thus far ignobly spent. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these vanishing dollars we take increased devotion to the few remaining — that we her highly resolve that next year will not find us in the higher income bracket, that this taxpayer, underpaid, shall figure out more deductions, and that this tax of the people, by the Congress, for the Government, shall not cause solvency to perish."

Ralph C. Brice, chairman of the Easter seal sale campaign, states that the usual large number of seals have been placed in the mails and those who receive these as well as any others who desire to aid this great cause, are asked to mail in their checks to The Ouachita parish society for Crippled Children and Adults, P. O. Box 1315, Monroe.

It is explained: "Your Easter seal donation toward the treatment and rehabilitation of the handicapped children enables the local board to furnish many services to these worthy but unfortunate children, who by no fault of their own, will be handicapped for life unless someone helps them. Those whom God has blessed with healthy bodies and minds, certainly should feel thankful and deem it a privilege to do their best for these little ones who need help.

"Should there be a doubt in your mind concerning the need and what your dollars are doing, please drop by the unit at the health center on St. John street and see these children being treated. Ask the doctors, nurses, and helpers what is being done by your society. You will be happy you gave. If you haven't given you will do so."

Jes' Ramblin' heartily recommends that all who can support this great and worthy cause.

Paul Manasseh, business manager of the Monroe Sports, has appeared before several groups the past few days, among the number being the Rotary and Civitan clubs where he told of the plans for the erection of a stadium for the Little League Baseball team here.

The proposed park is located immediately south of the American Legion Memorial stadium and the cost of the new stadium is placed at $6,000 to $6,500. Of this sum, business men have covered $1,200, the Monroe Lions Club has given $3,000 and now less than $2,000 is yet to be raised.

Supporters of this project see in it a step forward in waging war on juvenile delinquency by keeping youth engaged in wholesome sport.

maxing a 10-day trial—as "a sensible and intelligent one."

Finnegan, 51, is at liberty on $5,000 bond. His attorneys said today they will file motion for a new trial and failing that, will appeal the case.

Meantime, the federal grand jury which indicted Finnegan will continue its study into his official conduct. It was during the original investigation of his office that Finnegan resigned last spring.

Finnegan is known as a confidant of President Truman and other national Democratic bigwigs. He used to "screen" visitors for the President on his campaign stops in St. Louis.

Friends said that before his trial Finnegan lived and breathed politics. He was ambitious, a political power.

A gregarious, hand-shaking individual, Finnegan started out as a ward worker in 1933. He became city judge that year and served a year. From there he went to prosecuting attorney and then collector of internal revenue.

There have been reports at various times that Finnegan nurtured an ambition to be a federal judge.

A Federal court jury of 11 men and a woman reached its vergict at 8:18 a.m. today after about nine hours of deliberation. The jury acquitted him on three counts—Two bribery and one misconduct.

Finnegan was found guilty of accepting $5,000 from the Warwick Hotel here for helping the owners collect a $40,000 claim from the government, and of receiving $3,000 from American Lithofold Corp. for his aid in winning approval of a previously - rejected $565,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

I. at Lafayette, La. in the fall of 1944. Subsequently he had training at Corpus Christi, Tex. and at St. Marys College, Oakland, Calif.

A pathetic scene was enacted in December 1945 when Driskell's father, veteran of the first world war who had re-enlisted as chaplain in the second war. Father and son met in California and plans for a Christmas spent together were upset when Lt. Driskell was suddenly ordered to Bainbridge, Md.

In June 1946, Lt. Driskell was ordered from Bainbridge to the naval base in New Orleans for discharge, and when he received this he returned to his home in Monroe. But barely was he home when he received appointment as a cadet in the U. S. naval academy in Annapolis. He was in the naval academy until February 1948 when he resigned and entered S. L. I. in Lafayette. Later he was given a direct appointment in the Infantry and ordered to Fort Benning Ga. for additional training.

On April 1, 1949 he informed his parents that he would be graduated at Fort Benning April 15, 1949 and had been given a three-weeks leave until he was to report for active duty in the Far East command.

Upon arrival at General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters, Driskell was assigned to duty with Co. A., 34th Inf. division, at Camp Mower, where he remained until ordered to battle duty in Korea on or about 25th June 1950.

While at Camp Mower serving with Co. A of the 34th Infantry, his work was so successful he was selected as a member of the Divisional Instructional Staff of the 24th Division in radiological or Atomic Warfare. In preparation for this work as radiological instructor for the division he was sent to service schools in various sections of Japan. Among the places he studied was the radiological school connected with General Far Eastern Headquarters of Command, in Tokyo. Here he met many of the outstanding military leaders in the Far East.

Upon returning to the 24th Division for instructional work from the various service schools; he was so successful in his work he received citations from his own General Dean, General Walker, commanding general of the Eighth army later killed, and others in high command. He was too modest to write this home. But when his papers and effects were received from the Far East during the summer of 1951, these various citations and documents were discovered.

In addition to the citations he received he was offered a three year course in radiological engineering in anyone of several outstanding universities in America, leading to a Masters Degree. When the Korean hostilities broke he was giving consideration to this offer.

Lt. Driskell's company and battalion was a part of the vanguard of the army that entered Korean territory for battle duty. Upon arrival they were assigned immediately to battle station in support of retreating South Korean troops. They arrived in Korea on or about the third of July. Lt. Driskell was reported missing in action as of the 6th of July 1950. Then on February 25, 1952 officially reported as killed in action on the 6th of July 1950.

Lt. Driskell was one of two officers who first lost their lives in the Korean campaign.

"In recent years I have realized what an important part education plays in the welfare and development of our community. In announcing my candidacy for a member of the school board, I am fully conscious of the many problems that the future holds for education. I realize that the Monroe city school system is one of the largest businesses in Monroe and in the expenditure of this money each year, we are making an investment in future citizens that will pay big dividends in the years to come.

"We should see to it that our schools progress with the times and that we offer our children the best educational facilities. We should also see that the school system is operated in an efficient manner so that we can expect the greatest returns from the money that we invest in education.

What helps them, helps us."

He said we could learn from the ideas of other countries, and that our present program of cooperation with the free world will, if successful, bring the "greatest age in the history of the world."

But it may take the next generation to accomplish the task, he said, and that responsibility will be on the shoulders of today's youths.

"We know the Soviet government is a menace to us," he said. "That's why we are building up our strength, not to march against them, but to prevent them from marching against us."

Mr. Truman occasionally referred to notes as he talked in a slow, chatty fashion. His 15-minute address was broadcast nationally, by radio and television.

Noting that people had been "mystified and wondering" why he made the 2,500-mile round trip to give the talk, he said:

"It is because the future of this great republic depends on young people like you. And because in the past year, young people have been coming to see me at the White House."

Lovett's statements on the air war. Finletter said the most significant aspect of the Korean War, from the air point of view, has been the "mounting intensity of the air-to-air struggle with ever-increasing numbers of the Soviet-built MIG-15." But, said Finletter, "in the struggle with the MIG-15's our airmen, though greatly outnumbered, have better than held their own."

On the general subject of rearmament, Lovett predicted that the military security program will require an even bigger bite of the gross national product during 1952 —about 18 per cent compared with 14 per cent last year.

(Gross national product is the total of value of all goods, services and other items produced by the nation in factories, farms and elsewhere.)

the extra billions."

Committee action on the multi-billion dollar foreign aid program got underway in Congress this week. Administration leaders concede they face a tough battle for the full amount.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, with unconcealed irritation, has publicly questioned the need for any more economic aid. The administration has contended that the economic aid requested is in reality to boost military production and thus is in effect a part of the arms aid program.

On Monday, Connally's committee will consider in closed session a motion by Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) to invite Eisenhower to return from his North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) command for testimony.

When McMahon filed his motion both Democrats and Republicans agreed it would put the general on a political spot. The general is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, but has said he will not campaign for it and has no plans to return to the U. S. anytime soon.

Even if he returns here just to testify on the foreign aid requests, everyone concedes there would be political overtones.

McMahon, in interviews, has insisted that is not his purpose.

"The general believes in this program and now is doing his all to aid it," McMahon said. 'I believe his appearance now would be even more persuasive than he was last year when his testimony contributed so much to actual implementation of the Atlantic Pact."

Other Senate committeemen said they would vote against the McMahon motion on the ground it would embarrass Eisenhower.

On the House side, Chairman Richards D - SC has postponed a decision by the Foreign Affairs Committee on a suggestion that Eisenhower be invited to testify "as an official of the government."

The suggestion was made Wednesday by Rep. Mansfield (D-Mont), a member of the committee. Replying the next day, Richards said it might be necessary to hear the general eventually, but he added: "I do not believe it would be wise to make the final decision at this particular time."

The House committee will start hearings on the foreign aid program on Monday.

Eisenhower's chief of staff, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, is scheduled as a witness before both the Senate and House committees.

If either committee formally invited Eisenhower to testify, the request would presumably go to him through military channels. He would be free to accept or reject such a bid in the absence of any formal order from Truman to return.

a heavy snowstorm.

Sweeping south from the San Francisco area last night, the brunt of the storm was expected to hit Los Angeles late today, bringing possibly as much as four inches of rain. An inch has fallen here already.

To the north in Santa Barbara county five families were evacuated from Guadalupe and three from Casmalia as runoff waters ran a foot or more deep through their homes. Farm lands near these communities and the town of Betteravia were inundated.

A foot of new snow blanketed Angeles National Forest, where there was already a record stand.

It was still raining in the San Francisco area, hard hit yesterday, but the worst was past and flooded roads were being reopened.

The Southern California forecast was for moderate to heavy rain tonight and tomorrow with snow in the mountains through Sunday.

Quoting Ellis Rickey, American Red Cross field representative, who recently returned from the Korean fronts to the United States, Brady said the Red Cross had given 967,000, $76,000 worth of children's clothing and 11,000 prisoner-of-war food packages to the Korean Red Cross. While working in Korea, Rickey was officially commended for his outstanding work by Brigadier General William E. Crist, Brady said.

Pensacola (Fla.) Journal (Ind.-Dem.): "Senator Byrd has figured about two billions can be cut from the program and other legislators have estimated from one to three or more billions can be whacked off. . . . Many feel that a stiffer attitude by the United States would compel European Allies to make a greater effort to finance their own arming and preparation of troops. France, now in far better economic position than any time since the war and some say even better off than before the war, has seen one government fall after another over the question of tax increases to finance its arms program."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "We can press for greater sacrifice abroad, but America, the most prosperous country in the world, would display woefully slight knowledge of human reactions if it sought to fashion an instrument of pressure out of its dollars. Politicians might be inclined to respond to such pressure, but the difficulties abroad are based in popular dissents and confusions, not so much in official obstinacy. . . . We need, in the cases of respective countries, to know what are both the economic and military needs, and the place of those countries in our over-all structure of containment of Red aggression."

do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot evade, we cannot cheat, we cannot underestimate this tax. The collectors, clever and sly, who compute here, have gone far beyond our poor power to add and substract.

"Our creditors will little note nor long remember what we pay here, but the Bureau of Internal Revenue can never forget what we report here.

"It is not for us, the taxpayers, to question the tax which the government has thus far ignobly spent. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these vanishing dollars we take increased devotion to the few remaining — that we her highly resolve that next year will not find us in the higher income bracket, that this taxpayer, underpaid, shall figure out more deductions, and that this tax of the people, by the Congress, for the Government, shall not cause solvency to perish."

Ralph C. Brice, chairman of the Easter seal sale campaign, states that the usual large number of seals have been placed in the mails and those who receive these as well as any others who desire to aid this great cause, are asked to mail in their checks to The Ouachita parish society for Crippled Children and Adults, P. O. Box 1315, Monroe.

It is explained: "Your Easter seal donation toward the treatment and rehabilitation of the handicapped children enables the local board to furnish many services to these worthy but unfortunate children, who by no fault of their own, will be handicapped for life unless someone helps them. Those whom God has blessed with healthy bodies and minds, certainly should feel thankful and deem it a privilege to do their best for these little ones who need help.

"Should there be a doubt in your mind concerning the need and what your dollars are doing, please drop by the unit at the health center on St. John street and see these children being treated. Ask the doctors, nurses, and helpers what is being done by your society. You will be happy you gave. If you haven't given you will do so."

Jes' Ramblin' heartily recommends that all who can support this great and worthy cause.

Paul Manasseh, business manager of the Monroe Sports, has appeared before several groups the past few days, among the number being the Rotary and Civitan clubs where he told of the plans for the erection of a stadium for the Little League Baseball team here.

The proposed park is located immediately south of the American Legion Memorial stadium and the cost of the new stadium is placed at $6,000 to $6,500. Of this sum, business men have donated $1,200, the Monroe Lions Club has given $3,000 and now less than $2,000 is yet to be raised.

Supporters of this project see in it a step forward in waging war on juvenile delinquency by keeping youth engaged in wholesome sport.

maxing a 10-day trial—as "a sensible and intelligent one."

Finnegan, 51, is at liberty on $5,000 bond. His attorneys said today they will file motion for a new trial and failing that, will appeal the case.

Meantime, the federal grand jury which indicted Finnegan will continue its study into his official conduct. It was during the original investigation of his office that Finnegan resigned last spring.

Finnegan is known as a confidant of President Truman and other national Democratic bigwigs. He used to "screen" visitors for the President on his campaign stops in St. Louis.

Friends said that before his trial Finnegan lived and breathed politics. He was ambitious, a political power.

A gregarious, hand-shaking individual, Finnegan started out as a ward worker in 1933. He became city judge that year and served a year. From there he went to prosecuting attorney and then collector of internal revenue.

There have been reports at various times that Finnegan nurtured an ambition to be a federal judge.

A Federal court jury of 11 men and a woman reached its vergict at 8:18 a.m. today after about nine hours of deliberation. The jury acquitted him on three counts—Two bribery and one misconduct.

Finnegan was found guilty of accepting $5,000 from the Warwick Hotel here for helping the owners collect a $40,000 claim from the government, and of receiving $3,000 from American Lithofold Corp. for his aid in winning approval of a previously - rejected $565,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

A pathetic scene was enacted in December 1945 when Driskell's father, veteran of the first world war who had re-enlisted as chaplain in the second war. Father and son met in California and plans for a Christmas spent together were upset when Lt. Driskell was suddenly ordered to Bainbridge, Md.

In June 1946, Lt. Driskell was ordered from Bainbridge to the naval base in New Orleans for discharge, and when he received this he returned to his home in Monroe. But barely was he home when he received appointment as a cadet in the U. S. naval academy in Annapolis. He was in the naval academy until February 1948 when he resigned and entered S. L. What helps them, helps us."

He said we could learn from the ideas of other countries, and that our present program of cooperation with the free world will, if successful, bring the "graeatest age in the history of the world."

But it may take the next generation to accomplish the task, he said, and that responsibility will be on the shoulders of today's youths.

"We know the Soviet government is a menace to us," he said. "That's why we are building up our strength, not to march against them, but to prevent them from marching against us."

Mr. Truman occasionally referred to notes as he talked in a slow, chatty fashion. His 15-minute address was broadcast nationally, by radio and television.

Noting that people had been "mystified and wondering" why he made the 2,500-mile round trip to give the talk, he said:

"It is because the future of this great republic depends on young people like you. And because in the past year, young people have been coming to see me at the White House."

Lovett's statements on the air war. Finletter said the most significant aspect of the Korean War, from the air point of view, has been the "mounting intensity of the air-to-air struggle with ever-increasing numbers of the Soviet-built MIG-15." But, said Finletter, "in the struggle with the MIG-15's our airmen, though greatly outnumbered, have better than held their own."

On the general subject of rearmament, Lovett predicted that the military security program will require an even bigger bite of the gross national product during 1952 —about 18 per cent compared with 14 per cent last year.

(Gross national product is the total of value of all goods, services and other items produced by the nation in factories, farms and elsewhere.)

the extra billions."

Committee action on the multi-billion dollar foreign aid program got underway in Congress this week. Administration leaders concede they face a tough battle for the full amount.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, with unconcealed irritation, has publicly questioned the need for any more economic aid. The administration has contended that the economic aid requested is in reality to boost military production and thus is in effect a part of the arms aid program.

On Monday, Connally's committee will consider in closed session a motion by Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) to invite Eisenhower to return from his North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) command for testimony.

When McMahon filed his motion both Democrats and Republicans agreed it would put the general on a political spot. The general is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, but has said he will not campaign for it and has no plans to return to the U. S. anytime soon.

Even if he returns here just to testify on the foreign aid requests, everyone concedes there would be political overtones.

McMahon, in interviews, has insisted that is not his purpose.

"The general believes in this program and now is doing his all to aid it," McMahon said. 'I believe his appearance now would be even more persuasive than he was last year when his testimony contributed so much to actual implementation of the Atlantic Pact."

Other Senate committeemen said they would vote against the McMahon motion on the ground it would embarrass Eisenhower.

On the House side, Chairman Richards D - SC has postponed a decision by the Foreign Affairs Committee on a suggestion that Eisenhower be invited to testify "as an official of the government."

The suggestion was made Wednesday by Rep. Mansfield (D-Mont), a member of the committee. Replying the next day, Richards said it might be necessary to hear the general eventually, but he added: "I do not believe it would be wise to make the final decision at this particular time."

The House committee will start hearings on the foreign aid program on Monday.

Eisenhower's chief of staff, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, is scheduled as a witness before both the Senate and House committees.

If either committee formally invited Eisenhower to testify, the request would presumably go to him through military channels. He would be free to accept or reject such a bid in the absence of any formal order from Truman to return.

STORMS LASH

a heavy snowstorm.

Sweeping south from the San Francisco area last night, the brunt of the storm was expected to hit Los Angeles late today, bringing possibly as much as four inches of rain. An inch has fallen here already.

To the north in Santa Barbara county five families were evacuated from Guadalupe and three from Casmalia as runoff waters ran a foot or more deep through their homes. Farm lands near these communities and the town of Betteravia were inundated.

A foot of new snow blanketed Angeles National Forest, where there was already a record stand.

It was still raining in the San Francisco area, hard hit yesterday, but the worst was past and flooded roads were being reopened.

The Southern California forecast was for moderate to heavy rain tonight and tomorrow with snow in the mountains through Sunday.

turned in. Other committees, Brady reported, are doing equally as well.

Quoting Ellis Rickey, American Red Cross field representative, who recently returned from the Korean fronts to the United States, Brady said the Red Cross had given $67,000, $76,000 worth of children's clothing and 11,000 prisoner-of-war food packages to the Korean Red Cross. While working in Korea, Rickey was officially commended for his outstanding work by Brigadier General William E. Crist, Brady said.

Tommy Holmes, manager of the Boston Braves, holds six Brave batting records. All were established in 1945.

Burglary In W. Monroe Reported

The latest in a recent series of burglaries in the Twin Cities was reported to West Monroe city police yesterday morning by Jack Russell, owner of Jack's Cabs in West Monroe.

Russell reported that his old cab stand on Wood street, which formerly was the Safety Cab Company office, had been broken into during the last three weeks and ransacked by unknown persons.

Nothing was found to be missing, Russell told police, but the place had been ransacked and some papers molested. Entrance was gained by breaking out a glass in the east window, removing the stick with which it was locked, and raising the window.

Russell reported the burglary to West Monroe police at 9 a.m. yesterday.

UNION CLEANUP PLANNED BY CIO

DETROIT, March 15 (AP)—An occupation army of top CIO United Auto Workers officers will move in on seized Ford Local 600 early next week to rid it of the influence of Communists and Red sympathizers.

Heading the housecleaning staff of the huge local will be UAW International President Walter Reuther, who has earned a reputation as one of the nation's most vigorous anti-Communists.

Reuther named himself chairman of a six-man board of administration directed early today to take over the local's affairs. The move followed a bitter, all-day hearing yesterday into Reuther's own charges that a relative handful of Communists dominate the Local's policies.

Local 600—long considered one of the most left-wing in the million-member Union—represents employes in Ford's vast River Rouge plant in Dearborn. Its peak membership has exceeded 65,000, but cutbacks in auto production have reduced that figure to roughly 45,000 now.

The seizure came under a provision in the UAW constitution barring Communists or persons subservient to Communism from holding local or international union office.

Reuther did not accuse the local's top officers of being Communists. But he did say they had allowed themselves to became the victims of "manipulations of a small but well - disciplined Communist group which exerts influence far beyond its actual members."

Reuther said the union's international executive board ordered the seizure and appointment of an administrative board "to put an end to Communist influence and manipulation."

CHICAGO, March 15 (AP)— All grains whirled higher on the Board of Trade today. Although final prices showed a marking down from the day's peaks, they still represented substantial gains.

Probably the feature of the trade was the revival in demand for wheat, which had been unable to make any progress this week while the rest of the market climbed. Another feature was a strong upward surge in deferred soybean contracts.

Wheat closed 1 to 2¾ higher, corn ⅝-1⅜ higher, oats ⅞-1¼ higher, rye 1¼ to 2 cents higher, soybeans 3¼-4¾ higher, and lard 10 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher.

IKE'S CAMPAIGN DRIVE UNDERWAY

PARIS, March 15 (AP)—The Eisenhower-for-President movement operated at full steam here today, some 4,000 miles and four months away from the Chicago nominating conventions.

Two key figures in the campaign to make Gen. Eisenhower the Republican standard bearer next November and the President next January had a chance to talk politics as dinner guests at his suburban home.

They were Paul G. Hoffman, who told reporters he believes the General can be nominated regardless of whether he returns home to campaign, and Gen. Lucios D. Clay, who said the New Hampshire primary proved Eisenhower "has a great and real hold on the American people."

Hoffman, former chief of the Economic Cooperan Administration (ECA) which put the Marshall Plan into practice, is co-chairman of the Citizens - for - Eisenhower organization.

Clay, former chief of U. S. force in Europe, describes himself as "a life-long Southern Democrat who puts the man above party" and forecasts Eisenhower could carry several Southern states.

Early in the day Eisenhower had a half hour talk at his headquarters, 12 miles west of Paris, with Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune and an outspoken booster of Sen. Robert A. Taft.

McCormick told reporters he and the Tribune would support Eisenhower for the Presidency if the general bested the Ohio senator in the race for the GOP nomination.

"I would support the Republican candidate," he said. "I supported Dewey, for God's sake."

This was a reference to McCormick's opposition to foreign policy advocated in 1948 by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who is now one of Eisenhower's backers. The General, meanwhile, has adopted many of Dewey's views on foreign policy.

The publisher said he and Eisenhower disagreed on foreign policy, but "didn't get warm about it" in their talk.

"We want the same things," he said. "We are just traveling different roads."

In separate statements to newsmen, Hoffman and Clay reflected some uncertainty within the Eisenhower camp as to what the General's next move should be.

Hoffman said "If Gen. Eisenhower comes home before the convention, it's a walk," and made it clear he would like for Eisenhower to return to speak on election issues.

Clay reported much conflicting advice had developed from discussion of the subject among the General's supporters.

"No two agreed on the same thing," he said. "Some think he should stay over here and others think he should return. I myself am not too sure."

Clay and Hoffman agreed Eisenhower probably would make up his own mind on the question of his return—unless Congress makes it up for him sooner.

Neville Speech Dept. Planning Production

If you are a harassed father, an amused mother, if you are a son or a daughter or a brother or a sister — in short, if you belong to a typical American family — —you may find yourself being humorously portrayed on the stage of the Neville auditorium, when the Neville speech department presents its coming attraction. The comedy "And Came the Spring" has been chosen for their next production.

"And Came the Spring" is the story of the Hartmans and their experiences during the first week of spring. You may have in your family as charming and exuberant daughter as Midge, just sixteen, who causes all the comic trouble. While Midge has characteristics of every girl her age, she is still unique. She starts tornadoes, she disrupts romances, she falls in love with the wrong boy, she drops a bombshell into her fathers business — Midge is a whirlwind. But the Hartmans love her and so will you.

Selection As Cheerleader Is Neville Honor

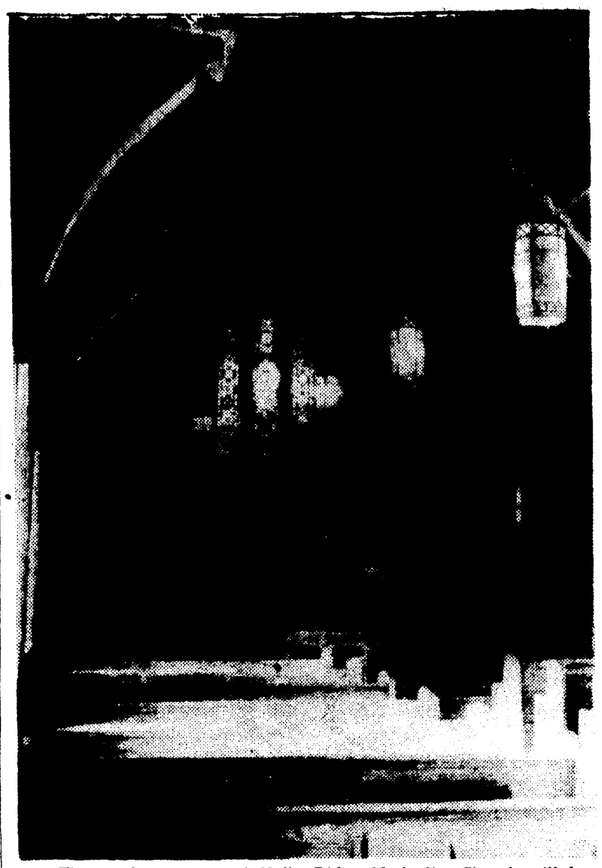
After three weeks of intensive training, twelve young aspirants went before the student body of Neville High School for the final selection of cheerleaders. To be selected as a varsity cheerleader at Neville is quite an honor and entails a great deal of responsibility. Each year the foursome is responsible for staging the huge pep meetings held during the fall, and in general to get the students behind the team for each of its games.

Not only are the four girls selected as cheerleaders a part of the school spirit program, but they have a definite and important role to play in the Tigerettes. Although these four girls do not participate in the drills as the group makes its many appearances over the state, they do lead this group in its colorful cheers and spirited support of the Tiger gridders wherever they play. The many parades that the Tigerettes appear in are lead by these colorful cheerleaders. The cheerleaders through the years have become a part of the Tigerettes, and fulfill a definite leadership role with them. The four pictured above will have a great deal to do with the success of the group in 1952.

The four girls will make their debut Friday at Tiger stadium as a part of the intra-squad game that is being staged as a climax to the spring grid drills by Coach Bill Ruple and his staff.

The Tigerettes and the cheerleaders will be divided into two groups, one rooting for the gold team of Tigers and one for the black team, all in anticipation of a big season in 1952!

TO BE DEDICATED TODAY



The newly constructed Holly Ridge Methodist Church will be dedicated today immediately following the 11 a. m. service by the Rev. Paul E. Martin, bishop of the Arkansas-Louisiana area. Pictured above is the chancel, finished in solid oak, which dominates the church.

Office Of Price Stabilization Orders Ceiling On Meat

Dollars-and-cents ceiling prices are placed on horsemeat and horsemeat products by the Office of Price Stabilization.

Horsemeat is used extensively as an ingredient in food products for animals, especially in dog food, and to a limited extent as a food for human consumption. The industry's estimated annual sales at retail are in excess of $100,000,000.

The ceilings, established by Ceiling Price Regulation 129, effective March 19, 1952, apply to sales of fresh, frozen and cured horsemeat at wholesale; fresh and frozen horsemeat at retail, and sales of canned horsemeat by processors only at whole sale and retail.

OPS estimated the regulation would leave the prices of canned and frozen horsemeat products used as food for dogs and other animals at approximately current levels.

FARM AND LIVESTOCK REVIEW

Artificial Breeding Is Praised By Successful Calhoun Dairy Operator

By Bert Hatten

McDaniel, considered by County Agent J. J. Joyce as one of the most successful dairymen in Ouachita parish, says production by his dairy cows shows an increase with each artificially bred generation. Though McDaniel's milking stock is not all artificial off-spring, he expects to eliminate natural bred stuff altogether in "two or three years."

McDaniel, whose place is located southwest of Calhoun, pastures on 193 acres and has a herd of 74 head of cattle (including his milking cows). He figures his 193 acres, with proper improvement, will support a herd of 100 cattle.

Pressing his argument for artificial breeding, McDaniel said "You can't beat it. It's actually foolish to practice natural breeding in a dairy herd."

He showed daily records to prove his convictions. They showed that milkers that were conceived artificially gave 43 pounds of milk per day, an amount considerably more than most cows give. None of his natural stock reached anything near that mark, he said.

Like many of the farmers in this section of the state, McDaniel is going out of row crop farming. He's turning his entire acreage into pasture land and expects to improve it throughout with recommended practices of fertilizing and grassing.

Last year McDaniel cultivated 30 acres in cotton. That plot is now being turned into a "night pasture" for his milking herd.

"When I get my pasturing built up to what I want, I expect to graze the year round," McDaniel said. "With proper fertilizing and seeding I can do it."

He is now grazing on one clover field which he opened up Feb. 15. Milk production jumped up almost over night after he turned in on the burly crop of crimson clover.

That particular field was fertilized last fall with 500 pounds of 3-12.12.

With immaculate planning and work, McDaniel is turning his 193 acres into more profits year after year. A veteran of World War II, McDaniel started out in 1947 with seven cows and six heifers.

Once he gets his herd built up to 100 head, which he considers his maximum capacity, he plans to sell off his bull calves and runty stuff each year, keeping his prime breeding stock. Believing that artifically bred calves grow into better cattle in all respects, McDaniel said he would continue to practice artifical insemination.

McDaniel vice-president of the Ouachita Valley Artifical Breeders' Association, explained why artificial breeding can be practiced at an advantage. "Semen from the best of bulls can be used by the little man who couldn't afford the price of such a prize bull."

"However, the membership fee in the breeders' association is relatively inexpensive and the servicing fees cost only $4 for each service."

A cattleman can become a lifetime member of the breeders association for $5. The $4 charge for each service is accepted with a provision that two extra services will be given free if a cow fails to concept the first time. The fourth time will cost $2.

Non - members are offered the services of the inseminator too. However non - members are recharged $6 for each service with two free repeats if necessary.

PAY HIGHER PRICES

Economists state that farmers will pay higher prices for practically all important supplies needed for farm production this year. Total production costs are expected to average about 5 per cent more than in 1951—which was an all-time high. With the general farm levels remaining about the same, the price-cost squeeze in 1952 for most farmers in Louisiana will be more acute.

USDA reports that "the use of fertilizers will increase, and such increase is in the interests of the national welfare."

Save Money, Pigs By Using Crate

Somebody got busy and figured out that one pig out of every six is killed by its mother. It seems the sow lies on the small pigs and kills them unintentionally.

Swine producers — aware that they were losing money carrying dead pigs from their pens—developed a farrowing crate. This crate prevents little pigs from getting crushed.

A swine producer has found it easy to get the sow to use the "crate" by leading her into it once or twice.

J. J. Joyce, local county agent, says the crate, sometimes referred to as a stall or jacket, almost eliminates the crushing of pigs. Joyce said it also makes it easy to handle and treat the sow.

Besides this, the crate allows the transferring of pig from one litter to another and sows and pigs can be kept in the crate until ready to move to pasture sheds.

Crates are not expensive to build.

Fertilizer From Factory To Farm Is Moving Slow

At present the movement of fertilizer from the factory to the farm is lagging from two to three weeks behind that of last year at this time. Further delay in ordering the fertilizer supply that will be needed at planting time now at hand has raised the threat of a serious fertilizer shortage this spring, according to J. J. Joyce, county agent.

He explains the situation as being one of filled warehouse storage space. He says that in anticipation of the need for large fertilizer supplies, manufacturers have turned out full production.

Factory storage has been filled. Movement from storage to farms has been delayed, therefore, factories have had to cut back on production necessary to produce the total fertilizer supply expected. The critical situation exists in Louisiana as elsewhere in the nation.

The agronomist says that storage facilities are being taxed so severely now that you might not be able to get the fertilizer you need later on. Figure out what materials you'll need for the crops you expect to plant. Store fertilizer on the farm until you need it. You will have it when you need it, and you don't have to bother about a shortage later on.

WINNSBORO, La., March 15—(Special)—Farming in Franklin parish is paying off. The sale of crops, livestock and livestock products brought farmers a total income of $10,273,400 last year.

The average annual income per farmer back in 1945 was $1,125. In 1951, it had jumped to $2,170. The farmers in Franklin parish today are making more money; more land is being utilized for pastures and crops, and the agricultural business as a whole is booming.

Agricultural development in Franklin parish in the past five years has resulted from wiser farming methods and utilization of more acres.

There are a total of 414,720 acres in Franklin parish. Of this area, 303,662 acres, or 73 per cent of the parish, are being put to use by educated farmers who know how to get the most out of each acre.

Crops harvested in the parish last year alone sold for $8,823,400. Livestock and livestock products sold for $1,450,000.

Cattle

In 1950, farmers sold 11,424 head of beef cattle, an increase of 3,853 head sold in 1945. But fewer farms —420 less than in 1945 — are raising cattle.

A report compiled by Guy A. Luno, Franklin parish agricultural agent, showed that 163 head of cattle were butchered on farms in 1950 as compared with only 79 in 1945. Total number of beef cattle butchered in 1950 was 216. Only 103 were butchered in 1945.

Sale of dairy products in 1951 paid farmers a total of $306,705, an increase of $30,750 over 1945. Cows in Franklin parish last year produced 2,961,000 gallons of milk, of which 620,000 gallons were sold for $302,902. Forty farms sold cream last year for a total of $3,192 and butter brought producers $611.

Swine

Swine - raising in Franklin parish last year had increased by 102 over the number raised in 1945. Farmers raised 16,957 swine in 1951 and sold them for $166,000. This was an increase of $73,000 over the 1945 profit.

Cotton

The number of farms growing cotton numbered 4,052 in 1951. That figure is 107 farms shy of the 1945 number, but more bales of cotton were grown in 1951 than in 1954. In 1951, 56,541 bales were ginned and in 1945, 38,610 bales were ginned. The yield per acre in 1951 was 332 pounds as compared with 310 pounds in 1945.

Other Farm Goods

Besides cotton, swine, and cattle, farmers have also turned to poultry, which netted them a total of $61,700 in 1951; sheep-raising, which paid off to the tune of $1,870 last year, and oats, and corn which helps supplement their incomes.

Farm Facts

A 1951 census revealed that there were 1,333 farm owners in Franklin parish as compared to only 1,014 in 1935 and 1,280 in 1945. Of the 1951 total, 1,165 of the farm owners were white and the remaining 168 were Negroes.

The average size of a Franklin parish farm in 1951 was 64 acres. The farm population was counted at 19,510 last year.

On the road to more profits per acre, farmers in Franklin parish are striving to better their impressive gains in the past and produce more livestock and crops in 1952. It pays off.

FARM LABOR LESS

Farm labor supply will be smaller in 1952 including both seasonal and year-round workers. Defense industries and the armed forces will be the major factors drawing on the farm labor force. Farm wage rates are expected to average around 5 per cent higher than in 1951. Increasing use of labor-saving machinery and practices, with increased production per man unit, may help offset the effects of a further decrease in the farm labor supply.

ORDER INSECTICIDES

An early purchase of at least a part of the insecticides needed during 1952 is being urged by all agricultural authorities. With some shortages already apparent, farmers should plan ahead for needed supplies. The problem of storage accommodations for large quantities of insecticides at mixing plants is a serious one. Late orders may sometimes have to wait until the plant can mix them. By that time it may be too late for their use.

BEAN VARIETIES ARE SUGGESTED

Now is the time to contact your seed dealer and ask him to stock up with the recommended varieties of snap beans. The results at the Louisiana Agricultural Experiment Station show the Green Savage and Canfreezer pole snap beans outyielded all other varieties in the trial. These two pole snap bean varieties were introduced by the Louisiana Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Canfreezer starts fruiting from the ground and fruits right to the top of the vine. Pods are slender, round, green, which make it an ideal bean for freezing and canning as well as for the fresh market and home use. It is a week to ten days earlier than the old standard variety, Kentucky Wonder. It is more rust resistant than Kentucky Wonder.

Green Savage is a cross between the Savage Wonder, a bean grown locally in Louisiana, and the Canfreezer. It is somewhat larger than the Kentucky Wonder, but a little later than the Canfreezer in bearing. It is more rust resistant than Kentucky Wonder. The beans are round, firm, dark green and rather straight. Green Savage usually outyields all other varieties in the spring. These varieties of pole snap beans should be planted in place of the old varieties.

The Contender, a bush snap bean is an excellent market bean. Contender outyields all other varieties in production. It was developed by the U. S. D. A. It is resistant to common bean mosaic, one of the factors that usually lowers the yield, appearance, quality, and final grade of snap beans. It is resistant to powdery mildew. It develops marketable pods in about 50 days. The quality is better than some of the present favorites in this yield. This variety is recommended mainly for commercial planting in place of stringless Black Valentine. For home garden, Giant Stringless is still a good variety to plant.

For more information on beans, ask your county or home demonstration agent for extension Leaflet No. 6, "Bush Beans as a Truck Crop".

PLANT SOON FOR LARGE POTATOES

(Extension Horticulturist)

Sweet potatoes planted in late April and early May usually produce short, stocky roots which develop into the jumbo size unless certain precautions are taken at planting time.

By spacing plants about eight inches apart in the row a more ideal size and type potato will be produced when the plants are set in early May or late April.

Plants are much more expensive during early spring and for this reason farmers should make every effort to get the most from those planted early. On a 42-inch row basis, some 18,900 plants are required per acre when set eight inches apart in the row. Vine cuttings can be taken from these early planted draws at a later date to make additional plantings. This can be done without reducing yields to any appreciable extent.

Growers have been advised by the various experts and authorities that the 1952 crop of sweet potatoes will probably not demand the price received for the 1951 crop. Indications are that the 1952 acreage will be higher than that of 1951 and yields per acre should increase also, as the 1951 season was not a good one for sweet potato production.

Sweet potatoes planted early can be spaced closer together because they have a longer period in which to grow and will normally get an adequate supply of plant food elements. Sweet potato plants will not grow satisfactorily if the soil temperature is below 70 degrees fahrenheit. For this reason vigorous plants with a good root system are necessary for best results. Vine cuttings do not grow well when planted too early, especially if the soil is cold.

Soil preparation is one of the most important phases of sweet potato production. In preparing the land for planting, keep in mind the fact that summer months when high temperatures make working in sweet potato fields an unpleasant task.

For best results use only the best of certified plants or plants from stock which is known to have excellent quality. Apply fertilizer in the row at least 10 days before planting.

Set Important Farm Meetings For March

WINNSBORO, La., March 15 (Special)—Guy A. Luno, Franklin parish agricultural agent, has announced three important meetings for this month.

On March 19, at 2 p. m. in the American Legion Hall at Winnsboro, there will be a parish-wide meeting of cotton growers. This meeting is for the purpose of instructing farmers on the use of chemicals to control weeds and grass in order to eliminate hoeing of cotton.

The public is invited.

On March 26, at 2 p. m. there will be a poultry meeting for those interested in poultry and laying flocks at the R. P. McLemore farm, Gilbert. Clyde Ingram, poultry specialist, agricultural extension service, L. S. U. will discuss poultry production and laying flocks.

Twelve farmers have built laying houses and secured baby chicks for 500 hen laying flocks this fall. The eggs from these flocks will be sold for both eating and hatching purposes.

Three broiler houses in Franklin parish have been completed.

On March 28, there will be a parish - wide pasture tour sponsored by the Franklin parish Cattlemen's association.

R. A. Wasson and W. E. Monroe, pasture specialists of L. S. U. extension service will assist the local agent and cattlemen in the tour.

Farmers Secure Soybean Seeds

WINNSBORO, La., March 14. (Special) — According to agricultural agent Guy A. Luno, four Franklin parish farmers have secured improved Pelican soybeans for planting this year, from the experiment station at L. S. U.

These seed will be certified and grown for seed reproduction purposes. These soybeans have been developed for late planting after oat harvest. The farmers planting the new seed are: Carl Shipp, Wisner; E. B. Butler, Winnsboro; Lantz Womack, Swampers, and John T. Carroll, Route 1, Gilbert. They will be connected with the Louisiana Crop Improvement association.

BERMUDA GRASS BEAUTIFIES LAWN

Now in the same efficient, easy way that plug - in appliances clear up household chores, grass - plugs build beautiful lawns. No back - breaking spading, forking, sowing . . . no harvest of weeds and bare spots . . . fine-bladed, rapid growth U-3 Bermuda grass sod plugs set in existing lawn bare spots or newly prepared lawns spread quickly to form a tough, dense, green lawn — choking out crab - grass and summer weeds as it spreads.

This is no dream of things to come . . . U-3 grass-plugs are here, now, after years of rigorous experiment and testing by the United States Golf Association, green section working with the bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture at Beltsville, Md., and a large number of experiment stations throughout the country.

U-3, a Bermuda grass grows no seed . . . is planted from sod as small "plugs." It thrives during hot, dry weather with little or no watering, is highly disease resistant, is a special strain developed specifically for hot, sunny areas where ordinary grasses "burn out." It will not, in fact, grow in sunless areas. It can be mowed as short as a lawn mower can be set without injury to the turf. It is very resistant to wear.

U-3 Bermuda grass has been grown with great success in Louisiana . . . is particularly suited to the state's climate.

Green from mid-spring through all hot weather months. U-3 Bermuda grass loses its green color after several hard frosts, to turn green again when the ground warms. Winter color is achieved by over - seeding with cool - season grasses. The thick turf formed by U-3 protects the roots of cool-season grasses from summer heat. U-3 Bermuda grass-plugs, planted 12 inches apart will spread to cover the entire planted area in six to eight weeks except where competition is unusually severe. U - 3 should be mowed weekly and fertilized occasionally.

FARM AND LIVESTOCK REVIEW

By Bert Hatten

McDaniel, considered by County Agent J. J. Joyce as one of the most successful dairymen in Ouachita parish, says production by his dairy cows shows an increase with each artificially bred generation. Though McDaniel's milking stock is not all artificial off-spring, he expects to eliminate natural bred stuff altogether in "two or three years."

McDaniel, whose place is located southwest of Calhoun, pastures on 193 acres and has a herd of 74 head of cattle (including his milking cows). He figures his 193 acres, with proper improvement, will support a herd of 100 cattle.

Pressing his argument for artificial breeding, McDaniel said "You can't beat it. It's actually foolish to practice natural breeding in a dairy herd."

He showed daily records to prove his convictions. They showed that milkers that were conceived artificially gave 43 pounds of milk per day, an amount considerably more than most cows give. None of his natural stock reached anything near that mark, he said.

Like many of the farmers in this section of the state, McDaniel is going out of row crop farming. He's turning his entire acreage into pasture land and expects to improve it throughout with recommended practices of fertilizing and grassing.

Last year McDaniel cultivated 30 acres in cotton. That plot is now being turned into a "night pasture" for his milking herd.

"When I get my pasturing built up to what I want, I expect to graze the year round," McDaniel said. "With proper fertilizing and seeding I can do it."

He is now grazing on one clover field which he opened up Feb. 15. Milk production jumped up almost over night after he turned in on the burly crop of crimson clover.

That particular field was fertilized last fall with 500 pounds of 3-12.12.

With immaculate planning and work, McDaniel is turning his 193 acres into more profits year after year. A veteran of World War II, McDaniel started out in 1947 with seven cows and six heifers.

Once he gets his herd built up to 100 head, which he considers his maximum capacity, he plans to sell off his buli calves and runty stuff each year, keeping his prime breeding stock. Believing that artifically bred calves grow into better cattle in all respects, McDaniel said he would continue to practice artifical insemination.

"However, the membership fee in the breeders' association is relatively inexpensive and the servicing fees cost only $4 for each service."

A cattleman can become a lifetime member of the breeders association for $5. The $4 charge for each service is accepted with a provision that two extra services will be given free if a cow fails to concept the first time. The fourth time will cost $2.

Non - members are offered the services of the inseminator too. However non - members are recharged $6 for each service with two free repeats if necessary.

U-3 grass-plugs are here, now, after years of rigorous experiment and testing by the United States Golf Association, green section working with the bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture at Beltsville, Md., and a large number of experiment stations throughout the country.

U-3, a Bermuda grass grows no seed . . . is planted from sod as small "plugs." It thrives during hot, dry weather with little or no watering, is highly disease resistant, is a special strain developed specifically for hot, sunny areas where ordinary grasses "burn out." It will not, in fact, grow in sunless areas. It can be mowed as short as a lawn mower can be set without injury to the turf. It is very resistant to wear.

U-3 Bermuda grass has been grown with great success in Louisiana . . . is particularly suited to the state's climate.

Green from mid-spring through all hot weather months, U-3 Bermuda grass loses its green color after several hard frosts, to turn green again when the ground warms. Winter color is achieved by over - seeding with cool - season grasses. The thick turf formed by U-3 protects the roots of cool-season grasses from summer heat. U-3 Bermuda grass-plugs, planted 12 inches apart will spread to cover the entire planted area in six to eight weeks except where competition is unusually severe. U - 3 should be mowed weekly and fertilized occasionally.

Save Money, Pigs By Using Crate

Somebody got busy and figured out that one pig out of every six is killed by its mother. It seems the sow lies on the small pigs and kills them unintentionally.

Swine producers — aware that they were losing money carrying dead pigs from their pens—developed a farrowing crate. This crate prevents little pigs from getting crushed.

A swine producer has found it easy to get the sow to use the "crate" by leading her into it once or twice.

J. J. Joyce, local county agent, says the crate, sometimes referred to as a stall or jacket, almost eliminates the crushing of pigs. Joyce said it also makes it easy to handle and treat the sow.

Besides this, the crate allows the transferring of pig from one litter to another and sows and pigs can be kept in the crate until ready to move to pasture sheds.

Crates are not expensive to build.

Fertilizer From Factory To Farm Is Moving Slow

At present the movement of fertilizer from the factory to the farm is lagging from two to three weeks behind that of last year at this time. Further delay in ordering the fertilizer supply that will be needed at planting time now at hand has raised the threat of a serious fertilizer shortage this spring, according to J. J. Joyce, county agent.

He explains the situation as being one of filled warehouse storage space. He says that in anticipation of the need for large fertilizer supplies, manufacturers have turned out full production.

Factory storage has been filled. Movement from storage to farms has been delayed, therefore, factories have had to cut back on production necessary to produce the total fertilizer supply expected. The critical situation exists in Louisiana as elsewhere in the nation.

The agronomist says that storage facilities are being taxed so severely now that you might not be able to get the fertilizer you need later on. Figure out what materials you'll need for the crops you expect to plant. Store fertliizer on the farm until you need it. You will have it when you need it, and you don't have to bother about a shortage later on.

Taxi Is Integral Part Of Life In The Soviet Union

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, (AP)—The taxi has become an integral part of city life in the Soviet Union.

There are more of them in Moscow than in any other Soviet city, for Moscow is the biggest and has the largest number of railway stations. Likewise it is a sprawling city of considerable distances.

There are two kinds of taxis, generally speaking, in the capital. The Pobeda is the most common. It is painted grey with a checkerboard edging around the middle of the car from front to back. It seats four people besides the driver. The Zis is a very large taxi and it too is painted grey with a checkerboard edging. The main difference is that the Zis costs more per kilometer ride than does the Pobeda.

These two taxis are for private, individual hire.

In the summer time there are open air taxis, seating about 12 or 15 along two benches in the back. These run along established routes and are considerably cheaper than the checkerboard taxis.

Then there is the taxi truck. Like the Pobeda and Zis taxis, it is equipped with a meter. You pay for the length and time of your trip. The truck is used principally in moving and is in great vogue in the summertime when people move from the cities to country places.

There are regular taxi stands located about the city and at the principal hotels and railways stations. You may also telephone for a taxi from your home. The process: Call a taxi stand nearest your home. If you don't know where it is, then call information and the person on duty will tell you. Then you telephone the taxi stand, giving your address and name.

The taxi stand will telephone you back, checking the address and name and then will give you the number of the taxi on its way. You pay the fare shown on the meter at the end of the journey.

Taxi drivers in Russia are great conversationalists as they are in many countries and are often authorities on many subjects. Or pretend to be.

The dispatch does not give typical rates for taxi rides in Moscow. All mention of prices normally is banned by censorship.

CENTENARY CHOIR CHARMS

Bright, swirling costumes flash by in the old-time square dance, put in the modern realm by the Centenary College Choir. "Country Style", the musical accompaniment to the dance, is everybodys' style when the caller starts his rhythmic chant. Local lovers of the square dance will hear and see this number on the concert to be presented March 21, 8 p.m. at Brown Auditorium sponsored by Wesley Foundation of N. L. S. C.

CHOIR'S TONES LIKE PIPE ORGAN

"The voices in the Centenary College Choir resemble nothing less than the sweet, sustained tones of a great pipe organ."

This statement was made by Dr. Fred G. Ellis of the Shreveport Rotary Club in an attempt to describe the successful blend of voices which has been achieved by the choir's director, Alvin C. Voran.

The forty nine voice musical group will appear in concert on Friday, March 21 at 8 p. m. in Brown Auditorium.

For the past five years the choir, representing Centenary College, has watched its fame grow steadily. It is recognized as one of the finest college choirs in America today.

Every year during the first week of September, Voran puts them through a full schedule of physical conditioning and rehearsals at Camp Beeneaire on Lake Bistineau in Webster Parish, Louisiana. This week at camp, according to Voran, is more valuable than a month's regular rehearsals during the school term.

He thinks choir camp plays an important part in creating an espirit de corps among members. He feels that "the morale and the spirit of cooperation which camp life engenders, contribute as much to their performances as good singing. By having students live and work together for a week at camp, the foundation is laid for harmonious group life later."

Members do more than sing, according to Voran. He believes in an "all-together" philosophy which gives each student a sense of his own responsibility. Representatives from each voice section form a board of directors to assist elected officers. The two groups form an executive council which collaborates with Voran on choir policy.

STATE POLICE

Thirteen persons were arrested by members of Troop F of the Louisiana State Police during the last week for highway violations. For the first time in several weeks no drunken driving cases were reported; however, several cases of reckless driving were listed.

Henry E. Atkins, 25, Farmerville Road, Ruston, was apprehended and charged with negligent homicide, and N. L. Johnson, 23-year-old Negro from Camp Chaffee, Ark., was charged with aiding and abetting a criminal.

Other cases listed were:

Speeding, Carl L. Winslett, 27, 514, W. 74th street, Shreveport, and Elijah Sheared, 25, Negro, 814 S. Haggarty street, Bastrop.

PUBLIC FORUM

FOR PASSMAN

Monroe, La.
Mar. 14, 1952.
To The Editor:

I have not always agreed with our friend and congressman, Otto E. Passman, but doubtless every citizen of the fifth district, including some of his former political opponents, will readily admit that he is the best congressman Louisiana has sent to Washington in many a moon.

To condemn a person for supporting his choice for state public office is akin to condemning the Constitution of the United States.

If Congressman Passman violated an established principle in speaking for his choice in the governor's race, then all other members of the Louisiana congressional delegation violated that same principle. So, if we are to condemn Passman for supporting the loser, then likewise we should condemn these members who supported the winner, if we are sticking to what we term, 'principle'.

Passman demonstrated his true color when he opposed the Truman wreck - all tax bill last year. Again he demonstrated his courage when he condemned President Truman for firing General MacArthur in a fit of anger and doubtless out of malice. We should all admire Congressman Passman for being big enough to oppose President Truman, even at the loss of his political patronage.

I believe I speak the sentiment of a great majority of the farmers when I say that Passman has been the best friend to the farmer that this district ever sent to congress. What he has accomplished for the farmer and in flood control development is known by every citizen in the fifth district and any comment on this score should be nothing less than commendation for him.

I admire Passman in particular because when you write him the response is immediate and he never hesitates to make clear his position on any issue.

Passman must be considered a big man in Washington; otherwise, he never would have been made a member of the powerful appropriations committee over many congressmen with longer seniority. I doubt if Passman would have been sent to Japan to confer with General MacArthur, to Paris to confer with General Eisenhower, and will soon be sent on a dangerous mission to China, Korea and Formosa in the interest of peace and security, if he had not been recognized as an outstanding business man and a man with some brains.

I like to consider a man's good points along with his bad. Those of us who have kept up with Passman's record readily recognize that he is a valuable man in the congress and that his good points far out-number his bad ones.

In this day of trouble and uncertainty when our very freedom is at stake, should we not cooperate with our friend and congressman and keep him in the high position in the congress that he has attained where he can continue to represent this district in a manner that is a credit to the nation.

Hoping that some day we will have more men of Passman's caliber in Washington, I conclude.

CURTIS TO RISK LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

SEROIS SEEKING TO REGAIN MAT CROWN TUESDAY

Jack Curtis, newly recrowned world's light heavyweight wrestling champion, will put his title in jeopardy again Tuesday night at Gus Kallio's Arena to "Buff" Serois, the man who wrested it from him on the west coast only a little over a year ago.

The match, a 90-minute main event affair, will be the second bout on Tuesday's program, as Ellis Bashara, the Oklahoma "Sooner," returns for the semi-final against "Sailor" Moran.

The championship bout was arranged immediately following last week's mat show at Kallio's. Serois, who wrestled Bashara in a preliminary bout that night, leaped into the ring as Curtis was putting the finishing touches on Sugi Hayamaka in the main event and demanded that Curtis accept his challenge.

Curtis, always the crowd-pleaser, took the ringside microphone from Kallio and said in very formal tones that ' I will take on any challengers regardless of who they may be."

In the meantime Serois was explaining to the crowds in an aside that he had beaten Curtis before and that he could do it again. Curtis agreed that he had and continued, "You beat a good man here tonight, I don't know how but you did. And I have just finished a tough match myself. I will take you on in this arena next Tuesday night, and if you want me bad enough I'll take you on right now."

The crowd was loudly yelling for Curtis to do just that, but Kallio managed to clam them down with the announcement that Serois was doing nothing but challenging for the bout and that no insult had been offered to Curtis.

Both Serois and Curtis are well known here by the fans. Curtis, in Serois' words, has been "Monroe's fair - haired boy" for a good many years, but the general estimate of the fans' opinion of Serois is not suitable for print.

The semi - final bout should be a good show, since Bashara and Moran are considered two of the best wrestlers on this circuit. Bashara has won the general approval of the fans, after getting off to a bad start in his first two matches here, and now is cheered loudly whenever he enters the ring.

His opponent, Moran, is not thought of quite so highly although his few appearances here in recent months haven't given the fans much chance to form an opinion, although they don't usually need much of a chance.

Both matches will go two falls to win, but the semi-final will have only an hour time. The curtain will go up on the first show at 8 p.m. The doors will open at 7 p.m.

The city of Collingswood, N. J., has erected a monument to Howard "Skeets" Irvine, former University of New Hampshire end, who coached there for more than 20 years.

BAPTISTS BATTLE FOR LOOP CROWN

Decide Church Cage League Champions Here Tuesday

Recreation League basketball winds up the slate for this year Tuesday night when the Monroe Baptists and the West Monroe Baptists tangle in the final game of the Church League at 6:30 p. m. in the Selman Field gymnasium.

The two Baptist teams, first and second in the regular season's games, now have one win and loss each in the final playoffs.

The West Monroe Baptists took the first game of the best two-of-three final series, after whipping Loch Arbor in the semi-finals, but the Monroe Baptists who overcame M. Y. F. in the first round, evened the score a few nights later.

The Church League is the only circuit in the Recreation League which has not yet decided a champion.

Rosy Ryan, general manager of the Millers, said it was a straight cash deal, but he did not disclose the amount.

Texas Leaguers Visit Ruston For Game At 3 O'Clock

RUSTON, La., March 15.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's diamond squad had workouts scheduled right down to the wire as they prepared for their first test Monday at 3 p.m. here against the Shreveport Sports.

The game will be played at Tech field and no admission will be charged, according to Joe Aillet, director of athletics.

Baseball Coach Berry Hinton, meanwhile, has been putting a keen eye on the squad in recent practice sessions and from a flock of freshman hopefuls, the diamond mentor rates the chances good for strong talent to bolster the nucleus of eight returning lettermen.

Among the newcomers are a number of eager hurlers, all of whom hold fine high school records. The new moundsmen include Bob Humble, Calhoun, sophomore; Charles Crabtree, Shreveport; Jack Maxey, Sibley; Billy Till, Bernice; Donnie Walker, Ruston; and Bobby Lee, Monroe.

Candidates for outfield posts are freshmen Joe Meeks of Rayville, Max Rowland of Junction City, Ark., Barnie Smith of Goodwill, and Scott "Sonny" Wiggers of Winnsboro.

The game Monday with Shreveport's Sports is a traditional season-opener for the Bulldogs and at this stage of practice, Coach Hinton has narrowed the field of candidates likely to land starting berths against the visitors.

James Carroll Farrar of Lillie and George Ferrington of Winnsboro will alternate behind the plate, with Berry coming in for a share of those duties, also.

At first base, Sam Cox of Ruston is likely to be the featured performer except when he meets his turn on the mound. On those days, Dick Vroome, Shreveport freshman, will take over at first base.

The first three horses in the finish of a mile-and-one half race this season at Hialeah were all sired by Greentree Farm stallions.

Draft Deferment For Vinegar Bend

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 15.—(AP)—Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, one of the promising rookies with the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he had been granted a draft deferment.

He reported he had received a notice of 3A (dependency) draft classification.

Mizell, who was the strikeout king of the Texas League last year, was given a 1-A draft classification by his hometown board at Leaksville, Miss. He appealed to the state board at Jackson, Miss.

The big south paw said a mother and grandmother are dependent upon him.

Mizell, 21, had a 16-14 record with Houston last season. In his first exhibition game this spring he whiffed five of the first nine men to face him. But yesterday the Washington Senators got five hits off him in the first inning.

Doris Hart On Winning Doubles Team In Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt, March 15.—(AP)—Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., won the women's doubles title of the Egyptian International Tennis Tournament today by defeating Mrs. B. B. Abbas and Georgiana Greiss in straight sets. The scores were 8-6, 6-3.

Straight Clark, Pasadena, Calif., recovering from a three-day siege of the flu, and Wladislaw Skonecki, self - exiled Pole, lost to Rolando Del Bello of Italy, and Jaroslav Drobny, now of Egypt, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, in the final of the men's doubles.

Tigers Figure Track Also Beneficial To Grid Players

JONESBORO, La., March 15.—(Special)—The Jonesboro - Hodge High School track and field team began going through its paces for the coming season with workouts starting under Coaches Jack Jaggers and Tabarlet.

The 1951 team placed sixth in the state meet, with Floyd Fullerton getting a first place award in the hop, step and jump with a 41 feet, 7-inch effort.

Track and football are worked hand in glove at the Jonesboro - Hodge with the speed which has become a trademark of the local grid team largely due to the experience in running gained through track. Last season, for example, the Tigers' starting backfield was composed of the same four boys who ran in the 440-yard relay races.

Although the thinclads have lost many fine competitors from last year, another good season is anticipated. Gone are State Champion Floyd Fullerton, crack hurdler Dean "Doak" Walker, and shotputter Orlando Hughes among others.

But a fine sprint team appears to be shaping up from Travis "Speedy" Hall, Kenneth "Zero" Brown, and Joe Harveston. 440-yard dash candidates are Allen Barthelemy, Freddie Mac Pardue, Bobby Joe Folks and Tommy Shively.

Leading distance prospects at the moment seem to be Doyle Walker, Matt Calloway and Billy Ted Walsworth. Stanley Pope appears to have just about clinched the hurdles spot, both high and low hurdles. In the field department, Don Swanner and Tommy 'Doc" Murphy are working on the broad jump, with "Hezzie" Irvin and Tommy Joe Brown the high jumpers. The weight throwers likely will be Wayne Shows in the shotput and discus, with Tommy Weeks also around to put the shot and Leonard Brantley tossing the javelin.

Schedule calls for the boys to compete in their first meet against Winnfield at Winnfield on Friday, March 21 at 2:30 p.m. The team plans to attend meets at Northwestern State, Southwestern and Louisiana Tech, before the state meet on May 4-5.

DETROIT, March 15.—(AP)—Vic Hershkowitz, a 33-year-old New York fireman from Brooklyn, won the U. S. Handball Association and A. A. U. Singles championships here today in a dramatic comeback after a pulled leg muscle hobbled him and put him on the floor twice.

Hershkowitz, who won the national championship in 1949, defeated Ken Schneider, of Chicago, 21-11 and 21-16 in the finals of the combined U. S. and A. A. U. tourney.

Frank Coyle and Bill Baier, of Chicago, won the combined doubles championship with 21-18 and 21-14 victories over Sam Haber and Pat Cannon, also of Chicago.

LA-MISS-ARK CAGE TOURNEY HERE SATURDAY

NICHOLS MOTORS SPONSORS EVENT FOR 2ND SEASON

Field Open To Strong Independent, College Quintets

The second annual Nichols Motors Independent Basketball Tournament, renamed the Independent Louisiana - Mississippi - Arkansas Championship Tournament, will be run off here next Saturday at the Ouachita Parish High School gymnasium, it was announced by Curtis Nichols, sponsor of the event, just before he left with his Nichols Motors quintet to appear in the Jonesville Lions Club Gold Medal meet.

The La-Miss-Ark tourney will be open to boys' teams only and entries will be limited to the first twelve independent or college teams filing entriees before the deadline Wednesday.

Already the show this season is expected to be bigger and better than the 1951 program that attracted the finest independent quintets in this section.

Five teams are already registered for the tournament. Nichols named the clubs already entered as:

Tom's Peanuts, a Natchitoches machine that has gone undefeated in 76 games this season and recently won the Tri-State Tournament at Shreveport.

Kilpatrick - Gresham Motors of Jonesboro, defending champions of the La-Miss-Ark, and runner-up to Tom's Peanuts in the Tri-State.

Wayne Confectionery, Warren, Ark., with a 44-2 record for the season and winner of the Arkansas A. A. U. championship Thursday.

And the lone college entry so far, Northeast Louisiana State College, now coached by Cary Phillips who handled the Nichols outfit last season.

Other independent or college teams of the three states are invited to participate and the next first seven entries received will be accepted to complete the 12-team field.

Majors May Quit California Bases If Coast League Park Ban Sticks

Difficulties May Be Ironed Out At Tuesday Meeting

LOS ANGELES, March 15 (AP)—Representatives of six major league baseball clubs and the eight teams in the Pacific Coast League will sit down in what may be rather chilly atmosphere here Tuesday to discuss a coast ban directed at the big leaguers.

The coasters recently voted to bar major league teams from playing each other in coast league parks, effective next spring. Exhibitions between a major and a coast team are all right.

The majors called their meeting first, to discuss the 1953 spring schedule. Days later the coasters announced they would meet, too, on the same day, at the same hotel, the Biltmore.

The sessions will be in different rooms but unquestionably the two groups will get together.

Involved are the majors training in the west — the New York Giants, the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and the two Chicago clubs.

Presidents Horace Stoneham of the Giants and Bill Veeck of St. Louis have threatened to shun California entirely if the rule sticks.

Cleveland has indicated it will go along with a move elsewhere, and the other teams seem to be awaiting further developments.

Coast League President Clarence Rowland said today that as far as he knows, there will be no relaxing of the policy. He said it was voted unanimously.

He emphasized the coast clubs are highly desirous of letting the big boys in the PCL parks, but only against coast loop teams.

"We are more than willing to break bread with them, but we don't want them to carry the dishes away," he said.

The coast move presumably was taken to (1) increase its revenue from the spring games, and (2) lessen the inevitable emphasis on major lague baseball, coming, as it does, just before the coast league season gets underway.

The majors view the move as an affront, and unjustified.

They pointed to the current exhibition schedule and claimed it could hardly work to the financial disadvantage of the coasters.

The majors will participate in 60 games.

Of this, 22 were billed against coast teams, in coast league parks, and 10 against coast teams in non-league cities.

That's a total of 32 major-coast league games.

The majors booked 10 games between themselves in coast league parks, and 18 between themselves in non-league parks.

That's a total of 28 all-major league exhibitions.

Most observers believe the differences will be settled without undue bloodshed. After all, Cub owner Phil K. Wrigley also owns the Los Angeles Club and the biggest park in the PCL, and Branch Rickey of Pittsburgh owns $75,000 worth of stock in Hollywood.

LINCOLN ENJOYS BANNER OPENING

Whirling Bat Beats Ariel's Mark In Inaugural 'Cap

LINCOLN, R. I., March 15 (AP)—A record opening day crowd of 27,000 persons turned out to bet more than a million dollars in near freezing weather today as Lincoln Downs began a 30-day spring meeting — earliest start in the history of thoroughbred racing in New England.

They set a new opening day record handle by wagering $1,684,735 to top the old mark of $980,483. It was well below the all time high of $1,553,044 set last Armistice Day.

The $3,000 featured Inaugural Handicap was won by T. G. May's Whirling Bat, which scored its first victory since last November after an unsuccessful winter campaign.

The Whirlaway colt scored by five lengths of A. P. Cotter's Ariel's Mark to win the seven-furlong sprint for three-year-olds and up with the favored C. L. Dupuys' Crystal Pass third. Whirling Bat's time was 1:28 and one-fifth.

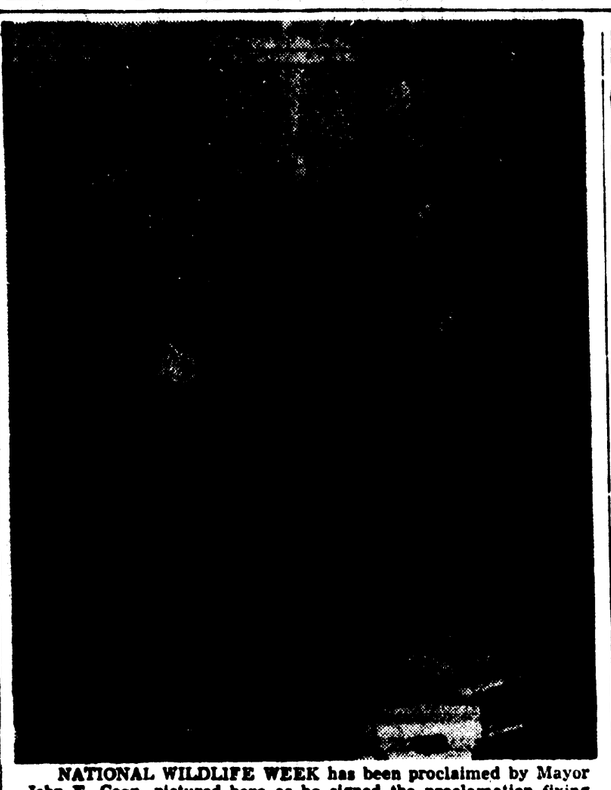
Jack Noble's Essential, the early leader, led the way into the back stretch. Then Jockey Clarence Roberts aboard Whirling Bat sent his mount between horses halfway down the back stretch where he easily took command. Ariel's Mark could not match Whirling Bat's closing drive.

Whirling Bat paid $11.20, $5.60 and $3.10. Ariel's Mark returned $10.40 and $4.60 with the favorite, Crystal Pass, paying $2.60 after finishing three lenghs back. Essential was fourth.

Concordia Will Observe National Wildlife Week

FERRIDAY, La., March 15.—(Special)—The Concordia Wildlife Association will join the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, Inc., and organized conservationists throughout the country in observing National Wildlife Week from March 16 through March 22, according to Eugene Fleming, Vidalia, president of the Concordia unit.

National Wildlife Week was first started in 1928 by proclamation of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt for the purpose of calling attention to the need for united action in conserving and restoring America's dwindling natural resources, Fleming said. It has been sponsored annually since 1938 by the National Wildlife Federation and state affiliates.



NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK has been proclaimed by Mayor John E. Coon, pictured here as he signed the proclamation fixing the week of today through Saturday for observance of good wildlife and conservation practices. Pictured (standing) with Mayor Coon is J. B. Thoman, president of the Ouachita unit of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

Monroe Called Upon By Mayor Coon To Observe National Wildlife Week

Thoman Of Ouachita Unit Urges Member Participation

Monroe and Ouachita parish have been called upon to observe National Wildlife Week, beginning today and running through Sunday, Mayor John E. Coon of Monroe yesterday proclaimed this wildlife week, and J. B. Thoman, president of the Ouachita unit of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation urged members of his organization to exert every effort this week to call attention of the public to the needs of wildlife and conservation.

Wildlife Week was first proclaimed on a national basis by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938, but this is the first time that Ouachita parish has joined in the program of urging united public action in conserving and restoring the natural resources of our country.

Thoman explained that the National Wildlife Federation is an association of wildlife federations of 42 states of the union. State federations are composed of parish and county units.

"The conservation movement really never got started, Thoman said "until these statewide and nationwide associations were formed during the last 15 years. Since then many worthwhile things have been accomplished.

"For example, legislative milestones like the Pittman - Robertson federal-aid game law of 1936 and the similar Dingel - Johnson fisheries act of 1950 were passed by Congress only because there was national organized support behind them.

"In addition to cooperating in conservation matters of statewide and national interest, the local clubs carry on many projects to improve wildlife conditions, to better hunting and fishing, to encourage soil conservation and good farming. Many clubs do special work with 4 - H Clubs and other youth groups in a program of conservation education.

"A broad nationwide program of conservation education is the primary function of the National Wildlife Federation. It is also the main objective of the National Wildlife Week — an attempt to make the public conscious that many important resources are being used up or worn out, and that something must be done about it.

"The vanishing Key deer of Florida has been selected as the National Wildlife Week symbol of 1952. These unique little animals, smallest race of whitetail deer on the American continent, have become almost extinct on their island habitat along the coast of Florida. Conservationists are seeking their restoration and the National Wildlife Federation has asked Congress to set up a federal refuge area for their protection.

"The Key deer is typical of dwindling natural resources which may yet be saved or restored through prompt public action.

The National Wildlife Federation, Thoman explained, is financed by the sale of sheets of wildlife stamps to interested citizens. The state organization like the local club, is financed by membership dues.

Mayor Coon, in his proclamation, said:

"Wasteful practices and slovenly habits are robbing this nation of productivity of our soils and water . . . and depleting certain species of native American wildlife disastrously . . . there is greater need for more intelligent planning of developments to secure the greatest possible values from all resources . . . protection of the wildlife species, such as the native American Key deer, which are rapidly becoming extinct, should be one of our fundamental responsibilities; and

"Whereas, the National Wildlife Federation, in sponsoring National Wildlife Week, is doing much to teach the basic tenets on which the future of America's soils, water and wildlife depends . . .;

"Now therefore, I, John E. Coon, mayor of the city of Monroe, do hereby proclaim and designate the week of March 16 through 22 as National Wildlife Week . . . and do earnestly appeal to all of our citizens to recognize the importance of the problems of conservation . . . and the importance to our future well-being of perpetuating them.

SAXTON, BRATTON BOUT CANCELLED

Ruled Out To Avoid Another Rhubarb For Johnny

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—If there's another ring rhubarb at Madison Square Garden March 28, Johnny Saxton won't be in it.

The International Boxing Club announced today that Saxton has figured in enough rhubarbs for awhile, though they may not be of the fighter's choosing, so the scheduled Saxton-Johnny Bratton bout is being replaced.

"Robert Christenberry, chairman of the New York athletic commission, suggested that it may be best to arrange another fight," said Harry Markson, IBC managing director. "So that we'll do."

Markson said he didn't know yet whether Bratton, the NBA welterweight titlist, would meet another foe or an entirely new bout would be arranged.

Saxton became involved in his second rhubarb in recent weeks at the Garden last night when his foe, 22-year-old Lester Felton of Detroit was disqualified in the sixth round for continuous holding.

In his last Garden appearance Jan. 25, Saxton was awarded a technical knockout over Livio Minelli of Italy when Referee Ruby Goldstein stopped the affair in the seventh round. The referee ruled the Italian who ran instead of holding, was "overmatched." Minelli's purse also was withheld but later given to him.

Christenberry acknowledged today he had ordered the Saxton-Bratton match replaced.

"Not that it's any fault of Saxton's," the chairman said. "It's just that we felt the public should be spared from the possibility of another fiasco like this with Saxton involved."

Saxton originally was scheduled to meet Bratton last night. But Felton was substituted when Bratton hurt his left hand and the bout was rearranged for March 28.

Little League's Building Program Grows; Will Break Ground Tuesday

Donations, Pledges Amount To $4,822; More Cash Needed

Nineteen business firms and individuals have contributed $1,442 toward financing construction of a Little League baseball park here, and eight other organizations have pledged enough to assure a grand total of $4,822 toward erecting the little plant that will cost an estimated $7,997 to build exclusive of contractors fees which will be donated, it was reported yesterday by Jack Hesketh, Little League secretary.

While plans are moving ahead to begin breaking ground at the park site Tuesday, if godd weather holds, a matter of $3,175 is still needed to assure completion of the project.

Little League baseball is for boys eight to twelve years of age. Monroe had its first such league last year and saw its all-star combination win district and regional honors.

Hesketh last night said cash donations have already been made by the Ouachita National Bank, the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company. Motor Supply Company, Bill Mintz, F. Strauss and Sons Brown Paper Mill Company, Twin City Motor Company, W. C. Feazel, Alexander's Custom Tailors, Virginia Hotel, R. and A. Jewelers, Rotary Club, Gay Clothing, Sears-Roebuck, Clyde Nash Insurance, the Rendezvous, James A. Noe, Saul Adler and an anonymous donation of $100.

Pledges of support have been made Hesketh said, by Krauss and Cahn, the Lieber Company, the Monroe Baseball Club, Monroe Wholesale Drugs, Sandman's Pharmacy, Frank Masling and Son, and the Lions Club.

The Lions Club pledge amounts to $3,000 including all proceeds of its recent Guy Lombardo show.

Frank Masling and son, building contractors, in addition to making a cash donation to the cause, will undertake the job of erecting the park at cost only and will charge no contracting fee.

Francis, Drysdale Win Senior Event

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 15 (AP)—St. Augustine's Fred Francis and W. I. Drysdale scored an upset 1-up 19-hole victory here today over favored Al Ulmer and Tommy Aycock, veteran Jacksonville linksmen, in the Seniors Best Ball Golf Tournament finals.

Francis and Drysdale had reached the final round by upsetting defending champions Morton Bright, Atlanta, and Gordon Bullock, Ponte Vedra Beach, one up.

The new champions shot their way to a 3-up lead by the end of the first nine holes, winning on the fifth, sixth and eighth. They were two under par 37 with their best ball.

With Ulmer carding sizable putts for birdies on the 10th and 11th greens, the Jacksonville combine whittled two holes off their opponent's lead. Then they squared the match on the 13th.

The Ulmer - Aycock team went ahead for the first time on the fifteenth green. Ulmer's par five was good for a win when Drysdale three-putted from the edge of the carpet. But Drysdale came back to win the next hole with a birdie and the match ended all square.

Drysdale rallied with a great putt to win the extra hole and the match after a poor tee shot. He rammed down a 30-footer for victory when Aycock blew a chance to win the hole by taking three putts to get down.

SKY SHIP TAKES FLORIDA DERBY

Beats Handsome Teddy By Nose In $20,000 Race

MIAMI, Fla., March 15.—(AP)—Brookmeade stable's Sky Ship matched G. S. Smith's Handsome Teddy stride for stride through the stretch today to win the $20,000-added Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park by a nose.

Handsome Teddy was a head in front of the fast closing Sandtop in the blanket finish. Max Kahlbaum's Jampol, a 9 to 5 favorite in the field of 18 three-year-olds, was three lengths back in fourth place.

Emerald Hill stable's Blue Square, which set the pace over the mile and a furlong feature, faded in the drive for home and finished eighth. Time for the mile and an eighth was 1:05.4, two seconds off the track record set by Harmonica four years ago.

Sky Ship, which finished sixth in the $50,000 Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah March 1, was sharp today and matched Handsome Teddy all the way down the stretch, with Sandtop coming up to figure in the blanket finish.

The crowd of 17,918 made Jampol the heavy favorite in the big field and Blue Square was second choice. Neither could match the leaders in speed and stamina.

Sky Ship, an entry with Brookmeade's Closed Door, paid $24.10, $12 and $7.70. Handsome Teddy returned $15.10 and $9.90 while Sandtop paid $5.80 to show in the $2 mutuels.

The Florida derby, first run at Tampa Downs in 1926, was shifted to Hialeah and became a fixture there until it was replaced by the Flamingo Stakes in 1937.

Gulfstream Park revived the derby this year ,making it the final test for three-year-olds in Florida before the thoroughbreds depart for the north and the Kentucky Derby in May.

LA-MISS-ARK CAGE TOURNEY HERE SATURDAY

NICHOLS MOTORS SPONSORS EVENT FOR 2ND SEASON

Field Open To Strong Independent, College Quintets

The second annual Nichols Motors Independent Basketball Tournament, renamed the Independent Louisiana - Mississippi - Arkansas Championship Tournament, will be run off here next Saturday at the Ouachita Parish High School gymnasium, it was announced by Curtis Nichols, sponsor of the event, just before he left with his Nichols Motors quintet to appear in the Jonesville Lions Club Gold Medal meet.

The La-Miss-Ark tourney will be open to boys' teams only and entries will be limited to the first twelve independent or college teams filing entriees before the deadline Wednesday.

Already the show this season is expected to be bigger and better than the 1951 program that attracted the finest independent quintets in this section.

Five teams are already registered for the tournament. Nichols named the clubs already entered as:

Tom's Peanuts, a Natchitoches machine that has gone undefeated in 76 games this season and recently won the Tri-State Tournament at Shreveport.

Wayne Confectionery, Warren, Ark., with a 44-2 record for the season and winner of the Arkansas A. A. U. championship Thursday.

And the lone college entry so far, Northeast Louisiana State College, now coached by Cary Phillips who handled the Nichols outfit last season.

Other independent or college teams of the three states are invited to participate and the next first seven entries received will be accepted to complete the 12-team field.

Majors May Quit California Bases If Coast League Park Ban Sticks

Difficulties May Be Ironed Out At Tuesday Meeting

LOS ANGELES, March 15 (AP)—Representatives of six major league baseball clubs and the eight teams in the Pacific Coast League will sit down in what may be rather chilly atmosphere here Tuesday to discuss a coast ban directed at the big leaguers.

The coasters recently voted to bar major league teams from playing each other in coast league parks, effective next spring. Exhibitions between a major and a coast team are all right.

The majors called their meeting first, to discuss the 1953 spring schedule. Days later the coasters announced they would meet, too, on the same day, at the same hotel, the Biltmore.

The sessions will be in different rooms but unquestionably the two groups will get together.

Involved are the majors training in the west — the New York Giants, the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and the two Chicago clubs.

Presidents Horace Stoneham of the Giants and Bill Veeck of St. Louis have threatened to shun California entirely if the rule sticks.

Cleveland has indicated it will go along with a move elsewhere, and the other teams seem to be awaiting further developments.

Coast League President Clarence Rowland said today that as far as he knows, there will be no relaxing of the policy. He said it was voted unanimously.

He emphasized the coast clubs are highly desirous of letting the big boys in the PCL parks, but only against coast loop teams.

'We are more than willing to break bread with them, but we don't want them to carry the dishes away," he said.

The coast move presumably was taken to (1) increase its revenue from the spring games, and (2) lessen the inevitable emphasis on major lague baseball, coming, as it does, just before the coast league season gets underway.

The majors view the move as an affront, and unjustified.

They pointed to the current exhibition schedule and claimed it could hardly work to the financial disadvantage of the coasters.

The majors will participate in 60 games.

Of this, 22 were billed against coast teams, in coast league parks, and 10 against coast teams in non-league cities.

That's a total of 32 major-coast league games.

The majors booked 10 games between themselves in coast league parks, and 18 between themselves in non-league parks.

That's a total of 28 all-major league exhibitions.

Most observers believe the differences will be settled without undue bloodshed. After all, Cub owner Phil K. Wrigley also owns the Los Angeles Club and the biggest park in the PCL, and Branch Rickey of Pittsburgh owns $75,000 worth of stock in Hollywood.

LINCOLN ENJOYS BANNER OPENING

LINCOLN, R. I., March 15 (AP)—A record opening day crowd of 27,000 persons turned out to bet more than a million dollars in near freezing weather today as Lincoln Downs began a 30-day spring meeting — earliest start in the history of thoroughbred racing in New England.

They set a new opening day record handle by wagering $1,064,735 to top the old mark of $929,453. It was well below the all time high of $1,553,044 set last Armistice Day.

The $3,000 featured Inaugural Handicap was won by T. G. May's Whirling Bat, which scored its first victory since last November after an unsuccessful winter campaign.

The Whirlaway colt scored by five lengths of A. P. Cotter's Ariel's Mark to win the seven-furlong sprint for three-year-olds and up with the favored C. L. Dupuys' Crystal Pass third. Whirling Bat's time was 1:28 and one-fifth.

Jack Noble's Essential, the early leader, led the way into the back stretch. Then Jockey Clarence Roberts aboard Whirling Bat sent his mount between horses halfway down the back stretch where he easily took command. Ariel's Mark could not match Whirling Bat's closing drive.

Whirling Bat paid $11.20, $5.60 and $3.10. Ariel's Mark returned $10.40 and $4.60 with the favorite, Crystal Pass, paying $2.60 after finishing three lenghs back. Essential was fourth.

The crowd of 17,918 made Jampol the heavy favorite in the big field and Blue Square was second choice. Neither could match the leaders in speed and stamina.

Sky Ship, an entry with Brookmeade's Closed Door, paid $24.10, $12 and $7.70. Handsome Teddy returned $15.10 and $9.90 while Sandtop paid $5.80 to show in the $2 mutuels.

The Florida derby, first run at Tampa Downs in 1926, was shifted to Hialeah and became a fixture there until it was replaced by the Flamingo Stakes in 1937.

Gulfstream Park revived the derby this year ,making it the final test for three-year-olds in Florida before the thoroughbreds depart for the north and the Kentucky Derby in May.

The Wildcats from Kentucky, who finished the season with a 27-2 record and the No. 1 position in the Associated Press poll, are favorites to prevail and perhaps again represent the United States in the Olympics.

Both the N. C. A. A. winner and runner-up qualify for the Olympic trials, opening March 29. Kentucky and the Phillips Oilers made up the 1948 Olympic team at London.

Winners of the regional tournaments Friday and Saturday go to Seattle for the semi-finals and finals. The two western division and two eastern division winners clash March 25 with the divisional champions meeting March 25 for the title.

Several Clubs Need One Or Two To Strengthen For Season

BY JACK HAND

St. Petersburgh, Fla., March 15.—(AP)—Trade winds blowing through the training camp palms whisper names like Al Zarilla, Eddie Waitkus, Cass Michaels, Irv Noren, Johnny Groth, and Russ Meyer.

With the spring shake down period baring flaws in most big league clubs, baseball's Salesman Sam troupe is touring the grapefruit league with the '52 spring line.

Frank Lane, Chicago White Sox general manager, delayed his departure for California, in an attempt to close a deal with Detroit.

Turned down on an offer of Zarilla and Bob Dillinger for Johnny Groth and at Mullin, Lane tossed new names in the hopper. Although Lane says "No," First Baseman Eddie Robinson appears to be the most likely target of Tiger attention.

Everybody you talk to in Florida says Brooklyn must make a trade to close its pitching ranks. The search for a "new" Don Newcombe is a wide open scramble, changing daily. The Dodgers are "set" at eight positions but Preacher Roe is the only consistent pitcher on the staff.

Bob Carpenter, Phils' owner, traveled to Miami with his club in mid-week, on the chance that the Brooks would want to talk business about pitchers.

With Curt Simmons slated to come out of the army in early season, the Phils could afford to let go of Russ Meyer or even Howie Fox for the right kind of a deal. First Baseman Eddie Waitkus, getting a chilly reception from the management, would be tossed into a multi-player swap with Brooklyn if the Dodgers would let go a first line outfielder.

Also in Miami for talks with the Dodgers is Gabe Paul, Cincinnati general manager. Reported concerned in the conversation were Herm Wehmeier or Ewell Blackwell of the Reds and Brooklyn's Rocky Bridges or Bob Morgan.

Pittsburgh Scout Bill Burwell is watching the Dodgers, who are interested only in the Pirates' hurler, Murry Dickson. It is believed there is little chance for a deal on Dickson.

From out west comes word that Leo Durocher is casting eyes at Pittsburgh's George Metkovich as possible outfield insurance when Willie Mays goes into the army. Pitcher Sheldon Jones, Infielder Bob Hofman and Catcher Ray Noble might go.

When the Philadelphia A's visited Orlando last week end, one of the first questions asked by Manager Jimmy Dykes was "How's Old Pork Chops?" In Jimmy's vocabulary "Old Pork Chops" is Cass Michaels, Washington's second baseman.

However the A's have little to spare that Washington could use, unless Bucky Harris wanted to gamble on a question mark pitcher like Joe Coleman or Dick Fowler. Most of all, Harris needs some righthanded hitting power.

A Noren - for - Jensen deal was near completion when premature publicity broke off negotiations. George Weiss, Yank general manager, became disturbed when the names leaked from the Washington end.

Red Ruffing, Cleveland's trade-minded scout, went away empty handed after a stay in Florida. He spent some time in Orlando, prompting rumors of a Bob Kenedy-Sam Mele deal that were promptly denied.

Bill DeWitt, vice-president of the St. Louis Browns, also haggled with Owner Clark Griffith of Washington. He was said to be interested in Noren or Yost, and who isn't? DeWitt also has been eyeing the fine crop of Yankee rookies, that Casey Stengel has been playing in the spring games.

Both Lane and DeWitt are high on some Yank kids. That might be well to keep in mind when the old stories about Eddie Robinson or Ned Garver coming to the Yanks pop up again. Lane calls the Yanks' Andy Carey "another McDougald."

Cage Rules Come Up For Valuation

CHICAGO, March 15.——(AP)—W—CHICAGO, March 15 (AP)— What to do about game-closing rodeos of wild fouling and rejected free throws will be the main concern of the National Basketball Committee which meets at Seattle March 26-27, to formulate rules for the 1952-53 season.

The committee, composed of representatives of the N. C. A. A. The National Federation of High School Associations, the Y. M. C. A., the A. A. U. and Canadian groups, has been screening the results of 20,000 questionnaires on possible rules changes.

According to F. V. Porter, committee secretary, the chief point of difference among cage enthusiasts centers around the value of a free throw against the value of possession of the ball in frequent wild scrambles during the closing minutes of a game.

Such wild play results when a team ahead uses a "freeze and the losing team fouls indiscriminately trying to get the ball. The offended team can waive a free throw to maintain possession.

BABE THREATENS TO POST RECORD

Mrs. Zaharias Far Ahead In Titleholders Golf Meet

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 15.—(AP)—Babe Zaharias, shooting like she had a compass on every ball and gaining ground on every round, looked today like a sure bet to set a new Titleholders Golf Tournament scoring record.

The output today in the third round for the all-time queen of golf was a 73 — the best score of the day. Her 54-hole total is 220—seven big strokes better than anyone else has managed on this long, windy Augusta Country Club course.

All the Babe needs tomorrow to set a new Titleholders' record is to shoot a 77 or less. From the way her shots are going and her putts are falling, that should not be too big an order. Mrs. Zaharias set the 298 Titleholder record in 1950.

Louise Suggs, a professional second only to the Babe in money winnings for 1951 and second only to the Babe as a gallery attraction, is second to the Babe in scoring.

Louise came in with a fancy 74 today — two over men's par on the 36-36 — 72 country club course which stretches over 6,619 yards of east Georgia sandlands. But her 74 wasn't good enough to gain on the Babe.

Mrs. Zaharias opened the meet Thursday with a 74 — best of the day. She got a 73 yesterday — best of the round. And, her 73 today again was the best of the round.

About 2,300 gallerites were out today in high winds and steadily dropping temperatures, and, naturally, most of them followed the Babe.

Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., was third with a 228 — a slump from second place. And, Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., was fourth with 230. Miss Faulk is low amateur thus far after a fast fade by several other promising amateurs.

The leaders:

Louise Suggs, Carrollton, Ga., Ga., 77-76—227.

Alice Bauer, Sararota, Fla., 78-78-80—236.

Beverly Hanson, Indio, Calif., 84-74-80—238.

Kilpatrick, Boyles Take Charge Of Athletes Tomorrow

Jim Malone, Northeast Louisiana State College football mentor, announced yesterday that he had ended his early session of spring football so as not to conflict with baseball and track practice for the Indians.

Malone said that training in track under Coach Arnold Kilpatrick and in baseball under Coach Woody Boyles, would begin tomorrow and that he had asked all football players on his squad to go out for one or the other of the sports.

Malone stated that his squad would work out five more days this spring, but that they would be in the month of May when the other two sports would not conflict with his practice.

The Northeast mentor expressed himself as being "very satisfied" with his spring training crew, but then added that it was "awful weak in some positions."

"Our line is particularly weak," Coach Malone said, "especially in the tackle and end positions. We are going to have to depend on freshman personnel just out of high school for another year, since graduations hurt us in those spots."

Malone announced that he was pleased with the fine showing of some of the freshmen, however, and announced that he had shifted several of last year's players to different positions, where their work also proved "satisfactory."

Malone stated that he was very pleased with the work the boys had been doing in their changed positions.

The freshmen upon which Malone will be depending when the season opens were listed by the coach as Bob Burnley, a freshman end from Delhi; Percy Wheeler, a freshman guard who joined the Indian squad from Ouachita's team; Jimmy Childress, freshman fullback from Ruston; Bob Carter, a Ouachita star who was one of Malone's top players last season; Johnny Schmitt, formerly of Neville; Mack McKoin, a giant 245-pound tackle from Bonita; Pat Mayo, a mid-term freshman from Logan, W. Va., who will hold down a left halfback position; Bill Lee, a right half from Oak Grove; and Camille Detore, a left halfback from Pennsylvania.

Rose To Return To Porker Quint

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., March 15.—(AP)—Glen Rose will return to the University of Arkansas as head basketball coach April 1 with the longest contract and the highest salary ever given a holder of the job.

University Provost Joe E. Covington announced today that Rose, now coach at Stephen F. Austin College, Nacogdoches, Tex., had signed a five - year contract at $7,000 a year to succeed Presley Askew, who resigned after a dismal 1952 season.

Rose formerly was connected with Arkansas for 20 years as a star athlete, baskketball and football coach, athletic director and athletic business manager. He left the latter port in 1947 to go to Stephen F. Austin.

In his nine years as Arkansas' varsity cage coach before World War Two, Rose produced five Southwest Conference Champions.

One Injured In Rayville Bus Accident

RAYVILLE, La., March 15.—(Special)—One person was seriously injured and about 20 others badly shaken early this morning when a Missouri Pacific bus' brakes failed to hold when the driver attempted to stop at a railroad crossing about six miles north of here and the bus left the highway and hit a parked tractor and truck, state police said.

State police said the driver attempted to apply his brakes as he neared the railroad crossing but the flexible brake lining was disconnected. He hit a parked tractor dragging it about 45 feet and proceeded on and hit a parked truck carrying it about 126 feet, they said.

State police estimated the damage to the bus at $2,500, the tractor, $2,200 and the truck, $500.

The tractor, which was demolished, and the truck are the property of A. S. Land, of Jonesburg.

Harold Snow, who umpired in the Cotton States League in 1950 and was in the Army in 1951, returns.

Kentucky Classic May Draw Biggest Field On May 3

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 15.—(AP)—The magic name of the Kentucky Derby today drew a list of 167 nominations for this year's version of the internationally known turf classic.

The 78th running of the Derby has been set for Saturday, May 3, at Churchill Downs. It likely will bring out a crowd of 100,000 or more.

The 167 thoroughbreds represent the second highest number of three year olds ever nominated for the mile and a quarter test. This may result in the biggest field ever to start the race for Derby gold and the wreath of roses presented the winner.

The record in that respect was set in 1928, when 196 nominations were filed and 22 actually went to the post. That was the year Reigh Count won. Last year's 20 starters represented the biggest field since 1928.

Virtually every outstanding juvenile of last year's racing season has been nominated for the big event. The starting field, however, will be made up only of those whose owners are willing to post the $1,000 starting fee on the day before the race.

There are only four fillies among the nominations and only once in 77 runnings has a member of the feminine sex won the derby. That was in 1915, when Regret earned the roses in a field of 16 starters.

Count Turf, son of Count Fleet, the 1943 winner, came home in front last year in 2:02 and one-fifth for the mile and a quarter. Whirlaway's 2:01 and two - fifths in running off from the field in 1941 still remains the best time.

There are many standouts among the 1952 nominations and names that will become household words before May.

Among them are Greentree Stable's Tom Fool, American two - year - old champion last year, who started 13 races, won five, came in second on two occasions and earned $155,910.

Another is Cousin, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's $20,000 bargain, winner of six races and $94,400 as a juvenile.

Windy City II, Two - year - old champion of England, France and Ireland, is another colt rated a distinct challenge.

Clifford Mooers nominated six from his Walnut Springs Farm, the most listed by a single owner. They are Clifford, Endowment, Kingly, Minting, Miss Classic and Murraba.

J. J. Amiel, whose Count Turf won last year's derby, returned with a single nomination, Count Flame, another son of Count Fleet.

Lounsberry New Grid Coach At Whitworth

SPOKANE, Wash., March 15 (AP)—A former assistant coach at the University of Washington, James R. Lounsberry, has been named head football coach for Whitworth College, Dr. Frank Warren, Whitworth president announced today.

Berra Receives Sprained Ankle

MIAMI, Fla., March 15.—(AP)—Catcher Yogi Berra of the New York Yankkees sprained a ligament and ruptured a blood vessel in his left foot today in an exhibition game against Brooklyn.

After an X-ray examination at a hospital, Dr. Sidney Gaynor, Yankee physician, said Berra could return to duty in a week or ten days unless there was a "bad reaction."

Berra, the American League's valuable player in 1951, was injured in the first inning, just before rain cancelled the game.

The squat receiver grounded to First Baseman Wayne Belardi with runners on first and second. Belardi turned the grounder into a force out at second as Berra crossed the bag and turned to watch the play at second, he turned his ankle.

NOTES ON THE CAMPS

SENATORS

ORLANDO, Fla., March 15 (AP)—The ax fell for the first time today as the Senators sent infielders Lloyd Dietzel and Gene Verble to their Chattanooga farm club.

The Washington team also announced the "loan" of Infielder Roy Hawes to Chattanooga. He is due to stay with the minor league club after April 1.

ATHLETICS

TAMPA, Fla., March 15 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics arrived here today for an "inter-city" exhibition with the Phillies minus the services of Manager Jimmy Dykes, who is running a temperature of 102 and "feeling lousy."

Dykes remained in West Palm Beach to nurse a virus infection after yielding to the persuasion of Trainer Packy Schwartz and a local physician. He will also miss the A's jaunt to the west coast for a three-game tour.

The A's claimed jokingly that their game with the Phillies counts in the city series "only if we win."

PHILLIES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 15 (AP)— There's no wonder the Philadelphia Phils have looked a little ragged in grapefruit league competition this year, team officials declare.

In the last few games, they point out, Nippy Jones had a sore leg, Gran Hamner a pulled muscle in his groin, Richie Ashburn and Tommy Brown have sore arms and Connie Ryan has an injured wrist. The Phils have won one game in five starts.

They meet the American League Athletics in an inter - city game here tomorrow.

WHITE SOX

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 15 (AP)— Irked by rain which cancelled today's exhibition between the Chicago White Sox "A" team and Sacramento, Manager Paul Richards ordered his Pale Hose to the ball park for cold, damp drills. The Sox "B" squad was at San Diego.

To offset the loss of competition the last week by bad weather, the Sox have booked five additional exhibition games, the first of which will be an "A" squad engagement with Seattle at Palm Springs Monday.

PIRATES

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 15 (AP)—Manager Bill Meyer of the Pittsburgh Pirates, says big Dick Hall, 21-year-old former Swarthmore College baseball star, as the best rookie uncovered during spring training.

Hall, who weighs in at 200 pounds and is six feet, six inches tall, has been pounding the ball hard, is an exceptionally fast base runner and has played several infield positions in topflight fashion.

The Pirates took it easy again today, waiting for clearing skies to determine if they could play the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League in an exhibition. So far the Bucs have been rained out of five exhibitions.

Frank Saucier Called Back For Naval Duty

ST. LOUIS, March 15 (AP)—Frank Saucier, minor league hitting sensation but a flop with the St. Louis Browns last season, has been ordered to return to active duty by the navy.

The 24-year-old outfielder has passed his physical examination and will leave the Browns' Burbank, Calif., training base Sunday for his Washington, Mo., home. He is to report for duty in 20 days.

A lieutenant (jg) with the naval reserve, Saucier had a .343 batting average with the Browns' Class AA Texas League club at San Antonio in 1950. The previous year he hit .446 at Wichita Falls, Tex., in the Class B Big State League.

A sore arm has sidelined him thus far in early exhibition games.

LASALLE TAKES NIT CAGE CROWN

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—LaSalle's unranked and unwanted "Fuzz Kids," paced by a pair of teen-aged freshman, avenged a series of snubs tonight by smothering Dayton's towering, experienced Flyers, 75-64, for the 15th annual National Invitation Basketball Championship.

A standing-room-only crowd of 18,485 packed Madison Square Garden to see the climax to the year's most incredible Cinderella story. In an earlier game, St. Bonaventure won the third place consolation by smashing a lehargic Duquesne, the tournament's No. 1 seeded entry, 48-31.

Tom Gola, a muscular, good looking son of a Philadelphia policeman, and Fred Iehle, a slender one-handed pop-in artist, who, like Gola, is just 19, provided the impetus for the triumph by scoring 40 points between them. Gola had 22 and Iehle 18.

Thus for the third time during the meet LaSalle humbled one of the teams picked "at large" to represent the east in the N. C. A. A. championships, beginning next Friday. The Philadelphians were overlooked when the bids were passed out earlier this week.

Duquesne and St. John's, who with Dayton were selected for the National Collegiate championships, were semi - final and quarter-final victims of the sharp shooting Explorers.

LaSalle threw a collapsing man-to-man defense at the boys from Ohio and held big Don Meineke, Dayton center and the tournament's leading scorer, to 13 points. The six-foot-seven Meineke, who previously had registered 71 points, was limited to four field goals.

Three players were largely responsible for throttling this big gun of the Flyers — Gola, Grekin and Jack Moore, the latter a six-foot-five jumping jack who did a tremendous job of rebounding.

Miss. Geologist Named Head Of Houston Corp.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 15 (AP)—Herbert A. Hemphill, a native of Hattiesburg, Miss., has been appointed president of the Texas Eastern Production Corp., according to George R. Brown.

Brown, chairman of the board of the Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., which owns the production corporation, said Hemphill resigned from the Magnolia Petroleum Co. at Midland to accept the new post in Houston Texas.

With 22 years experience as geologist in West Texas, Hemphill succeeds R. H. Hargrove to the presidency. Hargrove, however, remains president and director of the parent company and director of the production corporation.

Miss. Geologist Named Head Of Houston Corp.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 15 (AP)—Herbert A. Hemphill, a native of Hattiesburg, Miss., has been appointed president of the Texas Eastern Production Corp., according to George R. Brown.

Brown, chairman of the board of the Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., which owns the production corporation, said Hemphill resigned from the Magnolia Petroleum Co. at Midland to accept the new post in Houston Texas.

With 22 years experience as geologist in West Texas, Hemphill succeeds R. H. Hargrove to the presidency. Hargrove, however, remains president and director of the parent company and director of the production corporation.

Allied negotiators say the Reds, in attempting to strike out the word "Korea" may be seeking to protect Communist China from any possible naval blockade. The threat of such a blockade is considered a strong factor to make the Reds live up to truce terms guaranteeing the safety of South Korea.

The Reds quickly accepted the three Allied concessions but indicated they weren't interested in talking about the other two points which would require them to compromise.

An Allied spokesman told correspondents later:

"The U. N. Command is very skeptical about making package proposals, as we have made them twice and have had the Communists accept them only in part."

Progress in the truce talks during the past week was about nil.

In addition to the prisoner exchange issue—the Allies want the prisoner to have the right to decide whether he shall go back—the major issues are Red nomination of Soviet Russia as a neutral truce observer and Red insistence on the right to rebuild military airfields in North Korea during an armistice. The latter issue has been shelved temporarily.

Various side issues touched upon during the week complicate the main disagreements.

On prisoner exchange, the Reds want to do business on the 132,474 listed as Allied-held and the 11,559 they say they hold. The Allies want to know what happened to 53,000 South Koreans whom the Reds say they indoctrinated and released on the battle line.

The Reds in turn have accused the Allies of bringing "infamous instructors" from Chinese nationalist Formosa to the Koje prison stockade. They say the Allies are intimidating Red prisoners with bayonets and grenades, instigating hunger strikes and forcibly tattooing them with anti-Communist slogans.

The Reds also have charged the Allies are waging germ warfare in North Korea and Manchuria. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, during a visit to Munsan Truce Headquarters Tuesday, angrily denied the accusation.

Leahy shouted "Chung yi" — "Stop it" and tried to get the work party moving. But the column had stopped and the men were heaving a hail of stones into the stockade.

Another security officer, Lt. Harold L. Bolan of Irving, Ky., was inside 92 when the fight started. He shouted to the Communist compound leader to get the prisoners away from the fence and then rushed outside to try to hustle the workers away.

Allied negotiators say the Reds, in attempting to strike out the word "Korea" may be seeking to protect Communist China from any possible naval blockade. The threat of such a blockade is considered a strong factor to make the Reds live up to truce terms guaranteeing the safety of South Korea.

Miss Vikki Johnson Is Bride Of Tom Ballis

A lovely wedding of the spring season was that of Miss Vikki Johnson, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Johnson, when she became the bride of Tom Ballis, of Houston, Texas, son of Mrs. Bill Ballis, of Galveston, and Houston, Tex.

The marriage was solemnized in the Cajun Room at the Rendezvous Sunday, March 2nd at 7:30 p. m. with Father N. Papapetron, of St. George Greek Orthodox Church, officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive ceremony before an improvised altar which held white candles and arrangements of white stock surrounded by green fern.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Tom Johnson, was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin with yoke of illusion embroidered with seed pearls. Her veil of illusion was attached to a capulet of white satin embroidered in seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis. Her only ornament was a strand of perals, a gift of the groom.

Maid of honor was Miss Sophia Johnson, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Georgia Caros, and Miss Jenny Puciarulo, of Galveston, Tex. Miss Johnson was wearing a gown of light blue silk taffeta which graduated to colors of light blue to dark blue at the hem. She wore a small halo hat of blue taffeta and matching elbow length gloves. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in silk organza with off the shoulder necklines. Miss Caros wore an orchid gown and Miss Puciarulo yellow. Both carried bouquets of spring flowers. They wore halos of multi-colored spring flowers in their hair.

Sponsor was Mrs. Bobby C. Pappas who was wearing a white silk lace ankle length strapless dress and lace bolero with three quarter length sleeves. Her dress was sprinkled with rhinestones. She wore a white gardenia in her hair. Ushers were George Ballis, brother of the groom, of Houston, Tex., and Johnny Johnson. Both were white tuxedos. Gary Pappas served as ring bearer.

A reception was held immediately following the wedding. Over two hundred guests were present, enjoying dancing later in the Cajun Room.

The bride's table, overlaid with a white embroidered lace cloth which was brought to this country from Greece by the bride and made by the bride's mother, was centered with an arragement of white stock flanked by candelabra on either side. Hors - d'oeuvre were placed on tables with massive arrangements of daisies.

Assisting in the serving at the reception were Mrs. Pappas, Miss Irene Stergois, of Memphis, Tenn., Miss Bessie Kocatos, Miss Kiki Gatzoulas, Miss Olga Tefas, and Miss Kaula Yahontis, of Bartlesville, Okla.

For her wedding trip to New Orleans the bride chose an original model of dusty rose faille with navy accessories. Upon their return the couple will make their home in Houston, Tex.

The bride came over from Athens, Greece, four months ago to make her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Johnson. The bridegroom also came from Athens five years ago. The couple had mutual friends in that city but did not meet one another until the bride came to the United States. The bride's childhood friend, Mrs. Gregory Taras, of Memphis, Tenn., attended the wedding. They hadn't seen one another for five years when Mrs. Taras came to this country from Greece.

Girl Scout News

Congratulations to Joyce Hilton and Nancy Breard who were elected president and secretary of the girl planning board at its March meeting. Joyce is a student at St. Paschal's and a member of Troop 31 while Nancy is a student at Neville and a member of troop 28.

Troop 28 has been very much in the lin elight recently, with everybody enjoying hearing about their trip to Mobile and the gulf coast. We hear that the trip ended on a sad note, with all the girls dissolved in tears. No, they didn't have an accident, nor lose anyone by the wayside. It's just that as they neared home they began to talk about losing Nancy Albright as a troop member. Nancy moved to Natchitoches last week, you know. Cheer up, girls, we're betting on Nancy and her mother to make as many friends in their new home as they left behind them in Monroe!

What we're pleased to hear about the whole affair is that it is the result of long-term planning in the good old Girl Scout way. For a year the girls have worked on badges that related to the trip, nature badges on trees and flowers; they have written for information; they've saved and earned money. The whole trip has fitted in with troop program, in fact. Their leaders tell us, and we wouldn't have dreamed of thinking otherwise, that while the girls have plenty of fun and enjoy being noisy and active, they can be counted on to act as perfect ladies in public places. We're sure that's one of the reasons why Mrs. Davenport and Mrs. Hinkle enjoy working with them.

Well, girls, do you feel older today? Girl Scouting has passed its fortieth birthday — Wednesday, the 12th, you know. Of course, everybody knows about our birthday celebration this afternoon — 3:00 o'clock at Ouachita Parish High School auditorium. We hope all the scout families will be there—not just those who appear on the program.

And if, in spite of reminders, you've forgotten to bring your Juliette Low pennies, bring them along. The little yellow bag will open for you to put in your contribution. We'd like to think that no one is left out. We know our offering will be larger than last year's if everybody gives even a small amount. Several troops have hit on unique ways of deciding how much they will give. Can't wait to find out.

If you're in a fifth or sixth grade troop, you're needed to sing in the chorus this afternoon. Mrs. Easterling has worked with a lot of you and you know the songs. See you this afternoon!

Rayville Has Five Federated Clubs

There are more federated club women per square foot in the little town of Rayville than in any other town of its size in the state of Louisiana. It didn't happen overnight, either. It started back in 1913 with the organization of the mother club, Lambda Kappa, and now, with a population of approximately 3200, Rayville has five active federated clubs.

In 1932 the Lambda Kappa Club organized the Rayville Literary Club, and this club is celebrating its twentieth anniversary of continuous service inn 1952. To continuous service in 1952. To continue its record of extension work, the Lambda Kappa Club organized two more clubs during 1949, the Arts and Civic Club and the Sub-Junior Club, composed of a group of high school girls.

To complete the cycle of organization to the present time, the Rayville Literary Club organized the L'Avenir Culture Club in 1952, making the fifth federated club in our town. It is readily understandable that when there is a civic project to be launched there is an old saying in Rayville, "Get the Federated Club Women Behind it." — if you want to put it over.

Rayville Has Five Federated Clubs

There are more federated club women per square foot in the little town of Rayville than in any other town of its size in the state of Louisiana. It didn't happen overnight, either. It started back in 1913 with the organization of the mother club, Lambda Kappa, and now, with a population of approximately 3200, Rayville has five active federated clubs.

In 1932 the Lambda Kappa Club organized the Rayville Literary Club, and this club is celebrating its twentieth anniversary of continuous service inn 1952. To continuous service in 1952. To continue its record of extension work, the Lambda Kappa Club organized two more clubs during 1949, the Arts and Civic Club and the Sub-Junior Club, composed of a group of high school girls.

To complete the cycle of organization to the present time, the Rayville Literary Club organized the L'Avenir Culture Club in 1952, making the fifth federated club in our town. It is readily understandable that when there is a civic project to be launched there is an old saying in Rayville, "Get the Federated Club Women Behind it," — if you want to put it over.

New Green Cabbage Is Low-Priced And Plentiful

The low price of new green cabbage is making this versatile vegetable one of the features of the retail food counters. Supplies have increased recently; and generous marketings and reasonable prices are expected to continue.

Mrs. Swift, City Home Demonstration Agent of the Agricultural Extension department, points out that cabbage has many values which make it an important vegetable for use in family meals. For one thing, cabbage is a low calorie vegetable; and that is important to many people who plan meals. For low calorie foods balance well with the higher energy foods such as meats and pastries.

Mrs. Swift, reminds homemakers that cabbage has much to offer in nutritive value; and she says that this vegetable provides most nutritional value when it is served raw or uncooked. One cup of shredded new cabbage can provide about two-thirds of the daily requirement of vitamin C. Cabbage can also be cooked and served in a variety of ways.

New green cabbage should have fresh, crisp-looking leaves, that are free from cuts and bruises, says Mrs. Swift. The cabbage should be firm and heavy for its size. Its firmness and heaviness can usually be determined easily by picking up the cabbage and "weighing" it in your hand.

It pays to buy the size of head that fits the family's needs. Then, plan to use the cabbage as soon after taking it home as possible, to insure getting the greatest quality and nutritional values.

During these late - winter days, Mrs. Swift suggests using cabbage often to add color, interesting flavor, and much nutritive value to family meals. Both the supply of cabbage and its present retail prices make it an economical food buy.

New Green Cabbage Is Low-Priced And Plentiful

The low price of new green cabbage is making this versatile vegetable one of the features of the retail food counters. Supplies have increased recently; and generous marketings and reasonable prices are expected to continue.

Mrs. Swift, City Home Demonstration Agent of the Agricultural Exension department, points out that cabbage has many values which make it an important vegetable for use in family meals. For one thing, cabbage is a low calorie vegetable; and that is important to many people who plan meals. For low calorie foods balance well with the higher energy foods such as meats and pastries.

Mrs. Swift, reminds homemakers that cabbage has much to offer in nutritive value; and she says that this vegetable provides most nutritional value when it is served raw or uncooked. One cup of shredded new cabbage can provide about two-thirds of the daily requirement of vitamin C. Cabbage can also be cooked and served in a variety of ways.

New green cabbage should have fresh, crisp-looking leaves, that are free from cuts and bruises, says Mrs. Swift. The cabbage should be firm and heavy for its size. Its firmness and heaviness can usually be determined easily by picking up the cabbage and "weighing" it in your hand.

It pays to buy the size of head that fits the family's needs. Then, plan to use the cabbage as soon after taking it home as possible, to insure getting the greatest quality and nutritional values.

During these late - winter days, Mrs. Swift suggests using cabbage often to add color, interesting flavor, and much nutritive value to family meals. Both the supply of cabbage and its present retail prices make it an economical food buy.

Double-Ring Ceremony Solemnized At The McGuire Country Club In West Monroe

An interesting event of the month was that of Thursday, March 6th, at six o'clock, when Miss Margaret Nell Wood, daughter of Mrs. Margie Wood and the late Mr. Alex M. Wood, was married to Floyd Vaughan Payne, son of Mrs. C. C. Carroll.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at the McGuire Country Club in West Monroe, by Dr. Ernest Holloway, in the presence of members of the family and a large assembly of friends.

One of the rooms of the reception suite was a bower of loveliness where vows were exchanged before a large mirror reflecting the details of artistic decoration consisting of standards of myriad white tapers nested in bridal wreath, white gladioli, southern smilax and fern.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Ralf La Croix of Shreveport, La., a close friend of the bride and groom, was lovely in a princess-style dress of ecru lace. The double nylon net over-skirt, set on in points around the hips, billowed to ankle length fullness. The sleeves were tiny puffs and the circular neck-line was enhanced by a pendant necklace of gold, rhinestones and crushed pearls with matching earrings. Her hat was an "off the face" model of shirred champagne satin. She wore tiny mitts of champagne nylon net and lace. Her slippers also were champagne satin. Her corsage was an orchid. She carried a tiny white Bible and completing her attire was the traditional "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, and an English six-pence in her shoe."

The groom's best man was Mr. John E. Laughlin, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Guests were ushered by Mr. Stanley Passman, Mr. Horace McClure lighted the candles before the ceremony.

Mrs. Will M. Rolfe, the brides attendant, was becomingly gowned in sky blue nylon net over taffeta with matching Juliet cap and mitts. Her slippers were of satin. Her corsage was white carnations tied with blue satin ribbon.

Mrs. Raymond F. Heritage, Organist, played a prelude of wedding selections consisting of a medley of favorite sentimental tunes of the bride and groom. Beautifully sung by Mr. Irving Zeidman was "Be My Love". Because", and "The Lord's Prayer"- "Malotte".

Reception

White flowers were placed at all vantage points. The bride's table was covered with a lace banquet cloth, centered with a two-tiered wedding cake, resting on a reflector edged with tulle and white camellias. Triple-branched candelabra, burning white tapers, were at each end of the table. Silver trays bearing beautifully iced cakes and mints completed the table.

After Mr. and Mrs. Payne cut the first slice of the wedding cake, Miss Jeane Dowdey and Miss Inez Wright served the bridal confection and iced frappe. Miss Doris Beebe invited the guests to sign the bride's register. Following the reception, the bride and groom left on their wedding trip to an undisclosed destination.

Mrs. Payne chose for her going-away ensemble a navy shantung suit with white waffle pique collar and cuffs. Her hat was white straw with navy velvet trim. Her accessories were navy and white. At her throat was a beautiful cameo pin, which was the groom's gift to his bride. Upon their return they will make their home at 200 Glenmar street in this city. Mr. Payne has been associated with the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Monroe for twelve years. Mrs. Payne is employed by Dunham-Pugh Company, Inc., of Monroe.

Out-of-town guests for the occasion included: Mr. and Mrs. Ralf La Croix of Shreveport, La.; Mr. John E. Laughlin of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mrs. R. B. McCall, Sr., the bride's grandmother, of Bastrop, La.; Mrs. J. S. Rolfe, Mr. Emmett Rolfe, and Mr and Mrs. Will Rolfe of Oak Ridge, La.; Mr. Russell Sprague of Tallulah, La.; Mr. and Mrs. E. P. George of Bastrop, La.; and Mr. Harry Champlin of Little Rock, Ark.

A Barrel Chair

If you're short on chairs and want to make one from a barrel, drop by and see Mrs. L. W. Petgna, 112 Poplar street, Monroe. Also, Bess James, 1403 North Second, Monroe has two attractive and comfortable chairs made from small barrels. Mrs. Petgna says if you're looking for an easy job —don't start on this project. It's not easy, she says, but the finished chair is well worth the trouble. I have mimeographed instructions for making a chair from a barrel —Call 3-2251 if you would like to have one.

A Novel Idea

Yes — and it came from artist Maud Mayo. She says it's not necessary to pay $3.50 for a hat mold. You can make one from a cypress knee! ! ! It takes Maud to think up a clever idea like that. She says there are hundreds of these knees coming up behind the levee on Lakeside Drive. Maud says to let the knee dry, whittle to correct head size, mark hair line in back and front — and there you are. A hat mold and no money spent.

Foods

Jo Whetstone came out with a good recipe — —different too. Take canned corn beef, chill, slice and dip each slice in a batter. Use your regular pancake batter recipe for batter. Drop each slice in hot fat and fry until brown.

Your plentiful foods that should be popularly priced on local markets are: fresh oranges and grapefruit, canned and frozen juices, canned segments, eggs, cabbage and carrots.

Garden Notes

Haven't the red buds been beautiful this year? Some time during summer and fall when the trees are filled with dangling seed pods I think they're not worthwhile. Then — When they bloom — that's another story.

Had you ever thought that you seldom see a bed filled exclusively with one kind of flowering plant ——unless it's roses? There is, to be sure, some ease of maintenance to be gained by planting in isolation wards. I have an idea, though, it's mostly tradition. There's much to be said for handling roses as you would other garden plants — that is planting them in with other shrubs. A few points which apply to rose culture must always be observed: good air circulation; well drained soil and not less than six hours of summer sunlight per day. Rose beds can be faced down with perennials and border plantings to make them more attractive. Susie Brown plans a rose bed with shrub roses at each end, daisies in front. Wish I could draw the picture she has planned. It's kind of a horse shoe shaped bed and will be pretty even when the roses aren't blooming.

Now that the dogwoods and crab apples are in booom make a note to plant these next year — Charlotte Hamilton says "Floribunda" is the name of the beautiful one blooming in her mother's yard. Hopa grows well here and is quite showy. A nice pink to harmonize with the gray houses, too.

Start now getting your big plants ready for moving next fall. That is — those you plan to move. Root prune them. This is done by cutting through the roots at intervals. Measure a circle around the tree or shrub at a distance of about two feet from the trunk. The perimeter of the circle then is divided into six equal sections. A spade can be used to cut through the roots of the plant in alternate sections around the circle. About half the roots will be severed in this way and will send out small new feeder roots in all directions. Next winter when the plant is lifted, it will be a lot better able to stand transplantinz.

That's all for this week. See you next Sunday in this same column.

Twin City Council Of Church Women Has Meeting

Dr. Gladys Falshaw, Returned Missionary, Is Guest Speaker At March Event

The Twin City Council of Church Women met on Friday, March 7, at 3:00 p. m., in the Memorial Methodist Church for its annual meeting, with Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, council president, presiding.

A rare treat was afforded the council in having for the guest speaker Dr. Gladys Falshaw. Dr. Falshaw was born in London, England. She is a returned missionary, on leave from her missionary activities because of ill health. She served first as foreign missionary of the Congregational Church, and later served 16 years as a missionary to the starving children of India. She told of her wonderful experiences in the forests of India among these children, and she has recently founded a "Boys' Town" for these underprivileged boys located in the forests of India. Dr. Falshaw at one time gave her services to these people for only $6.00 a month pay.

The women felt privileged to have a share in sending a love offering by Dr. Falshaw to these India children.

Interesting reports for the year were given by the following officers: Mrs. Lonnie Clark, from the First Methodist Church, chairman of world Christian missions and the world missionary institutes, gave the local report for the world day of prayer observed by all of the church women of the Twin Cities; Mrs. E. P. Cudd, from the First Methodist Church, chairman of Christian social relations, gave her report of the May fellowship day program; Mrs. B. B. Martin, from the First Christian Church, assistant Christian social relations chairman, reported the successful year's work carried on at Louisiana Training Institute.

Mrs. O. M. Arnette, from the Presbyterian Church, submitted the treasurer's report. In the absence of Mrs. J. N. Riddle, the report for the world community day program was given by Mrs. Mike John, Jr.

Other members representing their individual churches as presidents of their women's organizations, and which form the nucleus of the executive committee of the council, together with the council president and a member-at-large, were present.

The reports of the various projects entered into portrayed the progress which this consecrated group of church women is making in the community. This service which these women are offering broadens not only their own Christian perspectives, but also unites their efforts in developing their ecumenical attitudes.

The following names were submitted by the nominating committee and elected as officers for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf; vice-president, Mrs. Fagan Cox; recording secretary, Mrs. J. A. Combs; chairman of Christian social relations, Mrs. E. P. Cudd; assistant chairman of Christian social relations, Mrs. B. B. Martin; publicity chairman, Mrs. E. N. Jackson.

A. L. Smith School To Present Minstrel

The children and parents of the first and second grades of the A. L. Smith School will present their annual Negro minstrel Friday night, March 21, at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium. This performance is under the direction of Mrs. Hulon Matkins. The cast has been having regular practice sessions and reports emanating therefrom are very encouraging. Several "star" actors have been uncovered among the parents of the children and other adults.

This will be the first show staged on our new stage which is 98 per cent complete. With the new curtains and an outstanding cast much real entertainment is in store for all. The proceeds of the show will be used to purchase fans for the first and second grade classrooms.

An interesting event of the month was that of Thursday, March 6th, at six o'clock, when Miss Margaret Nell Wood, daughter of Mrs. Margie Wood and the late Mr. Alex M. Wood, was married to Floyd Vaughan Payne, son of Mrs. C. C. Carroll.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at the McGuire Country Club in West Monroe, by Dr. Ernest Holloway, in the presence of members of the family and a large assembly of friends.

One of the rooms of the reception suite was a bower of loveliness where vows were exchanged before a large mirror reflecting the details of artistic decoration consisting of standards of myriad white tapers nested in bridal wreath, white gladioli, southern smilax and fern.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Ralf La Croix of Shreveport, La., a close friend of the bride and groom, was lovely in a princess-style dress of ecru lace. The double nylon net over-skirt, set on in points around the hips, billowed to ankle length fullness. The sleeves were tiny puffs and the circular neck-line was enhanced by a pendant necklace of gold, rhinestones and crushed pearls with matching earrings. Her hat was an "off the face" model of shirred champagne satin. She wore tiny mitts of champagne nylon net and lace. Her slippers also were champagne satin. Her corsage was an orchid. She carried a tiny white Bible and completing her attire was the traditional "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, and an English six-pence in her shoe."

The groom's best man was Mr. John E. Laughlin, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Guests were ushered by Mr. Stanley Passman, Mr. Horace McClure lighted the candles before the ceremony.

Mrs. Will M. Rolfe, the brides attendant, was becomingly gowned in sky blue nylon net over taffeta with matching Juliet cap and mitts. Her slippers were of satin. Her corsage was white carnations tied with blue satin ribbon.

Mrs. Raymond F. Heritage, Organist, played a prelude of wedding selections, consisting of a medley of favorite sentimental tunes of the bride and groom. Beautifully sung by Mr. Irving Zeidman, was "Be My Love", Because", and "The Lord's Prayer"-"Malotte".

Reception

White flowers were placed at all vantage points. The bride's table was covered with a lace banquet cloth, centered with a two-tiered wedding cake, resting on a reflector edged with tulle and white camellias. Triple-branched candelabra, burning white tapers, were at each end of the table. Silver trays bearing beautifully iced cakes and mints completed the table.

After Mr. and Mrs. Payne cut the first slice of the wedding cake, Miss Jeane Dowdey and Miss Inez Wright served the bridal confection and iced frappe. Miss Doris Beebe invited the guests to sign the bride's register. Following the reception, the bride and groom left on their wedding trip to an undisclosed destination.

Mrs. Payne chose for her going-away ensemble a navy shantung suit with white waffle pique collar and cuffs. Her hat was white straw with navy velvet trim. Her accessories were navy and white. At her throat was a beautiful cameo pin, which was the groom's gift to his bride. Upon their return they will make their home at 200 Glenmar street in this city. Mr. Payne has been associated with the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Monroe for twelve years. Mrs. Payne is employed by Dunham-Pugh Company, Inc., of Monroe.

Out-of-town guests for the occasion included: Mr. and Mrs. Ralf La Croix of Shreveport, La.; Mr. John E. Laughlin of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mrs. R. B. McCall, Sr., the bride's grandmother, of Bastrop, La.; Mrs. J. S. Rolfe, Mr. Emmett Rolfe, and Mr and Mrs. Will Rolfe of Oak Ridge, La.; Mr. Russell Sprague of Tallulah, La.; Mr. and Mrs. E. P. George of Bastrop, La.; and Mr. Harry Champlin of Little Rock, Ark.

A Barrel Chair

If you're short on chairs and want to make one from a barrel, drop by and see Mrs. L. W. Petgna, 112 Poplar street, Monroe. Also, Bess James, 1403 North Second, Monroe has two attractive and comfortable chairs made from small barrels. Mrs. Petgna says if you're looking for an easy job —don't start on this project. It's not easy, she says, but the finished chair is well worth the trouble. I have mimeographed instructions for making a chair from a barrel —Call 3-2251 if you would like to have one.

A Novel Idea

Yes — and it came from artist Maud Mayo. She says it's not necessary to pay $3.50 for a hat mold. You can make one from a cypress knee! ! ! It takes Maud to think up a clever idea like that. She says there are hundreds of these knees coming up behind the levee on Lakeside Drive. Maud says to let the knee dry, whittle to correct head size, mark hair line in back and front — and there you are. A hat mold and no money spent.

Foods

Jo Whetstone came out with a good recipe — —different too. Take canned corn beef, chill, slice and dip each slice in a batter. Use your regular pancake batter recipe for batter. Drop each slice in hot fat and fry until brown.

Your plentiful foods that should be popularly priced on local markets are: fresh oranges and grapefruit, canned and frozen juices, canned segments, eggs, cabbage and carrots.

Garden Notes

Haven't the red buds been beautiful this year? Some time during summer and fall when the trees are filled with dangling seed pods I think they're not worthwhile. Then — When they bloom — that's another story.

Had you ever thought that you seldom see a bed filled exclusively with one kind of flowering plant ——unless it's roses? There is, to be sure, some ease of maintenance to be gained by planting in isolation wards. I have an idea, though, it's mostly tradition. There's much to be said for handling roses as you would other garden plants — that is planting them in with other shrubs. A few points which apply to rose culture must always be observed: good air circulation; well drained soil and not less than six hours of summer sunlight per day. Rose beds can be faced down with perennials and border plantings to make them more attractive. Susie Brown plans a rose bed with shrub roses at each end, daisies in front. Wish I could draw the picture she has planned. It's kind of a horse shoe shaped bed and will be pretty even when the roses aren't blooming.

Now that the dogwoods and crab apples are in booom make a note to plant these next year — Charlotte Hamilton says "Floribunda" is the name of the beautiful one blooming in her mother's yard. Hopa grows well here and is quite showy. A nice pink to harmonize with the gray houses, too.

Start now getting your big plants ready for moving next fall. That is — those you plan to move. Root prune them. This is done by cutting through the roots at intervals. Measure a circle around the tree or shrub at a distance of about two feet from the trunk. The perimeter of the circle then is divided into six equal sections. A spade can be used to cut through the roots of the plant in alternate sections around the circle. About half the roots will be severed in this way and will send out small new feeder roots in all directions. Next winter when the plant is lifted, it will be a lot better able to stand transplanting.

That's all for this week. See you next Sunday in this same column.

Twin City Council Of Church Women Has Meeting

The Twin City Council of Church Women met on Friday, March 7, at 3:00 p. m., in the Memorial Methodist Church for its annual meeting, with Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, council president, presiding.

A rare treat was afforded the council in having for the guest speaker Dr. Gladys Falshaw. Dr. Falshaw was born in London, England. She is a returned missionary, on leave from her missionary activities because of ill health. She served first as foreign missionary of the Congregational Church, and later served 16 years as a missionary to the starving children of India. She told of her wonderful experiences in the forests of India among these children, and she has recently founded a "Boys' Town" for these underprivileged boys located in the forests of India. Dr. Falshaw at one time gave her services to these people for only $6.00 a month pay.

The women felt privileged to have a share in sending a love offering by Dr. Falshaw to these India children.

Interesting reports for the year were given by the following officers: Mrs. Lonnie Clark, from the First Methodist Church, chairman of world Christian missions and the world missionary institutes, gave the local report for the world day of prayer observed by all of the church women of the Twin Cities; Mrs. E. P. Cudd, from the First Methodist Church, chairman of Christian social relations, gave her report of the May fellowship day program; Mrs. B. B. Martin, from the First Christian Church, assistant Christian social relations chairman, reported the successful year's work carried on at Louisiana Training Institute.

Mrs. O. M. Arnette, from the Presbyterian Church, submitted the treasurer's report. In the absence of Mrs. J. N. Riddle, the report for the world community day program was given by Mrs. Mike John, Jr.

Other members representing their individual churches as presidents of their women's organizations, and which form the nucleus of the executive committee of the council, together with the council president and a member-at-large, were present.

The reports of the various projects entered into portrayed the progress which this consecrated group of church women is making in the community. This service which these women are offering broadens not only their own Christian perspectives, but also unites their efforts in developing their ecumenical attitudes.

The following names were submitted by the nominating committee and elected as officers for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf; vice-president, Mrs. Fagan Cox; recording secretary, Mrs. J. A. Combs; chairman of Christian social relations, Mrs. E. P. Cudd; assistant chairman of Christian social relations, Mrs. B. B. Martin; publicity chairman, Mrs. E. N. Jackson.

A. L. Smith School To Present Minstrel

The children and parents of the first and second grades of the A. L. Smith School will present their annual Negro minstrel Friday night, March 21, at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium. This performance is under the direction of Mrs. Hulon Matkins. The cast has been having regular practice sessions and reports emanating therefrom are very encouraging. Several "star" actors have been uncovered among the parents of the children and other adults.

This will be the first show staged on our new stage which is 98 per cent complete. With the new curtains and an outstanding cast much real entertainment is in store for all. The proceeds of the show will be used to purchase fans for the first and second grade classrooms.

Mrs. John Pracher Hostess At Miro Book Club Meeting

The regular meeting of the Miro Book Club was held in the home of Mrs. John Pracher, Monday.

Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn, president, presiding, the collect was read in unison and the salute to the flag given by the thirteen members present. This, being the annual business meeting, many matters of importance were discussed. One amendment to the by-laws was voted and notice was duly given that two amendments to the Constitution will be voted on the next meeting.

The annual meeting of the fifth district was also discussed and many of the members are planning to attend this meeting which will be held in Rayville, March 29.

The president called on the nominating committee, and the chairman, Mrs. A. L. Peters, presented the following slate: president, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Sr.; vice president, Mrs. Thos. Jett; secretary, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell; treasurer, Mrs. F. L. Smith; reporter, Mrs. Neal W. McHenry; and historian, Mrs. John Pracher. All were unanimously elected.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Moore, after accepting the chair, gave a word of praise for all out - going officers and, solicited the cooperation of the newly elected officers, as well as that of all members for a most successful year in future projects of the Miro Book Club.

All committee reports had been previously and favorably accepted by the out - going president and given full recognition to the chairmen on their particular work. After all business had been attended to, the president, in the temporary absence of the program chairman, announced the afternoon program and introduced Mrs. Thos. Jett who conducted a quiz on "what it means to be a full time citizen." As a source of reference, Mrs. Jett used "The Code of Citizenship and the Bill of Rights." "The Code of Citizenship" with its warning foreword: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," inspires one with a deeper love for his country, and whilst fulfilling all his own obligations as a citizen does not forget his responsibility in promoting by instruction and example what each citizen owes to the nation.

The speaker was very explicit about what one should do to be a truly responsible citizen: First — Learn how to register and when to vote. About registration, members were told of changes the state legislature contemplates for January 1953. There is question of a permanent registration by which a resident of a place may not have to renew his registration card unless he change domicile. It may even come to where the permanent registration would be good all over the state. However, this is only in the offing. Other duties we must know and perform are: study local situation, political leaders and how to control them, take part in the primaries, urge trained personnel for public offices, i. e. find the man for the job, not the job for the man. We are to observe the law, do jury duty, share emergencies and assume obligation. Then, we can face the future unafraid, realizing in our own person and all others "the inalienable rights of the individual", worthy, workable and acceptable principles for any government. We may bow our heads in prayer and be worthy of God's blessings upon mankind as citizen of His World.

The "Bill of Rights" entered for an important part of the discussion and, though all members are aware of the wonderful guarantees granted, we learned to appreciate them anew, comparing them with the lack of these in countries held by an iron fist.

Aside from these authentic sources, Mrs. Jett cited many instances where wrong thinking of persons who were not informed on what their particular job consisted in, were totally ignorant of their duties and therefore were incompetent, never attaining a full time citizenship. Mrs. Jett, in her inimitable fashion as a convincing speaker, brought much local color to her talk.

The members who were present and enjoyed these well - timed discussions, were: Mrs. B. L. Mulhern, president, Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Sr., Mrs. Thos. Jett, Mrs. R. L. Wood, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. Neal McHenry, Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. A. S. Tidwell, Mrs. Irving Wolf, and the hostess. A social hour followed the program, and a delicious salad course brought the meeting to a close.

Mary Virginia Parker introduced Miss Fasnacht to the group composed of Y-Teens from Selman, Ouachita Parish Grammar, and Ouachita Parish High School.

In all the Y-Teen clubs this week the members have been having a discussion on the questionnaire that was sent out by the midsouth conference on: "A Girl's Place in Her Home, Her Society, Her Community, Her Work, Her Nation and World." Home Permanent Gives Better Wave!

NEEDS NO NEUTRALIZER!

Only home permanent that neutralizes automatically and gives you a just-right lotion for your type of hair!

Your PROM will look prettier and last longer than any other home permanent. The way your wave looks and the way your wave lasts depends on the neutralizing—so it's wonderful news that now for the first time you can get perfect neutralizing by PROM's new automatic method!

Even if other permanents have failed, PROM is guaranteed to "take" beautifully every time—or your money back! That's because PROM comes in three different types. You can't expect the same lotion to give best results with all types of hair. So remember PROM is the only home permanent that comes with a just-right lotion for your type of hair.

Longer-lasting end curls! With ordinary waves, you have to dab neutralizer on the outside of the curl, and if it doesn't penetrate to the inside, you get hardly any curl in those important ends. That can't happen with PROM! Because PROM neutralizes the entire curl automatically and perfectly every time!

No neutralizer! Only one lotion to use. Easy as A-B-C! A—Apply PROM waving lotion and roll up your curls in the usual way, using any plastic curlers. B—A little later, rinse with plain water. C—Let your hair dry naturally on the curlers and you have a PROM—a wave that looks prettier and lasts longer!

Only PROM comes in 3 types for different types of hair

Mrs. John Pracher Hostess At Miro Book Club Meeting

The regular meeting of the Miro Book Club was held in the home of Mrs. John Pracher, Monday.

Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn, president, presiding, the collect was read in unison and the salute to the flag given by the thirteen members present. This, being the annual business meeting, many matters of importance were discussed. One amendment to the by-laws was voted and notice was duly given that two amendments to the Constitution will be voted on the next meeting.

The annual meeting of the fifth district was also discussed and many of the members are planning to attend this meeting which will be held in Rayville, March 29.

The president called on the nominating committee, and the chairman, Mrs. A. L. Peters, presented the following slate: president, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Sr.; vice president, Mrs. Thos. Jett; secretary, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell; treasurer, Mrs. F. L. Smith; reporter, Mrs. Neal W. McHenry; and historian, Mrs. John Pracher. All were unanimously elected.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Moore, after accepting the chair, gave a word of praise for all out - going officers and, solicited the cooperation of the newly elected officers, as well as that of all members for a most successful year in future projects of the Miro Book Club.

All committee reports had been previously and favorably accepted by the out - going president and given full recognition to the chairmen on their particular work. After all business had been attended to, the president, in the temporary absence of the program chairman, announced the afternoon program and introduced Mrs. Thos. Jett who conducted a quiz on "what it means to be a full time citizen." As a source of reference, Mrs. Jett used "The Code of Citizenship and the Bill of Rights." "The Code of Citizenship" with its warning foreword: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," inspires one with a deeper love for his country, and whilst fulfilling all his own obligations as a citizen does not forget his responsibility in promoting by instruction and example what each citizen owes to the nation.

The speaker was very explicit about what one should do to be a truly responsible citizen: First — Learn how to register and when to vote. About registration, members were told of changes the state legislature contemplates for January 1953. There is question of a permanent registration by which a resident of a place may not have to renew his registration card unless he change domicile. It may even come to where the permanent registration would be good all over the state. However, this is only in the offing. Other duties we must know and perform are: study local situation, political leaders and how to control them, take part in the primaries, urge trained personnel for public offices, i. e. find the man for the job, not the job for the man. We are to observe the law, do jury duty, share emergencies and assume obligation. Then, we can face the future unafraid, realizing in our own person and all others "the inalienable rights of the individual", worthy, workable and acceptable principles for any government. We may bow our heads in prayer and be worthy of God's blessings upon mankind as citizen of His World.

The "Bill of Rights" entered for an important part of the discussion and, though all members are aware of the wonderful guarantees granted, we learned to appreciate them anew, comparing them with the lack of these in countries held by an iron fist.

Aside from these authentic sources, Mrs. Jett cited many instances where wrong thinking of persons who were not informed on what their particular job consisted in, were totally ignorant of their duties and therefore were incompetent, never attaining a full time citizenship. Mrs. Jett, in her inimitable fashion as a convincing speaker, brought much local color to her talk.

The members who were present and enjoyed these well - timed discussions, were: Mrs. B. L. Mulhern, president, Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Sr., Mrs. Thos. Jett, Mrs. R. L. Wood, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. Neal McHenry, Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. A. S. Tidwell, Mrs. Irving Wolf, and the hostess. A social hour followed the program, and a delicious salad course brought the meeting to a close.

Miss Ann Askew Is Bride Of George Telisphore Alleman, Jr.

Widespread interest is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Ann Askew and George Telisphore Alleman, Jr., which was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, March 1, in the Jonesboro Methodist Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Askew of Hodge, La., and Mr. Alleman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Alleman of Shreveport.

The vows were exchanged in a setting of white and green, before an arrangement of white stock and emerald fern leaves in floor baskets. Slender white cathedral tapers in multiple floor candelabra cast a soft glow upon the wedding scene and formed a background for the bridal party. Standards of emerald fern were banked behind the altar, and embossed white satin bows and blossoms of stock marked the pews reserved for relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Joseph Key, at the organ, rendered a concert of prenuptial numbers as the ushers, Bobby Alleman of Shreveport, Eddie Askew of Hodge, Sammy Jones of Haynesville, Bill Randolph, Jay Edwards, both of Shreveport, and Edward Trippe of Mansfield, seated the guests. Mrs. Key also accompanied Mr. George Willoughby Thomas of Louisiana Tech, who sang "Through the Years," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional processional and recessional marked the beginning and the end of the ceremony.

Miss Winnie Askew, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a bouffant gown of dark fern green net over taffeta, with matching toque and carried a bouquet of yellow tulips garlanded with English ivy. Four rows of tucks outlined the decolletage of the tightly fitted bodice and the widely flaring skirt was of layers of net over taffeta. Her gown was complemented by a tightly fitted jacket of matching taffeta, which featured wide revers ending in a deep front closing with self-covered buttons. A short peplum accentuated the natural waistline.

The bridesmaids were: Misses Betty Lou Etter, Beverly Stovall and Nelle Daricek, and junior bridesmaids were Misses Sarah Robinson and Susie Acklin. Their gowns were identical to the maid of honor in a medium shade of fern green. They also carried bouquets of yellow tulips and ivy.

The candlelighters were Misses Janice Dennis of Jonesboro, and Peggy Frantom of Monroe. Their identical gowns were in a light shade of fern green.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a picture of loveliness in her wedding gown of mint satin which featured a tightly fitted bodice ending in points both in the front and back, numerous self - covered buttons formed a front closing from the high neckline to the point of the bodice. The long, fitted sleeves had brocaded lace inserts in cuff effect which ended in points over the hands. The stiff petal collar was of matching lace and made an effective frame for the bride's face. The billowing skirt over crinoline, ended in a short train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion of brocaded net was attached to a Juliet cap of lace bound in mint satin and outlined with seed pearls. Her only adornment was a matching pearl earring and necklace set. Her bridal bouquet was a beautiful yellow - throated white orchid surrounded by white hyacinths and shower streamers of white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Askew chose for her daughter's wedding a two-piece tailleur of navy faille with which she wore a smart lilac hat and gloves with navy shoes and bag. Her corsage was of white ranunculus.

Reception

Following the church ceremony, a reception was held at the Advance Golf and Country Club in Hodge. The white bridal decor was depicted in the floral arrangements placed at vantage points in the reception room and in the table decorations. The bride's table featured an elaborate arrangement of white tulips flanked by branched candelabra holding slender white candles. The tiered bridal confection was banked with white stock blossoms and the crystal and silver table appointments accentuated the effective motif. Miss Ann McDonald of Jonesboro, cut and served the cake and Miss Janet Littlefield of Hodge and Shreveport, presided at the punch service. They were assisted in the serving courtesies by Misses Joann Durham of Hodge, and Jatis Robinson and Roberta Cothran of Jonesboro. They were all gowned in effective afternoon models in blending spring colors.

Miss Harriett Michaud of Hodge, presided at the bride's register.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Alleman left for a short wedding trip to New Orleans. On their return, they will reside in Ruston where Mr. Alleman will complete his studies at Louisiana Tech.

For traveling the bride wore a smart faille suit in a flattering baby blue color and which featured self-covered buttons and a crisp white collar. She wore white gloves and navy accessories which included a cleverly designed navy straw hat. Pinned to her shoulder was the white yellow-throated orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of the Jonesboro-Hodge High School and prior to her marriage, was a student at Louisiana Tech in Ruston. She is a member of the Phi Mu sorority at Tech.

The groom is a graduate of Byrd High School in Shreveport. He will continue his studies at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, where he is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Miss Ann Askew Is Bride Of George Telisphore Alleman, Jr.

Widespread interest is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Ann Askew and George Telisphore Alleman, Jr., which was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, March 1, in the Jonesboro Methodist Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Askew of Hodge, La., and Mr. Alleman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Alleman of Shreveport.

The vows were exchanged in a setting of white and green, before an arrangement of white stock and emerald fern leaves in floor baskets. Slender white cathedral tapers in multiple floor candelabra cast a soft glow upon the wedding scene and formed a background for the bridal party. Standards of emerald fern were banked behind the altar, and embossed white satin bows and blossoms of stock marked the pews reserved for relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Joseph Key, at the organ, rendered a concert of prenuptial numbers as the ushers, Bobby Alleman of Shreveport, Eddie Askew of Hodge, Sammy Jones of Haynesville, Bill Randolph, Jay Edwards, both of Shreveport, and Edward Trippe of Mansfield, seated the guests. Mrs. Key also accompanied Mr. George Willoughby Thomas of Louisiana Tech, who sang "Through the Years," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional processional and recessional marked the beginning and the end of the ceremony.

Miss Winnie Askew, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a bouffant gown of dark fern green net over taffeta, with matching toque and carried a bouquet of yellow tulips garlanded with English ivy. Four rows of tucks outlined the decolletage of the tightly fitted bodice and the widely flaring skirt was of layers of net over taffeta. Her gown was complemented by a tightly fitted jacket of matching taffeta, which featured wide revers ending in a deep front closing with self-covered buttons. A short peplum accentuated the natural waistline.

The bridesmaids were: Misses Betty Lou Etter, Beverly Stovall and Nelle Daricek, and junior bridesmaids were Misses Sarah Robinson and Susie Acklin. Their gowns were identical to the maid of honor in a medium shade of fern green. They also carried bouquets of yellow tulips and ivy.

The candlelighters were Misses Janice Dennis of Jonesboro, and Peggy Frantom of Monroe. Their identical gowns were in a light shade of fern green.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a picture of loveliness in her wedding gown of mint satin which featured a tightly fitted bodice ending in points both in the front and back, numerous self - covered buttons formed a front closing from the high neckline to the point of the bodice. The long, fitted sleeves had brocaded lace inserts in cuff effect which ended in points over the hands. The stiff petal collar was of matching lace and made an effective frame for the bride's face. The billowing skirt over crinoline, ended in a short train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion of brocaded net was attached to a Juliet cap of lace bound in mint satin and outlined with seed pearls. Her only adornment was a matching pearl earring and necklace set. Her bridal bouquet was a beautiful yellow - throated white orchid surrounded by white hyacinths and shower streamers of white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Askew chose for her daughter's wedding a two-piece tailleur of navy faille with which she wore a smart lilac hat and gloves with navy shoes and bag. Her corsage was of white ranunculus.

Reception

Following the church ceremony, a reception was held at the Advance Golf and Country Club in Hodge. The white bridal decor was depicted in the floral arrangements placed at vantage points in the reception room and in the table decorations. The bride's table featured an elaborate arrangement of white tulips flanked by branched candelabra holding slender white candles. The tiered bridal confection was banked with white stock blossoms and the crystal and silver table appointments accentuated the effective motif. Miss Ann McDonald of Jonesboro, cut and served the cake and Miss Janet Littlefield of Hodge and Shreveport, presided at the punch service. They were assisted in the serving courtesies by Misses Joann Durham of Hodge, and Jatis Robinson and Roberta Cothran of Jonesboro. They were all gowned in effective afternoon models in blending spring colors.

Miss Harriett Michaud of Hodge, presided at the bride's register.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Alleman left for a short wedding trip to New Orleans. On their return, they will reside in Ruston where Mr. Alleman will complete his studies at Louisiana Tech.

For traveling the bride wore a smart faille suit in a flattering baby blue color and which featured self-covered buttons and a crisp white collar. She wore white gloves and navy accessories which included a cleverly designed navy straw hat. Pinned to her shoulder was the white yellow-throated orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of the Jonesboro-Hodge High School and prior to her marriage, was a student at Louisiana Tech in Ruston. She is a member of the Phi Mu sorority at Tech.

The groom is a graduate of Byrd High School in Shreveport. He will continue his studies at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, where he is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Out-Of-Town Guests

Among the out-of-town guests attending the Alleman-Askew nuptials on Saturday, March 1, were:

JAYCEE JAYNES HEAR MRS. SWIFT AT DINNER MEETING

The Rendezvous was the scene of the March meeting of the Jaycee Janes. After a delicious dinner and conversational hour, the president, Mrs. Billy Inabnet, presided over a brief business session.

Mrs. Charles Regan introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Mildred G. Swift, whose topic was "Making the Home More Attractive on the Outside." Mrs. Swift suggested that each homemaker draw a plan of his lot. "It's much easier to move a shrub or tree on paper than it is after it has been planted," Mrs. Swift said. She stressed a simple plan with minimum upkeep that gives the homeowner more time to enjoy the results. "Get a lawn and your trees established first," she pointed out. A lovely lawn and trees are complete in themselves.

New members introduced at this meeting were: Mrs. E. C. Koontz; Mrs. Dan L. Nevils; Mrs. Chevis Sherrouse; and Mrs. Miles A. Newburn.

Mrs. Inabnet, commenting on the increased attendance, stated that it was good to see so many wives of Jaycees joining the Jaynes.

NEWS FROM THE PARISH LIBRARY

This message today is addressed especially to program chairmen of clubs, who are interested in something new for their club programs. After the first of April, the Ouachita Parish Public Library will have a moving picture showing all of its activities to show to the public. This picture is a 16mm color film and will run for approximately 12 minutes. For the past week we have been very busy taking the pictures in all of the branches. Shots have been made in Monroe, West Monroe, on the Bookmobile and at the Carver Branch.

This film was made possible through the generosity of Mr. Alex Winn of the Winn Trim Company, who donated his time, knowledge and equipment to the making of the film and to several public spirited citizens who donated the money to buy the rolls of film used in taking the picture. Moving pictures are now recognized as one of the most potent means of education and it is hoped that this film will bring home to the people of Ouachita parish the many and varied activities of the Library. Mr. Winn has made several other films for local groups, but he says that he thinks this one will have the largest popular appeal, because so many people have appeared on the movie. More than one hundred people have been photographed using one of the four branches of the library. If you are interested in having this film shown, please call the library and ask Miss Flanders to book it for you.

New books continue to arrive at the library every week. One of the most interesting new novels received during the past week is "Romantic Lady" by Alice Walworth Graham. The setting is Natchez before and after the Civil War. It is the life story of Anna Carew, for whom the south was a whole world. It is the story of lost causes—the Civil war and her own lost love. Mrs. Graham was born and grew up in Natchez, and now makes her home in New Orleans. She is a charming woman, who writes with feeling about the setting and people which she knows. She is author of the very popular book of two years ago, "Natchez Woman."

A book of great interest at the present time is "What Eisenhower Thinks," edited by Allan Taylor. This is an excellent clipping project with competent editing and should answer questions of many people about what Eisenhower thinks about the fundamentals of democratic freedom, about organized labor and its leadership, about controls on the part of the national government, about bureaucracy, government spending, military service, preparedness, cooperation with the rest of the world, aid to Europe, relations with Britain, a United Europe etc. From a conservative background Eisenhower has developed a broad vision, a far more flexible viewpoint than the accepted "military mind" and he has expressed himself on more subjects than one would think possible with his experience. This is a book that every citizen should read and decide whether he is the man who should be elected president of our country.

Many people have read with interest the serial publication of the story of Ileana, Princess of Romania "I Live Again." It is now available at the Public Library in book form. It is a beautifully written story of a woman who has faced the accidental death of war and the purposeful death of assassination. Her life has often been spared by mere chance. She has known Communist leaders, peasants, underground workers, presidents and kings, yet now she is completely happy as a housewife living in the suburbs of Boston.

Books on flower arranging are always popular. One of the newest ones is "Summer and Autum Flowers" by Constance Spry. She writes with a light and apparently casual touch which graces her unique knowledge of the subject gardening point of view. An outstanding feature of this book is the lovely color photographs of Miss Spry's own arrangements.

Your Ouachita Parish Public Library invites you to take advantage of its resources. It is your library and you should use it.

The Rendezvous was the scene of the March meeting of the Jaycee Janes. After a delicious dinner and conversational hour, the president, Mrs. Billy Inabnet, presided over a brief business session.

Mrs. Charles Regan introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Mildred G. Swift, whose topic was "Making the Home More Attractive on the Outside." Mrs. Swift suggested that each homemaker draw a plan of his lot. "It's much easier to move a shrub or tree on paper than it is after it has been planted," Mrs. Swift said. She stressed a simple plan with minimum upkeep that gives the homeowner more time to enjoy the results. "Get a lawn and your trees established first," she pointed out. A lovely lawn and trees are complete in themselves.

New members introduced at this meeting were: Mrs. E. C. Koontz; Mrs. Dan L. Nevils; Mrs. Chevis Sherrouse; and Mrs. Miles A. Newburn.

Mrs. Inabnet, commenting on the increased attendance, stated that it was good to see so many wives of Jaycees joining the Jaynes.

MAGNOLIA STUDY CLUB MEETS MITH MRS. ALINE BANISTER

The home of Mrs. Aline Banister was decorated with lovely arrangements of spring flowers which gave an atmosphere of spring to the members of Magnolia Study Club. The conversational piece was an arrangement of King Alfreds and Dutch Iris.

Mrs. C. C. Lucky, president, called the meeting to order and the club joined in the pledge of allegiance to the flag and read the club collect. A roll call was answered by naming a Federated Officer. A Red Cross donation was presented by the club to the local Red Cross Drive. Literature on the Statehood of Alaska was passed among the members to read. The club had written to Senator Russell Long, and he in turn had sent the literature for the club to consider, since this does not seem to be the time, or rather the correct time to have Alaska to join as a state of the United States. Further plans for attending the 5th district meeting in Rayville, March 29th, were made.

The president, Mrs. Lucky turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Mrs. Ed Hislop, Jr., who presented Mrs. A. T. White as the first speaker on the program. Mrs. White spoke on Know Your Federation and "Why Federate?" She stated that the term federation is defined as several groups or organizations banded together under one general government. A federation is a creation of civic minded groups who function more efficiently. Our own government is a fine example of federation.

Mrs. White said, "Digressing a moment from my principle theme, I want to say to anyone who believes that our efforts toward making the world a better place to live is futile simply because we are women, someone has said that this is a man's world and what can we do about it? If this were ever true it is becoming less and less so.

Mrs. Hislop presented Mrs. H. O. Hartman as the next speaker. She gave an interesting review of "Warren Austin Prominent Man in the United Nations." Warren Robinson Austin was born 73 years ago in Highgate, Vermont, a small village with a population of about 300. Austin's dragon - swearing Grandfather predicted that Warren would always have 20 irons in the fire at one time and never finish anything. Mr. Austin remembers telling his favorite horse that he would never start anything he could not finish. He graduated in law from the University of Vermont. He was elected states attorney for Franklin county and later Mayor of St. Albans, he then turned from politics to private enterprise. For 20 years he served as a corporation lawyer and invested in the Rock of Ages granite Co. In 1915 The American International Corp. retained him for a big job in China. This trip to the Orient was the broadening of his horizon. At 53 years of age he became U. S. Senator. He went to Washington in 1931 and stayed on winning two elections. He distrusted big government, viewed with alarm the growth of executive power and centralized bureaucracy. His opposition to the new deal never waivered. As the New Deal aged and World War II cast its shadows Austin became more absorbed in crucial debate between the isolationists and intranationalists."

Delicious refreshments were served to the following members: Mrs. J. E. Nelson, Mrs. R. N. Dozier, Mrs. Frank Reitzell, Mrs. A. T. White, Mrs. W. O. Ferguson, Mrs. Tom Leos, Mrs. C. C. Lucky, Mrs. Ed Hislop, Jr. Mrs. Ed Hochenedel, Mrs. Fred Tucker, Mrs. Milton Ford, Mrs. Joe Smith and the hostesses Mrs. Aline Banister and Mrs. A. R. Butler.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN W. GRIFFITH CELEBRATE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Griffith celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday night at an open house held in their home on the Loop road. Over 200 friends called between the receiving hours of 7:30 and 10:00 p. m.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Griffith, who was wearing a lovely crepe model with beaded trim complemented by a yellow orchid corsage, Mr. Griffith, their daughter, Mrs. G. O. Sword, in a printed taffeta frock with a corsage of pink carnations, their granddaughter, Miss Judy Roberts, who chose a slate blue pongee dress and a corsage of red carnations, and their grandson, Grady Weaver Roberts. Mrs. Sword and her children, Miss Judy Roberts and Grady Roberts, arrived from New York the latter part of last week to be with Mr. and Mrs. Griffith on their Golden Anniversary.

Lovely flower arrangements of carnations, jonquils, tulips, and Bird of Paradise, were placed at vantage points throughout the house. The flowers were gifts sent by friends to Mr. and Mrs. Griffith on this happy occasion. The Sunday School Class to which Mrs. Griffith belongs sent a lovely glass container filled with ivy. The couple received numerous gifts of a gold nature, several substantial checks.

In the dining room the table, overlaid with a lace cloth with yellow linen undercloth, was centered with the lovely two-tiered wedding confection embossed in gold leaves and white rose buds topped with two golden slippers and the gold numerals "50." Flanking this arrangement were gold candlestick holders with white candles. Individual cakes with gold numerals "50" were served. The lace cloth and linen cloth were brought from New York by Mrs. Sword.

Attending the lovely event from out of town was Mrs. Griffith's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Skwog, of Shreveport.

"Martyr" means literally "witness" and acquired its present connotation of "one who dies for a cause" when many early Christians testified to the truth of their convictions by their deaths.

He was elected states attorney for Franklin county and later Mayor of St. Albans, he then turned from politics to private enterprise. For 20 years he served as a corporation lawyer and invested in the Rock of Ages granite Co. In 1915 The American International Corp. retained him for a big job in China. This trip to the Orient was the broadening of his horizon. At 53 years of age he became U. S. Senator. He went to Washington in 1931 and stayed on winning two elections. He distrusted big government, viewed with alarm the growth of executive power and centralized bureaucracy. His opposition to the new deal never waivered. As the New Deal aged and World War II cast its shadows Austin became more absorbed in crucial debate between the isolationists and intranationalists."

MR. AND MRS. JOHN W. GRIFFITH CELEBRATE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Griffith celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday night at an open house held in their home on the Loop road. Over 200 friends called between the receiving hours of 7:30 and 10:00 p. m.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Griffith, who was wearing a lovely crepe model with beaded trim complemented by a yellow orchid corsage, Mr. Griffith, their daughter, Mrs. G. O. Sword, in a printed taffeta frock with a corsage of pink carnations, their granddaughter, Miss Judy Roberts, who chose a slate blue pongee dress and a corsage of red carnations, and their grandson, Grady Weaver Roberts. Mrs. Sword and her children, Miss Judy Roberts and Grady Roberts, arrived from New York the latter part of last week to be with Mr. and Mrs. Griffith on their Golden Anniversary.

Lovely flower arrangements of carnations, jonquils, tulips, and Bird of Paradise, were placed at vantage points throughout the house. The flowers were gifts sent by friends to Mr. and Mrs. Griffith on this happy occasion. The Sunday School Class to which Mrs. Griffith belongs sent a lovely glass container filled with ivy. The couple received numerous gifts of a gold nature, several substantial checks.

In the dining room the table, overlaid with a lace cloth with yellow linen undercloth, was centered with the lovely two-tiered wedding confection embossed in gold leaves and white rose buds topped with two golden slippers and the gold numerals "50." Flanking this arrangement were gold candlestick holders with white candles. Individual cakes with gold numerals "50" were served. The lace cloth and linen cloth were brought from New York by Mrs. Sword.

Attending the lovely event from out of town was Mrs. Griffith's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Skwog, of Shreveport.

"Martyr" means literally "witness" and acquired its present connotation of "one who dies for a cause" when many early Christians testified to the truth of their convictions by their deaths.

WELCOME BRANCH BOOK CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. V. S. GARNETT

On Wednesday the Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book Club was entertained in the home of Mrs. V. S. Garnett with Mrs. Morris Miller as co-hostess. Mrs. Fred Hornberger opened the meeting by leading the group in the salute to the flag and giving the club collect.

During the business session Mrs. Fred Hornberger, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, and Mrs. F. E. Black were appointed delegates to represent the club at the fifth district meeting of Federated Clubs to be held at Rayville, La.

Mrs. J. D. Petty, acting program chairman presented Mrs. W. R. Cain who spoke on the new India. In her talk she discussed the book by John Muehl "Interview of India." Mr. Muehl traveled on foot, in oxcarts, on horse back, riding pillion on a camel and by boat from the north to the south of India interviewing the people to satisfy his curiosity about certain things in India since independence six years ago. It is obvious to Mr. Muehl from the state of unrest among the people everywhere that though they have gained the freedom for which they long sought that they are an unhappy people and essentially the government is little different.

Due to the caste system, education, geography and irrigation, India's past glory was glory of the wealthy but hardship and poverty for the masses. The British did not actually rule but maintained a delicate balance of one force against another force. The new rulers had to adopt of necessity the same procedure used by the British, and until there is some change in basic religious philosophy of the Hindu, there is little hope of a peaceful happy India.

In connection with the program subject on India Mrs. Garnett displayed a collection of rugs, wall hangings, baskets, brass vases, carved ivory and jewelry made in India. Mrs. Morris Miller modeled a sari, a native costume, purchased in Calcutta and made of hand woven white silk with pure gold threads.

Mrs. J. Norman Coon accompanied by Mrs. Henry Williams at the piano sang "The Song of India" and the "Kashmiri Song."

Members and guests attending were Mrs. Mary Lee Barbee, Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. W. R. Cain, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. Sidney Douglas, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. R. R. Griffith, Mrs. A. S. Gunter, Mrs. George Phebus, Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. W. B. Wheelis, Mrs. Henry Williams, and Mrs. Cyril Yancey.

Next an old cast off black felt was blocked and changed into a most stylish shape. At an early date the members of the club will spend the day at the Legion Hall bringing old hats up to date.

How To Catch More Fish . . .

Amazing New Discovery Now Used By Over 150,000 Fishermen.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Fishermen everywhere are yanking record catches out of our lakes and streams by treating their baits and lures with a great new fish attractor called Doodle Oil.

Here is what B. C. Grier, 1210 Excelsoir St., Winston - Salem, N. C., says: "On my first bottle of Doodle Oil I had good luck. Caught 35 Crappie, 23 Catfish, 18 Carp, 28 Bream, 3 Bass and 13 Perch . . . 122 fish in all. Please send more Doodle Oil."

Louis Wohlleber, 1419 E. 3rd St., Maysville, Kentucky writes: "Gave Doodle Oil a try-out last Saturday. Watched ten men fish all morning without a bite. Put Doodle Oil on my hook and within two minutes I had caught a seven pound Channel Cat. Then I quit using Doodle Oil for one hour and didn't have a bite. Then I went back to using it and caught fish from 2 to 7 lbs. Enclosed is order for eight more bottles. My friends want to use Doodle Oil, too."

187 FISH CAUGHT

T. C. "Bubber" Craft, Aliceville, Alabama, has this to say: "I had never caught a mess of fish out of this certain lake in all my twenty years of fishing. After purchasing one bottle of your Doodle Oil and sprinkling a few drops on [illegible] I caught 187 Blue and Shell Crackers, Channel Cat . . . Been to the last three mornings of fishing. I'll never go on another fishing trip without Doodle Oil."

DOODLE OIL PASSES TEST

Isaac Lively, 353 West Louisiana Street, Knoxville, Tenn., went trotline-fishing with a party of four on the French Broad River about a mile below Douglas Dam and caught 53 big blue catfish by using Doodle Oil. "While we were fishing," Isaac Lively said, "we saw a big catfish and a carp in a clear pool where a creek ran into the river. We threw a hook with a worm on it at the cat and he wouldn't touch it. We brought the hook out and put some Doodle Oil on it. The cat, while we were watching, took it right off. This proved to all of us that Doodle Oil really does the work."

You've just read what these fishermen say about Doodle Oil. We've had other stories, just as enthusiastic, about results with Doodle Oil on pike, perch, bass, trout, crappie, catfish, sea trout, sea bass, snook and others.

SMELL LEADS FISH TO FOOD

Fish depend heavily on their sense of smell to find their food. Doodle Oil gives your bait or artificial lure an aromatic scent that appeals to all kinds of fish.

Try Doodle Oil on your next fishing trip. If your fishing tackle dealer doesn't have Doodle Oil yet, order direct by sending $1.00 for each bottle wanted to Davis Mfg. Co., Dept. LA-4, 113 W. Jackson Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

ST. ANNE'S CIRCLE TO SPONSOR BENEFIT BOOK REVIEW TUESDAY

A treat is in store for the lovers of good books, for the ones that study history, and for the ones that enjoy an eloquent speaker reviewing a good book, one that won for it's author the Nobel Prize in 1905, and one that has been twice filmed.

Rev. Dennis A. Curren will review "Quo Vadis" on Tuesday night at 7:30 in the evening at the St. Matthew's gymnasium auditorium. Father Curren is a fluent speaker and will make the listener live with his characters during the reign of Nero 54-68 A. D. Father Curren has frequently reviewed books throughout north Louisiana, having just recently reviewed "Quo Vadis" in Shreveport and Alexandria.

The review is coming in a timely time, as the motion picture, on which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spent seven million dollars and more than three years filming, will be shown in Monroe shortly after Easter, and the review will give those that have read the book an opportunity to refresh their memory before seeing the picture and those that have not read the book will enjoy a good review before seeing the picture.

This is a "must" on your busy schedule, and Mrs. Morris Peterson, who is the ticket chairman, has announced that the students may come for half-price, which is fifty cents.

A coffee and conversational hour is being planned for the guests after the book review.

The Detroit Tigers have had 13 managers since the 1900 season.

Hal Boyle's Notebook

The pavements were her playground. One day when she was seven years old she darted into the street after a floating paper parachute. A car struck her. She spent the next six months in bed, wore crutches for another year.

"It wasn't so bad," she remembers. "I got a lot of presents."

Later she went to a Brooklyn high school. A chum from those days recalls Edythe as "a quiet, friendly girl—but kind of on the mousey side."

Well, Edythe came back for a visit to her old home streets this week, and there wasn't the least thing mousey about her. She looked more like a gardenia petal.

The students jammed into her old high school auditorium to see her, and when she signed their autograph books she didn't write "Edythe Marrener." She wrote "Susan Hayward."

Under this name the slender, red-haired Brooklyn girl has made 31 films in Hollywood. Her latest is "With a Song in My Heart," the life story of Singer Jane Froman.

I had lunch with Miss Hayward. As she reached for oysters in a dish she loyally called "erster stew," she remarked that she wasn't exciting to interview.

"I'm married, and don't go out much, and I don't have any boy friends hanging around," she said. "I have two sons—twins—and we live on a small place in San Fernando Valley.

"I had a happy childhood here, but I don't believe I ever want to live in New York any more. I like the outdoors too much. I'm anxious to get back home. My lilacs are about to open, and I hate to miss that. I wait for it every year."

She talked about her pigtail days in Flatbush.

"The thing I remember most is that we didn't tell time by calendars," she said. "There was the 'immy' season when you played marbles—we called them 'immies.'

"There was pitch penny season, steal - the - ice - from - the - ice - wagon season, singing - on - the - stoop season, bottle top season, when everybody collected and traded bottle tops.

"Oh, and there was baseball card season, when we collected the pictures of baseball players, and chase - the - paper - parachute season, and kite flying season. My father—he worked in a subway station—loved to build all kinds of kites. Once we had four kites up at the same time."

But Miss Hayward's favorite was selling - old - newspapers - to - the - junkman season.

"You slipped as many flat rocks as you could in between the layers of paper to makke them weigh more," she laughed. "And if a rock slipped out, the junkman got made and chased you out of his yard."

Another golden event was thanksgiving-singing season. The children dressed in old clothes and sang beneath tenement windows. The grownups were supposed to toss down coins in appreciation.

"Every once in a while some old meanie would throw down heated pennies," she said, "and when we ran to pick them up they'd burn our fingers."

Miss Hayward looked pensive.

"These are games my kids will never know," she said. "They play school games, they swim and dive. Maybe that is better. But sometimes I wonder if they have the same fun I did, growing up in Brooklyn."

Southern Science, Industry Directory Of Facts Given

ATLANTA, March 15 (AP)—The Southern Association of Science and Industry today released its new industrial directory of facts and figures on the south.

Listed in what is probably the most comprehensive survey of southern industry ever compiled are the names of more than 3,000 large firms.

It contains the names of executives, numbers of employes, principle products and an index to sources of supplies and materials.

The directory noted, in addition, that for each working day during 1951, the south added to its industrial potential one, new multi-million plant.

It also observed that "the south now imports from other areas more than $2 billion worth of industrial equipment and supplies."

In addition, the directory said:

"The chemical industry is growing faster than any other in the south. Last year more than half the nation's chemical plant expansion was in the south.

"There are now operating in the south more than 60 large pulp and paper mills having a daily capacity of nearly 25,000 tons. Nine new mills, involving an investment of $200 million are under construction.

"The south has taken the lead in textile manufacturing . . . The region produced $2.1 billion worth of textiles last year and paid textile workers $1.2 billion in wages.

"The south outproduces the nation in cotton, citrus, peaches, peanuts, sugar cane, sweet potatoes, rice, whisky and tobacco.

"The south produces $4.5 billion worth of minerals annually. Southern states lead in the production of bauxite, diamonds, phosphate rock, kaolin, fuller's earth, marble, feldspar, mica, zinc and lead ore, ball clay, pyrites, bromine, graphite, helium, magnesium, natural gas, petroleum, antimony and sulphur.

"Steel and other metal producing facilities are being greatly expanded. New plants will enable the south to produce more aluminum than any other area."

The survey embraced 14 states bounded by Kentucky and Maryland to the north and including all the gulf states.

The association was founded at Mobile, Ala., in March, 1941, to promote "the study and development of the resources of the south."

ST. ANNE'S CIRCLE TO SPONSOR BENEFIT BOOK REVIEW TUESDAY

A treat is in store for the lovers of good books, for the ones that study history, and for the ones that enjoy an eloquent speaker reviewing a good book, one that won for it's author the Nobel Prize in 1905, and one that has been twice filmed.

Rev. Dennis A. Curren will review "Quo Vadis" on Tuesday night at 7:30 in the evening at the St. Matthew's gymnasium auditorium. Father Curren is a fluent speaker and will make the listener live with his characters during the reign of Nero 54-68 A. D. Father Curren has frequently reviewed books throughout north Louisiana, having just recently reviewed "Quo Vadis" in Shreveport and Alexandria.

The review is coming in a timely time, as the motion picture, on which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spent seven million dollars and more than three years filming, will be shown in Monroe shortly after Easter, and the review will give those that have read the book an opportunity to refresh their memory before seeing the picture and those that have not read the book will enjoy a good review before seeing the picture.

This is a "must" on your busy schedule, and Mrs. Morris Peterson, who is the ticket chairman, has announced that the students may come for half-price, which is fifty cents.

A coffee and conversational hour is being planned for the guests after the book review.

The Detroit Tigers have had 13 managers since the 1900 season.

Notebook

The pavements were her playground. One day when she was seven years old she darted into the street after a floating paper parachute. A car struck her. She spent the next six months in bed, wore crutches for another year.

"It wasn't so bad," she remembers. "I got a lot of presents."

Later she went to a Brooklyn high school. A chum from those days recalls Edythe as "a quiet, friendly girl—but kind of on the mousey side."

Well, Edythe came back for a visit to her old home streets this week, and there wasn't the least thing mousey about her. She looked more like a gardenia petal.

The students jammed into her old high school auditorium to see her, and when she signed their autograph books she didn't write "Edythe Marrener." She wrote "Susan Hayward."

Under this name the slender, red-haired Brooklyn girl has made 31 films in Hollywood. Her latest is "With a Song in My Heart," the life story of Singer Jane Froman.

I had lunch with Miss Hayward. As she reached for oysters in a dish she loyally called "erster stew," she remarked that she wasn't exciting to interview.

"I'm married, and don't go out much, and I don't have any boy friends hanging around," she said. "I have two sons—twins—and we live on a small place in San Fernando Valley.

"I had a happy childhood here, but I don't believe I ever want to live in New York any more. I like the outdoors too much. I'm anxious to get back home. My lilacs are about to open, and I hate to miss that. I wait for it every year."

She talked about her pigtail days in Flatbush.

"The thing I remember most is that we didn't tell time by calendars," she said. "There was the 'immy' season when you played marbles—we called them 'immies.'

"There was pitch penny season, steal - the - ice - from - the - ice - wagon season, singing - on - the - stoop season, bottle top season, when everybody collected and traded bottle tops.

"Oh, and there was baseball card season, when we collected the pictures of baseball players, and chase - the - paper - parachute season, and kite flying season. My father—he worked in a subway station—loved to build all kinds of kites. Once we had four kites up at the same time."

But Miss Hayward's favorite was selling - old - newspapers - to - the - junkman season.

"You slipped as many flat rocks as you could in between the layers of paper to makke them weigh more," she laughed. "And if a rock slipped out, the junkman got made and chased you out of his yard."

Another golden event was thanksgiving-singing season. The children dressed in old clothes and sang beneath tenement windows. The grownups were supposed to toss down coins in appreciation.

"Every once in a while some old meanie would throw down heated pennies," she said, "and when we ran to pick them up they'd burn our fingers."

Miss Hayward looked pensive.

"These are games my kids will never know," she said. "They play school games, they swim and dive. Maybe that is better. But sometimes I wonder if they have the same fun I did, growing up in Brooklyn."

Southern Science, Industry Directory Of Facts Given

ATLANTA, March 15 (AP)—The Southern Association of Science and Industry today released its new industrial directory of facts and figures on the south.

Listed in what is probably the most comprehensive survey of southern industry ever compiled are the names of more than 3,000 large firms.

It contains the names of executives, numbers of employes, principle products and an index to sources of supplies and materials.

The directory noted, in addition, that for each working day during 1951, the south added to its industrial potential one, new multi-million plant.

It also observed that "the south now imports from other areas more than $2 billion worth of industrial equipment and supplies."

In addition, the directory said:

"The chemical industry is growing faster than any other in the south. Last year more than half the nation's chemical plant expansion was in the south.

"There are now operating in the south more than 60 large pulp and paper mills having a daily capacity of nearly 25,000 tons. Nine new mills, involving an investment of $200 million are under construction.

"The south has taken the lead in textile manufacturing . . . The region produced $2.1 billion worth of textiles last year and paid textile workers $1.2 billion in wages.

"The south outproduces the nation in cotton, citrus, peaches, peanuts, sugar cane, sweet potatoes, rice, whisky and tobacco.

"The south produces $4.5 billion worth of minerals annually. Southern states lead in the production of bauxite, diamonds, phosphate rock, kaolin, fuller's earth, marble, feldspar, mica, zinc and lead ore, ball clay, pyrites, bromine, graphite, helium, magnesium, natural gas, petroleum, antimony and sulphur.

"Steel and other metal producing facilities are being greatly expanded. New plants will enable the south to produce more aluminum than any other area."

The survey embraced 14 states bounded by Kentucky and Maryland to the north and including all the gulf states.

The association was founded at Mobile, Ala., in March, 1941, to promote "the study and development of the resources of the south."

Southeastern Fishermen tell

How To Catch More Fish . . .

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Fishermen everywhere are yanking record catches out of our lakes and streams by treating their baits and lures with a great new fish attractor called Doodle Oil.

Here is what B. C. Grier, 1210 Excelsoir St., Winston - Salem, N. C., says: "On my first bottle of Doodle Oil I had good luck. Caught 35 Crappie, 23 Catfish, 18 Carp, 28 Bream, 3 Bass and 13 Perch . . . 122 fish in all. Please send more Doodle Oil."

Louis Wohlleber, 1419 E. 3rd St., Maysville, Kentucky writes: "Gave Doodle Oil a try-out last Saturday. Watched ten men fish all morning without a bite. Put Doodle Oil on my hook and within two minutes I had caught a seven pound Channel Cat. Then I quit using Doodle Oil for one hour and didn't have a bite. Then I went back to using it and caught fish from 2 to 7 lbs. Enclosed is order for eight more bottles. My friends want to use Doodle Oil, too."

T. C. "Bubber" Craft, Aliceville, Alabama, has this to say: "I had never caught a mess of fish out of this certain lake in all my twenty years of fishing. After purchasing one bottle of your Doodle Oil and sprinkling a few drops on earthworms, I caught 187 Blue Gill, Shell Crackers, Channel Cat and Bass in the last three mornings of fishing. I'll never go on another fishing trip without Doodle Oil."

J. C. Beech and J. L. Denton report from Kissimee River, Florida: "We caught the biggest string of bass (weight 8 to 11 pounds) using Doodle Oil we ever caught. We can't praise Doodle Oil too highly. It's a real fish attractor."

Yogi Berra, a real sportsman and the American League's most valuable player tells us, "Baseball isn't the only sport where I've had success in making a good catch. Now I find myself getting a better catch everytime I'm out fishing with Doodle Oil. With Doodle Oil it's easy to catch the limit and, believe me, Doodle Oil Bait Perfume is the best fish attractor I've ever seen!"

DOODLE OIL PASSES TEST

Isaac Lively, 353 West Louisiana Street, Knoxville, Tenn., went trotline-fishing with a party of four on the French Broad River about a mile below Douglas Dam and caught 53 big blue catfish by using Doodle Oil. "While we were fishing," Isaac Lively said, "we saw a big catfish and a carp in a clear pool where a creek ran into the river. We threw a hook with a worm on it at the cat and he wouldn't touch it. We brought the hook out and put some Doodle Oil on it. The cat, while we were watching, took it right off. This proved to all of us that Doodle Oil really does the work."

You've just read what these fishermen say about Doodle Oil. We've had other stories, just as enthusiastic, about results with Doodle Oil on pike, perch, bass, trout, crappie, catfish, sea trout, sea bass, snook and others.

SMELL LEADS FISH TO FOOD

Fish depend heavily on their sense of smell to find their food. Doodle Oil gives your bait or artificial lure an aromatic scent that appeals to all kinds of fish.

Try Doodle Oil on your next fishing trip. If your fishing tackle dealer doesn't have Doodle Oil yet, order direct by sending $1.00 for each bottle wanted to Davis Mfg. Co., Dept. LA-4, 113 W. Jackson Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

Questions Concerning La. Voting System Considered

BATON ROUGE, La., March 14 (AP)— Questions concerning Louisiana's voting system were considered here today by a citizens committee attempting to draw up proposals for the May session of the Legislature.

The committee was formed two weeks ago from representatives of 35 civic and religious groups who attended a meeting here at the invitation of the Louisiana League of Women Voters.

Suggestions from the group for revising state registration and voting laws were read and sorted out by the committee with a view toward selecting the best for further study.

L. A. L'Hoste, representing the CIO Political Action Committee, said he knew of a case where "a woman with a masters degree had her registration card turned down because she failed to cross out the word 'county.'"

L'Hoste described the present form as "complicated and discouraging for most of the applicants" and said too often the difficult language provided a "convenient method of keeping the opposition from voting."

Use of the word "householder," the requirement that age be stated in years, months and days, and the term "party affiliation" were criticized by committee members as tending to make the form "needlessly puzzling."

Committee Chairman Loe Bloch, president of the Louisiana Registrars Association and Ascension Parish registrar, said "we must eliminate the thought that there's a catch in the form."

"The day for the long, drawn-out form is past...it has outlived the purpose for which it was intended," said Prof. J. W. Sanders of Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

He said the form was an outgrowth of the Reconstruction era, and, though frequently revised over the years, "still is written in language once intended to keep Negroes off the rolls."

Some committee members expressed concern over making the form "too easy" and opening up the rolls to "all sorts of frauds and deceptions."

Assistant District Attorney John R. Perez of Orleans Parish said, "When we say simplification, we mean the language. None of the pertinent information will be removed."

Sanders said this law "has been on the books since 1898 and it's just not practical...The registrar just doesn't have time to read the Constitution to every voter."

Bloch commented that there "are many deputies who can't interpret the Constitution...particularly the Eighteenth Amendment."

Asked if the law might not provide a stopgap against Communists registering, Perez replied, "Don't worry about them, they can read it better than you or I."

Regarding registering and helping illiterates to vote, Perez said, "The present system of allowing two commissioners to go into the booth with the voter provides the safest insurance that paid voters are fulfilling their part of the bargain."

He said in Orleans Parish voters had registered as illiterates and then voted under provision of the act "referring to the 0-ind."

The committee decided that in their proposed bill illiterates would be required to have two witnesses testify under oath to their disability.

"In this way, we can prosecute offenders as perjurers," said L'Hoste.

Other legislative suggestions approved by the committee included:

1. Cutting down the state residence requirement from two to one year as a prerequisite for registration.

2. Including illiterates under the same law that now applies to the blind. An illiterate may have a member of his family assist him in voting.

3. Have the League of Women Voters continue its work on a permanent registration bill and submit it to the committee for suggestions and approval, thus avoiding duplication of efforts.

4. Have the Post Office Department conduct an annual canvas of the registrants' addresses as is now done in Detroit.

5. Keep registration offices in Orleans Parish open for the same number of hours as in other Parishes, except for longer hours in a 30-day period before an election.

6. Use different colored registration cards for disabled, illiterate and blind voters.

Millionaire Paid Dollar A Year As Railroad Man

By MERRILL SWEDLUND

A model railroad in the basement had to make do through the years Duffey was making millions in the meat packing business and losing some of his money on his professional basketball team in Anderson.

But when he was through with these activities, he spied the weedy tracks of the Central Indiana Railroad, meandering west through rich cornfields to Lebanon in the lush farm country north of Indianapolis.

Since the line started in 1871, it had shrunk from 127 miles to 44 and managed to lose money every year. It had been 30 years or more since the C. I. had run excursion trains to Turkey Run State Park—or even any passenger trains at all. The old freight house in Anderson was about to fall down.

The 48-year-old millionaire began pestering the New York Central and the Pennsylvania, the big lines that had taken over the C. I. in 1933. Last summer they gave in and made him president. It was quite all right with Duffey that his salary was set at $1 a year.

"I just want to have fun," Duffey said.

"I don't need a job, but I need something to do to keep me out of trouble."

As soon as he took over, Duffey put on a denim jacket and climbed into the Diesel locomotive with a big No. 1 on its sides. The C. I. doesn't have any other locomotives, but there's always a chance there might be others sometime.

"Where can I ride and be out of the way?" he asked. Then, in a moment: "I'll handle the whistle."

He's had a lot of practice since.

"Fine hand with the whistle," said Vic Graham, an engineer who has been with the C. I. for 40 years.

But Ike Duffey is more than a whistle-tooting deadhead on the C. I. He gets out and works with the section crews, straightening rails and killing weeds. He even helps load hogs, and flags the crossings.

While he mans the whistle, Duffey has had an eye out for the small industries springing up along the C. I.—in towns with names like Bloomer, Lapel and Eagletown. He has his big automobile follow the train in case he needs to dash off on some errand at a speed the C. I. can't manage. Still in his denim jacket, he drops off to talk to shipping customers.

The result is a round trip between Anderson and Lebanon once a day instead of every two days. Business has picked up 79 per cent and it's still growing.

"He'll keep fooling around until he gets that thing in the black," said one bystander.

"I'm the luckiest man on earth," said Duffey "because I'm doing just what I really want to do."

MUCH BELOVED TEACHER GOES

Sister Raphael Of St. Matthews Retires From Duties

Sister Raphael, after having spent twenty-five years in charge of the sacristy of the parish church and laboring faithfully and well in the classrooms of the parochial school has returned to Shreveport after suffering a heart attack and spending some time in Saint Francis Sanitarium here.

The students, most of whom have been taught by Sister regret the loss. She is definitely missed by her many friends both old and young, and the sacristy seems strangely empty without her.

Lil Mat staff expressed sincere hope that the rest will bring back her strength and she may return once more to work in this corner of the Lord's vineyard.

Football players, Matthuettes, and basketball players attended an elaborate banquet served in their honor on February 25, 1952. Among the guest speakers were Father "Bill," Master of ceremonies, Monsignor Marsh, Mr. Slater, college principal, Coach Jim Malone, Doctors Bendel and Rizzo, Mr. Devereux, Mr. Lockhardt, Mr. Burgoyne, and Mr. Lewis.

The high point of the banquet came when the trophies were awarded as follows: Best Lineman: Warren Eberts; Best Backfieldman: Ralph Norman; Most Valuable Player: "Red" Stratton; Sportsmanship trophy: David Villaneuva; Most Vaulable Girl Basketball trophy: Maria Maggio; and Most Valuable Boy Basketball player; Vincent Danna.

Freshies and their friends did most to swell the audience the night of the declamation contest. A prize of one dollar was offered to the class who had the largest percentage representation. As each person walked into the hall, he was asked to sign one of the class lists. The juniors and freshies had the same number of friends present, but the freshmen class has one less number and so rated highest per cent.

Sister Patricia, American History teacher in an attempt to make her history class more interesting has invested in "World News of the Week." Each week a large work map arrives with the latest events briefly summarized on the lower half of the chart and numbered to correspond to those placed on the map, indicating the locality of the event. Visualizing the place, one gets a more complete idea of the interrelation of human affairs. Friday has been named as the current events day.

We had a visitor Tuesday, February 26. Many saw him, many did not. Those that saw him were happy. He wasn't a president, he wasn't a graduate aluminus, he wasn't our former coach. He was our former fellow student, Brian Clarkson.

He didn't discover gold. He didn't capture a bank robber. He didn't swim the Mississippi. All he wanted was a home and a chance to get an education and most of all, to share the privilege of American citizenship.

Now he has all three, or will have all three. He is staying with the R. G. Cruse family of Sicily Island, Louisiana, who are planning to enter Brian in the Sicily Island High School. Good Luck Brian!

St. Matthew's gridders began spring practice with a thorough workout Tuesday, March 4—which took them by surprise and resulted in much stiffness. Calisthenics and the famous running of laps composed the major portion of the first week's training.

"Three weeks of practice, and a game with the Holly Ridge Eagles, in the afternoon of March 26 at Holly Ridge has been planned for the gaining period," said Coach Broussard.

SHREVEPORT, March 15—Special)—Plays entered in the Centenary College annual writers conference creative writing contests will be judged this year by Christopher Sergel, editor of the Dramatic Publishing Co., Mrs. Jack L. Beckett, conference registrar has announced.

In addition to rating the books for conference prizes, Sergel wrote that "it certainly would be wonderful if we could find a publishable play among them. We're always searching hard for new writers with talent, and will give the most careful consideration to these scripts."

Deadline for plays and other conference creative writing contests is April 7, Mrs. Beckett said. Entries must be accompanied by the $7.50 registration fee, which covers attendance at the annual conference for writers and artists at Centenary College May 29, 30, and 31.

Further information and copies of the rules and regulations governing the contests may be obtained from Mrs. Beckett, 4420 Fairfield avenue, Shreveport, La., or Alvin Foote, professor of journalism at Centenary College, Shreveport.

The U. S. Marine band has given New Year's Day concerts in the White House since 1801.

Looking Ahead

SEAMAN SPIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard, which is responsible for port security, acknowledges it can't do much about the possibility that saboteurs, spies and spy couriers could be landed in this country disguised as seamen.

The AFL Seafarers Union newspaper, The Log, said last week that laws put a strict check on the comings and goings of American seamen and on foreign ships and plane passengers—but that there is no provision for checking on foreign seamen.

A Coast Guard spokesman said "not much can be done about it under present law."

LOOKING AHEAD

WASHINGTON — With the "stretch-out" in the arms program from three to four years, there's some talk of giving certain industries their metal allocations on a yearly instead of a three - months basis.

This would be a boom to these industries, saving them vast amounts of paper work in computing, filing and justifying quotas of steel, copper and aluminum.

It would be particularly helpful, officials believe, to such industries as autos and farm equipment.

The stretch-out, with government spending at a fairly even rate each year, makes the idea more feasible than it was when the allocation system was set up.

FULBRIGHT—RFC

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Fulbright (D.-Ark.), having headed an investigation which resulted in a shake - up in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation RFC, now is leading a fight to strip RFC of any part in a special defense loan program-for its own good.

The program, under the defense production act, gives Economic Mobilizer Charles F. Wilson's agencies power to authorize special RFC loans to essential industries. RFC's authority to refuse the loans is debatable.

Fulbright says he fears that in two or three years the public will have forgotten how little voice RFC had in them and that "the RFC will get all the blame" for any bad ones.

FAST ACTION

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't figure that the Internal Revenue Bureau will take a long time to cash your income tax check, in case your bank balance is running low.

The bureau used to take a month or so sometimes. Now procedure is to open all mail as soon as possible, remove the checks and cash them even before the returns are checked, sometimes within three or four days.

OPERATION WHATZIT

WASHINGTON (AP)— Security on the upcoming atomic tests at Eniwetok is so tight that the Atomic Energy Commission won't even tell you the code name for the operation.

SLOGAN SEASON

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's not official, but some Southern Congressmen have made up a slogan for Sen. Richard Russell in his race for the Democratic Presidential nomination:

"Hustle with Russell:"

'BIT OF HOME'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration (VA) expects President Truman to take part in a ceremony here May 21, to honor 142,000 volunteer civilian workers who, in the words of Administrator Carl Gray Jr., add "a little bit of home" for patients in VA hospitals by writing letters for them, reading to them, etc.

Suds To Flow For Irish In Savannah

'Tis the day when this old town of crinoline and magnolias shucks its coastal drawl and blathers like an Irishman about the wearing of the green.

For 139 years it has been so, ever since thousands of Irishmen accompanied by a brogue and little else came here during the great potato famines.

The celebration of St. Paddy's day is to Savannah what Mardi Gras is to Mobile and New Orleans.

Sure, and begorra, 'tis the days the Irish adopt such outlanders as the O'Feinburgs, the O'Levy's and God save the empire the O'Stuarts and the O'Edwards.

Some years back an honored, but unsung bartender in a fine Irish mood needled his lager with a green dye. The custom has continued.

This year there'll be a fine parade—18 bands no less—and all the fine splendor of the military, not to mention the school children.

At night comes the Hibernian banquet when the course runs from the garlic to the Gaelic and every-man's tale is the gospel according to blarney.

Questions Concerning La. Voting System Considered

BATON ROUGE, La., March 14 (AP)— Questions concerning Louisiana's voting system were considered here today by a citizens committee attempting to draw up proposals for the May session of the Legislature.

The committee was formed two weeks ago from representatives of 35 civic and religious groups who attended a meeting here at the invitation of the Louisiana League of Women Voters.

Suggestions from the group for revising state registration and voting laws were read and sorted out by the committee with a view toward selecting the best for further study.

L. A. L'Hoste, representing the CIO Political Action Committee, said he knew of a case where "a woman with a masters degree had her registration card turned down because she failed to cross out the word 'county.' "

L'Hoste described the present form as "complicated and discouraging for most of the applicants" and said too often the difficult language provided a "convenient method of keeping the opposition from voting."

Use of the word "householder," the requirement that age be stated in years, months and days, and the term "party affiliation" were criticized by committee members as tending to make the form "needlessly puzzling."

Committee Chairman Loe Bloch, president of the Louisiana Registrars Association and Ascension Parish registrar, said "we must eliminate the thought that there's a catch in the form."

"The day for the long, drawn-out form is past...it has outlived the purpose for which it was intended," said Prof. J. W. Sanders of Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

He said the form was an outgrowth of the Reconstruction era, and, though frequently revised over the years, "still is written in language once intended to keep Negroes off the rolls."

Some committee members expressed concern over making the form "too easy" and opening up the rolls to "all sorts of frauds and deceptions."

Assistant District Attorney John R. Perez of Orleans Parish said, "When we say simplification, we mean the language. None of the pertinent information will be removed."

Sanders said this law "has been on the books since 1898 and It's just not practical...The registrar just doesn't have time to read the Constitution to every voter."

Bloch commented that there "are many deputies who can't interpret the Constitution...particularly the Eighteenth Amendment."

Asked if the law might not provide a stopgap against Communists registering, Perez replied, "Don't worry about them, they can read it better than you or I."

Regarding registering and helping illiterates to vote, Perez said, "The present system of allowing two commissioners to go into the booth with the voter provides the safest insurance that paid voters are fulfilling their part of the bargain."

He said in Orleans Parish voters had registered as illiterates and then voted under provision of the act "referring to the 0-ind."

The committee decided that in their proposed bill illiterates would be required to have two witnesses testify under oath to their disability.

"In this way, we can prosecute offenders as perjurers," said L'Hoste.

Other legislative suggestions approved by the committee included:

1. Cutting down the state residence requirement from two to one year as a prerequisite for registration.

2. Including illiterates under the same law that now applies to the blind. An illiterate may have a member of his family assist him in voting.

3. Have the League of Women Voters continue its work on a permanent registration bill and submit it to the committee for suggestions and approval, thus avoiding duplication of efforts.

4. Have the Post Office Department conduct an annual canvas of the registrants' addresses as is now done in Detroit.

5. Keep registration offices in Orleans Parish open for the same number of hours as in other Parishes, except for longer hours in a 30-day period before an election.

6. Use different colored registration cards for disabled, illiterate and blind voters.

By MERRILL SWEDLUND

A model railroad in the basement had to make do through the years Duffey was making millions in the meat packing business and losing some of his money on his professional basketball team in Anderson.

But when he was through with these activities, he spied the weedy tracks of the Central Indiana Railroad, meandering west through rich cornfields to Lebanon in the lush farm country north of Indianapolis.

Since the line started in 1871, it had shrunk from 127 miles to 44 and managed to lose money every year. It had been 30 years or more since the C. I. had run excursion trains to Turkey Run State Park—or even any passenger trains at all. The old freight house in Anderson was about to fall down.

The 45-year-old millionaire began pestering the New York Central and the Pennsylvania, the big lines that had taken over the C. I. in 1931. Last summer they gave in and made him president. It was quite all right with Duffey that his salary was set at $1 a year.

"I just want to have fun," Duffey said.

"I don't need a job, but I need something to do to keep me out of trouble."

As soon as he took over, Duffey put on a denim jacket and climbed into the Diesel locomotive with a big No. 1 on its sides. The C. I. doesn't have any other locomotives, but there's always a chance there might be others sometime.

"Where can I ride and be out of the way?" he asked. Then, in a moment: "I'll handle the whistle."

He's had a lot of practice since.

"Fine hand with the whistle," said Vic Graham, an engineer who has been with the C. I. for 40 years.

But Ike Duffey is more than a whistle-tootling deadhead on the C. I. He gets out and works with the section crews, straightening rails and killing weeds. He even helps load hogs, and flags the crossings.

While he mans the whistle, Duffey has had an eye out for the small industries springing up along the C. I.—in towns with names like Bloomer, Lapel and Eagletown. He has his big automobile follow the train in case he needs to dash off on some errand at a speed the C. I. can't manage. Still in his denim jacket, he drops off to talk to shipping customers.

The result is a round trip between Anderson and Lebanon once a day instead of every two days. Business has picked up 79 per cent and it's still growing.

"He'll keep fooling around until he gets that thing in the black," said one bystander.

"I'm the luckiest man on earth," said Duffey "because I'm doing just what I really want to do."

MUCH BELOVED TEACHER GOES

Sister Raphael, after having spent twenty-five years in charge of the sacristy of the parish church and laboring faithfully and well in the classrooms of the parochial school has returned to Shreveport after suffering a heart attack and spending some time in Saint Francis Sanitarium here.

The students, most of whom have been taught by Sister regret the loss. She is definitely missed by her many friends both old and young, and the sacristy seems strangely empty without her.

Lil Mat staff expressed sincere hope that the rest will bring back her strength and she may return once more to work in this corner of the Lord's vineyard.

Football players, Matthuettes, and basketball players attended an elaborate banquet served in their honor on February 25, 1952. Among the guest speakers were Father "Bill," Master of ceremonies, Monsignor Marsh, Mr. Slater, college principal, Coach Jim Malone, Doctors Bendel and Rizzo, Mr. Devereux, Mr. Lockhardt, Mr. Burgoyne, and Mr. Lewis.

The high point of the banquet came when the trophies were awarded as follows: Best Lineman; Warren Eberts; Best Backfieldman: Ralph Norman; Most Valuable Player: "Red" Stratton; Sportsmanship trophy; David Villaneuva; Most Vaulable Girl Basketball trophy: Maria Maggio; and Most Valuable Boy Basketball player; Vincent Danna.

Freshies and their friends did most to swell the audience the night of the declamation contest. A prize of one dollar was offered to the class who had the largest percentage representation. As each person walked into the hall, he was asked to sign one of the class lists. The juniors and freshies had the same number of friends present, but the freshmen class has one less number and so rated highest per cent.

Sister Patricia, American History teacher in an attempt to make her history class more interesting has invested in "World News of the Week." Each week a large work map arrives with the latest events briefly summarized on the lower half of the chart and numbered to correspond to those placed on the map, indicating the locality of the event. Visualizing the place, one gets a more complete idea of the interrelation of human affairs. Friday has been named as the current events day.

We had a visitor Tuesday, February 26. Many saw him, many did not. Those that saw him were happy. He wasn't a president, he wasn't a graduate aluminus, he wasn't our former coach. He was our former fellow student, Brian Clarkson.

He didn't discover gold. He didn't capture a bank robber. He didn't swim the Mississippi. All he wanted was a home and a chance to get an education, and most of all, to share the privilege of American citizenship.

Now he has all three, or will have all three. He is staying with the R. G. Cruse family of Sicily Island, Louisiana, who are planning to enter Brian in the Sicily Island High School. Good Luck Brian!

St. Matthew's gridders began spring practice with a thorough workout Tuesday, March 4—which took them by surprise and resulted in much stiffness. Calisthenics and the famous running of laps composed the major portion of the first week's training.

"Three weeks of practice, and a game with the Holly Ridge Eagles, in the afternoon of March 26 at Holly Ridge has been planned for the gaining period," said Coach Broussard.

The U. S. Marine band has given New Year's Day concerts in the White House since 1801.

SEAMAN SPIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard, which is responsible for port security, acknowledges it can't do much about the possibility that saboteurs, spies and spy couriers could be landed in this country disguised as seamen.

The AFL Seafarers Union newspaper, The Log, said last week that laws put a strict check on the comings and goings of American seamen and on foreign ships and plane passengers—but that there is no provision for checking on foreign seamen.

A Coast Guard spokesman said "not much can be done about it under present law."

LOOKING AHEAD

WASHINGTON — With the "stretch-out" in the arms program from three to four years, there's some talk of giving certain industries their metal allocations on a yearly instead of a three - months basis.

This would be a boom to these industries, saving them vast amounts of paper work in computing, filing and justifying quotas of steel, copper and aluminum.

It would be particularly helpful, officials believe, to such industries as autos and farm equipment.

The stretch-out, with government spending at a fairly even rate each year, makes the idea more feasible than it was when the allocation system was set up.

FULBRIGHT—RFC

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Fulbright (D.-Ark.), having headed an investigation which resulted in a shake - up in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation RFC, now is leading a fight to strip RFC of any part in a special defense loan program-for its own good.

The program, under the defense production act, gives Economic Mobilizer Charles F. Wilson's agencies power to authorize special RFC loans to essential industries. RFC's authority to refuse the loans is debatable.

Fulbright says he fears that in two or three years the public will have forgotten how little voice RFC had in them and that "the RFC will get all the blame" for any bad ones.

Answer To Question No. 1

1. One study indicated "Yes" in families where the fathers were in "extrovert occupations" — armed forces, executives, politicians, lawyers, farmers, abstract scientists, etc. Among 5400 children there were 120 boys to every 100 girls. But, among 1800 children of fathers in "introvert occupations" — actors social workers, child-educators, artists, etc. — there were only 85 boys to every 100 girls. Children with fathers in religious or research work were about 50-50. I don't know anything to do about it.

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Not much. Dr. Detlev Bronk says (abridged), "What makes science is curiosity." We largely suppress it in childhood. Only the wisest parents and teachers encourage free curiosity in a child at the expense of their own ease and peace. Even in big industrial laboratories, scientists are told to work out certain problems. But nobody told Newton to discover gravitation, or Pasteur to discover microbes. "Nobody," he says, "can direct an explorer over unexplored territory." Encourage your child's curiosity.

Answer To Question No. 3

3. To develop personality and influence people. Having coached many speakers, I agree with Lowell Thomas that "Training in public speaking quintuples a man's chances of success. If there is any better way for a man to boost himself, I have yet to hear about it." Phonograph records are now being used to help in voice training, gaining self - confidence and public speaking.

SIZE OF TRUMAN 'GIFTS' RAPPED

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP) — In an angry protest against the size of the Truman administration's $7,900,000,000 foreign aid program, Senator Connally (D—Tex) said today that the U. S. "can't go on forever appropriating large sums of money" to foreign nations.

"We are under no obligation" to do so, shouted the colorful Texan who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and supports most Truman foreign policy.

When W. Averell Harriman, the mutual security administrator, said he regards the amounts provided in the program as "on the low side," Connally broke in to ask sarcastically.

"Then why don't you add to it and give 'em four or five more billions?"

Harriman was before the Foreign Relations Committee to answer questions about the administration request for $7,900,000,000 in new funds for foreign aid in the fiscal year which begins July 1. He and other key officials testified in behalf of the program yesterday, but questioning did not start until today.

Harriman described the program of aiding U. S. allies in Western Europe and elsewhere with arms and economic assistance as holding out the best hope of averting a new global conflict.

"We can prevent World War III if we go forward vigorously" with present policies, he said.

Harriman also rejected the theory that it would be better to concentrate on a buildup of sea and air defenses of the Western Hemisphere.

"I don't believe this country can survive if the sources of vital raw materials are in the hands of unfriendly people who are determined to destroy us," he said.

"We could not fight a war on the fortress America theory. We would find ourselves eventually in the position of the Soviet satellites and have to send missions to Moscow to ask for materials."

Harriman said Russia is spending money everywhere and giving vast sums of military equipment to her satellites, and he characterized this as a threat to the free world.

"We are facing a world-wide struggle and it is very much in our interest to help our allies build up their military strength," Harriman said.

Connally complained specifically about a 300 million dollar allotment to Great Britain out of the current year's program. He said Prime Minister Churchill, on his January visit here, said he wasn't asking for financial assistance.

"Did you run after him and give it to him?" he asked.

Harriman replied that the grant was "a wise decision."

President Truman has made several appeals for the full amount he asked, cautioning that an election year economy drive might cripple the program and thus aid Communism. But Congress generally has shown an inclination to cut the program by a billion dollars or more.

Harriman said 2½ billion dollars of the total program would go for "defense support" activities — spending to build up the military production capacity of U. S. allies. Of that amount, he said $1,800,000,000 would go to Europe, including 600 millions to Britain and 400 million to France.

Connally called this "economic aid, no matter what you call it," and indicated he favored direct military aid.

"This is not the same thing we were doing under the Marshall Plan," Harriman replied. "The Marshall Plan was designed to help Europe rebuild its civilian economy from the disastrous consequences of the war.

"Defense support is also a form of economic assistance, but for an entirely different purpose. It is to make it possible for our friends in Europe to expand their defense efforts for our common security."

Harriman will return for more questioning after the committee decides on Monday what to do about a motion by Sen. McMahon (D—Conn) to invite Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to come to Washington to testify on the program.

Eisenhower, a leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has said he has no plans to return anytime soon to the U. S. He heads North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces in Europe.

Since any questioning by senators might extend beyond the foreign aid program, the question of inviting him back is politically touchy.

Expert Shows Way To Win Tenth Trick

By Oswald Jacoby

Written for NEA Service

When today's hand was played in the recent Life Master Pair Championship, South was usually the declarer at a contract of two or three spades. South could easily win six spades and three diamonds, but these nine tricks were usually the limit of the hand.

At one table, however, my friend and associate, Alfred Sheinwold, found a way to bring in a tenth trick.

The defenders opened hearts and continued the suit, and Sheinwold ruffed the third round. It was obvious to him that East had the ace of clubs and that no straightforward play would develop a club trick. He therefore tried for some sort of squeeze by running his five remaining trumps, discarding low clubs from the dummy.

West had to find two discards on the five rounds of trumps. He couldn't afford to part with a diamond, so he had to release the deuce and the ten of clubs.

East had to find three discards on the trumps. He could afford one club and one heart, and he could really afford to discard a diamond. East was afraid, however, that a diamond discard would make the play easier for South if he happened to have something like J-9-X in the suit.

This gave Sheinwold his chance to make the precious extra trick. After running all of the trumps, he simply led a low club, whereupon the queen, king, and ace of clubs fell together on the same trick. This set up his jack of clubs as a tenth trick.

If East had saved a heart, this maneuver would have failed. After South had taken all of the trumps, East would be able to get in with the ace of clubs in time to cash his last heart.

Q—With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 Diamond	1 Heart	?

You, South, hold: Spades Q-7-4, Hearts K-J-3, Diamonds 8-5-2, Clubs K-Q-6-2. What do you do?

A—Bid one no trump. The response of one no - trump shows a weak hand when there is no bid by the opponent. Over an opponent's bid, however, the response of one no - trump shows a good hand — almost as good as the ordinary response of two no trump.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades Q-7-4, Hearts K-J-8-3, Diamonds 5-2, Clubs K-Q-6-2. What do you do?

RED CROSS IS GIVEN LAUDATION

H. V. Brady Tells Of Work Accomplished In Sixty-Seven Years

By H. V. BRADY
(Fund Chairman)

For 67 years, the American Red Cross has meant sympathy, compassion, and help in the time of need to the people of the United States and of the world. During this time, it has become a vital part of American life. A powerful symbol in this country of man's humanity to man, of his compulsion to aid the suffering and distressed.

The Red Cross is not a thing apart, but an essential section of America. It is truly of, by, and for the American people as our government itself. General Eisenhower, in his appeal to the American people to support the American Red Cross, stated, "This is one Democratic organization remaining today in which we all may work for the suffering of humanity."

The broad activities of the Red Cross for the disaster victims on the behalf of the members of the armed forces and the veterans, with the hospitalized, teaching safety and health, through the Junior Red Cross — are depending on the volunteer efforts of the hundreds of men and women who make up the membership in our parish. It's ability to help instantly and effectively the family across the street or supply blood to the soldier in Korea is founded in the net work of the Red Cross chapters which reaches every community. The Red Cross exists only to serve and do, if you were there. The American Red Cross is your agent of meeting human needs wherever it exists. Each individual American must bear his share of this responsibility, and if each of us accept our responsibility our chapter will not have difficulty in reaching our $40,000 quota.

Mr. Brady stated that $20,000 of the goal had been reported. He urged that individuals and employees strive for 100 per cent in their firms. Mr. Brady further stated that the success of the remainder of the campaign would depend on small business donations and individual memberships.

Answer To Question No. 1

1. One study indicated "Yes" in families where the fathers were in "extrovert occupations" — armed forces, executives, politicians, lawyers, farmers, abstract scientists, etc. Among 5400 children there were 120 boys to every 100 girls. But, among 1800 children of fathers in "introvert occupations" — actors social workers, child-educators, artists, etc. — there were only 85 boys to every 100 girls. Children with fathers in religious or research work were about 50-50. I don't know anything to do about it.

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Not much. Dr. Detlev Bronk says (abridged), "What makes science is curiosity." We largely suppress it in childhood. Only the wisest parents and teachers encourage free curiosity in a child at the expense of their own ease and peace. Even in big industrial laboratories, scientists are told to work out certain problems. But nobody told Newton to discover gravitation, or Pasteur to discover microbes. "Nobody," he says, "can direct an explorer over unexplored territory." Encourage your child's curiosity.

Answer To Question No. 3

3. To develop personality and influence people. Having coached many speakers, I agree with Lowell Thomas that "Training in public speaking quintuples a man's chances of success. If there is any better way for a man to boost himself, I have yet to hear about it." Phonograph records are now being used to help in voice training, gaining self - confidence and public speaking.

SIZE OF TRUMAN 'GIFTS' RAPPED

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP) — In an angry protest against the size of the Truman administration's $7,900,000,000 foreign aid program, Senator Connally (D—Tex) said today that the U. S. "can't go on forever appropriating large sums of money" to foreign nations.

"We are under no obligation" to do so, shouted the colorful Texan who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and supports most Truman foreign policy.

When W. Averell Harriman, the mutual security administrator, said he regards the amounts provided in the program as "on the low side," Connally broke in to ask sarcastically.

"Then why don't you add to it and give 'em four or five more billions?"

Harriman was before the Foreign Relations Committee to answer questions about the administration request for $7,900,000,000 in new funds for foreign aid in the fiscal year which begins July 1. He and other key officials testified in behalf of the program yesterday, but questioning did not start until today.

Harriman described the program of aiding U. S. allies in Western Europe and elsewhere with arms and economic assistance as holding out the best hope of averting a new global conflict.

"We can prevent World War III if we go forward vigorously" with present policies, he said.

Harriman also rejected the theory that it would be better to concentrate on a buildup of sea and air defenses of the Western Hemisphere.

"I don't believe this country can survive if the sources of vital raw materials are in the hands of unfriendly people who are determined to destroy us," he said.

"We could not fight a war on the fortress America theory. We would find ourselves eventually in the position of the Soviet satellites and have to send missions to Moscow to ask for materials."

Harriman said Russia is spending money everywhere and giving vast sums of military equipment to her satellites, and he characterized this as a threat to the free world.

"We are facing a world-wide struggle and it is very much in our interest to help our allies build up their military strength," Harriman said.

Connally complained specifically about a 300 million dollar allotment to Great Britain out of the current year's program. He said Prime Minister Churchill, on his January visit here, said he wasn't asking for financial assistance.

"Did you run after him and give it to him?" he asked.

Harriman replied that the grant was "a wise decision."

President Truman has made several appeals for the full amount he asked, cautioning that an election year economy drive might cripple the program and thus aid Communism. But Congress generally has shown an inclination to cut the program by a billion dollars or more.

Harriman said 2½ billion dollars of the total program would go for "defense support" activities — spending to build up the military production capacity of U. S. allies. Of that amount, he said $1,800,000,000 would go to Europe, including 600 millions to Britain and 400 million to France.

Connally called this "economic aid, no matter what you call it," and indicated he favored direct military aid.

"This is not the same thing we were doing under the Marshall Plan." Harriman replied "The Marshall Plan was designed to help Europe rebuild its civilian economy from the disastrous consequences of the war.

"Defense support is also a form of economic assistance, but for an entirely different purpose. It is to make it possible for our friends in Europe to expand their defense efforts for our common security."

Harriman will return for more questioning after the committee decides on Monday what to do about a motion by Sen. McMahon (D—Conn) to invite Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to come to Washington to testify on the program.

Eisenhower, a leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has said he has no plans to return anytime soon to the U. S. He heads North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces in Europe.

Since any questioning by senators might extend beyond the foreign aid program, the question of inviting him back is politically touchy.

"It tells how a forester may help solve a landowner's tree - growing problems, how the landowner will benefit financially, and how the services of a forester may be obtained easily."

Mr. Malsberger pointed out that there are more than 1,500,000 small woodland owners in the south. "When these owners apply modern practices," he added, "their timberlands usually begin bringing larger financial returns and repeated harvests are assured for the future."

"The number of foresters is soaring every year," he continued. "Usually an industry or public agency forester is available without charge and it's simply good business for more owners to take advantage of this opportunity."

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, March 15 — If the statement that it's impossible for a feminine screen star to live a normal life in Hollywood has been made once, it's been made a million times. You've read it in countless fan magazine stories and Film ville columns; you've seen it used repeatedly as the theme for "backstage" movies and radio serials. And, next time you encounter it, I invite you to give a thought to the Hollywood career of a girl named Jeanne Crain.

Jeanne, who's Mrs. Paul Brinkman in private life, is now — thanks to the arrival of a daughter who will be christened Janine — the mother of four children. And I do mean the mother, not just the woman who bore them. No matter how strenuous the demands of her acting jobs have been, she's always found time to be with her spring - offs and assume the major responsibility for their care.

This Mrs. Paul Brinkman is, I think, quite an amazing little person. Despite her status as one of Hollywood's highest - paid, hardest - worked, and most - popular stars, and despite her motherhood, she looks more like a highschool kid than do most of the youngsters still in school. She has all of the normal enthusiasms of a young married woman, and I've noticed that, unlike most stellar wives with whom I've talked, she always uses the word "we" rather than the word "I" in talking about the affairs of the Brinkman family. Never once, in the seven years that she's been married, have I heard of marital friction in her household.

She's A Hollywood Social Success When: She can safely snub anyone earning less than $1000 a week - and avoid being snubbed by those who earn more ... Indigent scions of Europe's titled families, here for a "visit," give her triple-A rating as a potential source of support ... She can risk the loss of face by stopping her fight to lose weight . . . The society editors of the local papers never have to ask the drama editors how to spell her name ... She never hesitates to mention the poverty that preceeded her present affluence ... Instead of using the broad A's acquired in her studio diction classes, she feels free to relax and talk like a native daughter.

Remember, a few years ago, when Hollywood studio bosses were importing efficiency experts by the train - load in a belated effort to trim their production costs. Now, it seems, they're consulting psychologists. Instead of giving in to purse - pride, and doubling, in their publicity, the prices paid for stories, they're making it a practice to cut the price in half in announcing story purchases. For instance, MGM recently broadcast the news that it had paid $35,000 for screen rights to a story entitled "Jefferson Selleck." That varies sharply from the publisher's announcement that the purchase price was $82,500. By minimizing the amounts paid for yarns, the headmen undoubtedly reason that they can whittle down the demands of other writers.

You hear a lot about the forgetfulness of movie fans, but after talking with Fay Wray the other afternoon, I'm not so sure that the charge should be accepted at face value. Miss Wray is currently essaying a comeback after ten years of complete retirement, and for nearly ten years before that she had been semi - inactive. Yet when 20th Century - Fox announced that she had accepted a role in "Condor's Nest," she received more than 400 letters from former fans who wanted to welcome her back to the screen.

Judging from the results of an experiment carried out by RKO, the female of the species is not only deadlier than the male but, also more unforgiving. When "Clash by Night," a picture in which Barbara Stanwyck plays an adulteress who tires of her infidelities and returns to her husband, was previewed, studio bosses handed out "audience reaction" cards which asked whether or not she should have been forgiven. The men who filled out the questionaire were virtually unanimous in opining that since she had repented of her misdeeds, she should have been forgiven by her husband. Seventy percent of the ladies who replied contended, on the contrary, that she was a no-good hussy and that her spouse was a sap for taking her back.

Arthur Hunnicutt, born and raised in the Ozarks, tells me that his "pappy" had a champion bloodhound. "The last time pappy loaned him to the sheriff," said he, "that dog not only caught the criminal but traced a pint of blood he'd donated to the Red Cross all the way to an army camp in Virginia!"

IN MOVIELAND

Next Thursday night will bring a whole new set of memories, but meanwhile let's think about other years and other Oscars. I have witnessed eight other presentations and each one brings back sharp recollections. For instance:

1944—This was the year of the big "Going My Way' sweep. Bing Crosby was handed his Oscar by the emcee, Bob Hope, who then kidded while Bing was trying to make a serious speech. The other winner was a girl named Ingrid Bergman. Leo McCarey picked up a couple of Oscars for directing and writing the original story for "Going My Way." The next day Crosby, Bergman and McCarey went back to work on their picture together, "Bells of St. Mary's."

1945—"The Lost Weekend" and Ray Milland won this year. I can recall Milland fortifying himself with a drink or two before the event. Joan Crawford was the star of a great comeback story, winning for "Mildred Pierce" after Hollywood had said she was washed up. She got her Oscar at home in bed, where she was ailing. I've often wondered whether it was a cold, or nerves, or Joan's natural showmanship.

1946—This event was noted for "The Best Years of Our Lives." And Harold Russell's holding an Oscar in each artificial hand. Also for Olivia DeHavilland's snub of her sister, Joan Fontaine.

1947—The year of the big upset. Rosalind Russell came prepared to win for "Mourning Becomes Electra," but her friend, Loretta Young won the bog prize for "The Farmer's Daughter."

1948—You couldn't forget John and Walter Huston, arm-in-arm with their three Oscars for "The Treasure of Sierra Madre." It was a great father-and-son act that was soon to be broken up by Walter's death.

1949—Brod Crawford and "All the King's Men" swept the boards like an election for Willie Stark, the character he portrayed. Olivia DeHavilland was on tap again, this time for "The Heiress." Her confident and self - praising speech had the audience open - mouthed in amazement.

1950—This was the year of the absentee winners. Both Judy Holliday and Jose Ferrer got the news in New York. Only the supporting Award winners, Josephine Hull and George Sanders, were present to receive their Oscars.

Auction Pinochle Demands Skill

By OSWALD JACOBY and ALFRED SHIENWOLD
Written for NEA Service

The most important bidding problem in auction pinochle is: "How much help is it reasonable to expect from the three cards in the widow?" The answer will surprise most experienced players.

You may safely count on the window to increase your playing strength by at least 20 points. But don't count at all on increasing your melding strength by any important amount.

Most players respect this principle in the case of the one-card possibility. For example, suppose you hold the following: Spades A 10 9, Hearts A 10 K J 9 9, Diamonds A 9, Clubs A 10 J 9. What should you bid?

As it stands, the hand will meld 120 points (100 for aces, and 20 for the nine of hearts). With a normal widow, the hand will produce about 150 or 160 points in cards. Therefore the hand is normally worth less than 300 points.

If the queen of hearts is in the widow, however, the hand will meld 270 points. The total value of the hand will be about 400 points.

Should you bid 400 on the chance of finding the queen of hearts in the widow? Not unless you're playing for matchsticks. The odds are almost 5 to 1 against you. Only a crazy millionaire will give his opponents an even money bet when the odds are 5 to 1 against him. And he may stay crazy, but he won't stay a millionaire very long.

Let's look at a slightly different example: Spades A 10 9, Hearts A 10 K J 9, Diamonds A 9, Clubs A 10 Q J 9. What should you bid?

As it stands, the hand is worth less than 300. It will be worth 350 to 400 points if the widow contains either the queen of hearts or the king of clubs. Does it pay to bid on the chance of finding one of these two cards?

This is still a bad bet although not so bad as the first case. The odds are still 2 to 1 against you. Yet most pinochle players would bid 350 on the hand.

Our next example will surprise even most conservative players. You hold: Spades A 10 9, Hearts A 10 A J, Diamonds A 10 K Q, Clubs A 10 K J. What should you bid?

Once again the hand is worth very little as it stands. But this time there are three possibilities of filling a flush. The hand is worth about 350 points if the widow contains the king of hearts the jack of Diamonds, or the queen of clubs. Does it pay to bid 350 on the chance of finding one of these three cards?

No. The odds are 6 to 5 against getting any of these three cards. Those aren't outrageously bad odds, but they're bad enough. It's a losing proposition to give your opponents an even money bet when the odds are actually 6 to 5 against you.

Once in a blue moon you pick up a hand in which there are more than three favorable ways to get melding strength. Then the odds are in your favor. These hands are so rare, however, that you can afford to ignore them in adopting a bidding policy.

Depend on finding playing strength in the widow, but don't count on finding any additional melding strength.

William Hillman's Book On Truman Is Reviewed

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)— President Truman believes there is no indispensable man in a democracy. He says he has worked to organize the government so it could function efficiently no matter who is president.

"I do not believe the fate of the nation should depend upon the life or health or welfare of any one man," he says in an interview in the widely-heralded new book, "Mr. President," out today.

The book is by William Hillman, former Hearst newsman, now a commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System. Truman collaborated in it even beyond the author's fondest dreams. He turned over reams of his diary entries, notes and memoirs, and gave Hillman exclusive interviews. Thus the volume gives an unprecedented view of a president's private papers while he is still in office.

Corruption in government — "There would be no corruption if it were not for the corrupters"; Pendergastism—the Missouri boss was a clear thinker whose word was better than "the contracts of most businessmen;" and "flaws" in the U. S. Constitution it makes no provision to fill a vacancy in the vice-presidency.

The book puts the president on record six months after the close of World War II as vigorously opposed to "babying" the Soviets.

It has him favoring limits on the service of Senators and Representatives to cure those "terrible legislative diseases" — senility and seniority.

It quotes his "terrible" fears that a third World War was imminent on two occasions in the last four years.

The president speaks of wishing to lecture on problems of government from "precinct worker to president" when he leaves the White House.

Though the book is packed with much that is new, it still represents a selection of materials. Hence it is noteworthy for its ommissions as well as for what it says.

It makes no mention of many "incidents" seized upon by critics over the years, such as the Truman-Wallace fumble, the firing of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson in another cabinet row, the brush that led to the angry resignation of Harold Ickes as secretary of the interior, the "hot" letter, and apology, to the Marines, etc.

The president puts a non-political tab on it, telling the author in a letter Oct. 1, 1951:

"I expect there will be those who will construe this as a political act. You and I know better."

The book is published by Farrar, Straus and Young, Inc., and retails for $5. The Democratic National Committee recently denied a report that it planned to invest $200,000 of campaign funds for 75,000 copies.

The volume divulges for the first time such material for the historian, biographer and stump speaker as:

1—a scorching memo from the president on Jan. 5, 1946 to Secretary Byrnes upbraiding him for not keeping him informed of what Byrnes was doing at the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Moscow in late 1945. He told Byrnes he had infinite confidence in him and in his ability but "there should be complete understanding between us on procedure."

He told Byrnes he was "tired of babying the Soviets" and "do not think we should play compromise any longer." The Russians understand only one language — 'How many divisions have you," said the memo which carried this introductory note:

"I wrote this memo and read it to my secretary of state. So urgent were its contents I neither had it typed nor mailed, but preferred to read it in order to give emphasis to the points I wanted to make. H. S. T."

Hillman said the president told him on the occasion of giving him this memo that Russia could have peace any time she really wants it.

2.—The president's belief that a third World War was imminent during the Berlin crisis in 1948 and when the United Nations forces were taking a licking from the Chinese Reds in North Korea in late 1950.

A diary entry Sept. 13, 1948 said: "Have a terrific day. Forrestal, Bradley, Vandenbert the general, not the senator Symington brief me on bases, bombs, Moscow, Leningrad, etc. I have a terrible feeling afterward that we are very close to war. I hope not. Discuss situation with Marshall at lunch. Berlin is a mess."

A memo dated Dec. 9, 1950, American warships were poised to withdraw retreating American forces in Northeast Korea, said: "We had conference after conference on the jittery situation facing the country. Attlee, Formosa, Communist China, Chiang Kai-Shek, Japan, Germany, France, India, etc. I have worked for peace for five years and six months and it looks like World War III is near. I hope not—but we must meet whatever comes—and we will."

3—A reference to name left out but news libraries show Truman apparently was referring to Henry Wallace, then secretary of commerce as a "pacifist 100 per cent" and a "dreamer" who "wants us to disband our armed forces, give Russia our atomic secrets and trust a bunch of adventurers in the Kremlin Politbureau." Wallace has denied the atomic secrets accusation.

This diary entry was dated Sept. 19, 1946, the day before Wallace was fired for speaking out of turn on foreign policy. It began "Mr. blank spent two and one — half hours talking to me yesterday. . ." News clippings show that Wallace was the only caller for that length of time at the White House on Sept. 18. That was the day the president drew from Wallace a promise not to make any more public statements on foreign policy, at least while the Paris Peace Conference was going on.

But apparently this did not satisfy Byrnes, then carrying on peace conference talks in Paris, and Truman fired Wallace two days later for a New York speech of Sept. 12 protesting against a "get tough policy" with Russia.

At a news conference the day of the speech Truman told reporters he approved it in advance and said it was in line with administration policy. On Sept. 14, after resounding diplomatic repercussions from Byrnes, the late Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) and others, the president withdrew his approval of the speech. He said he intended merely to express approval of Wallace's right to deliver it.

On Sept. 19 the president held a trans-Atlantic talk with Byrnes. When he fired Wallace the next day he pledged his full support to the man who now, as a southern political leader, wants to see Truman defeated if he makes another presidential try.

4—A critical letter - tamer and briefer than rumored in the past—to Bernard Baruch, who had turned down a presidential request that he serve on the Democratic Finance Committee when the party was badly in need of campaign expense money in 1948. The president told the elder statesman on Aug. 19 of that year:

"A great many honors have passed your way, both to you and your family, and it seems to me when the going is rough it is a one-way street. I am sorry that this is so."

5—A description of John L. Lewis as a "demagogue in action" as a man who had "overreached himself" in the 1946 coal strikes, and who for the first time found he had "no pipeline to the White House."

RECORD TROUT

COEUR D'ISENE, Idaho, March 14 (AP)— A fisherman caught a 34-pound Dolly Varden Trout (char) in Lake Pend Oreille yesterday and claimed a world's record for the species. The fish was landed by Elmer Dreisbach of Bayview. This tops a 32-pound Dolly landed in 1949 by Nelson Higgins, Pullman, Wash.

The term "leatherneck" for U. S. marines dates from the time that its men wore leather collars for protection when storming enemy ships.

Early in 1945, George Franklin and J. E. Cochran made the original donation of $30,000 for the church building. Four years later the church was organized in Holly Ridge and plans for the building were begun.

Serving as chairman of the building committee was George B. Franklin, Sr., with W. L. Tatum and Lester Johnston on the committee.

Bible Comment

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Saint Paul was in his ideas, ideals, and vision amazingly far in advance of his time.

On many social matters, such as work, mutual aid, citizenship, and social responsibility what Paul wrote is applicable to the world of today. Especially is this true of what Paul wrote concerning liberty, of which he had in every sense a glorified conception.

The one respect in which Paul was very much a man of his own time was in this attitude toward women and their position in the Christian Church.

Paul's enunciation of what has been called "the far - reaching principle" that in Christ there is neither male nor female (Galatians 3.28) might logically have led him to a conception of equality.

But there was no suggestion of equality in his injunction about women covering their heads (I Corinthians II) and especially in that about their keeping silence in church.

Yet these opinions of Paul, restricting women, have had a deep influence down to our own times in establishing limitations and prejudices regarding women. The process of women's emancipation has gone far in some communities.

I doubt whether there is anyone today who would claim that there is anything un - Christian about a woman's bobbing her hair, if she wants to. But in some parts of the Christian Church other of Paul's restrictions are still in effect.

Women entering and worshipping in church must have the head covered, and when the brilliant woman-preacher, Maude Royden, wished to exercise her pulpit gifts she could not do so in her own Church of England, but had to find a place in the Congregational City Temple in London.

Ordained women as pastors and preachers are now numerous and recently a woman, Miss Kenyon, presided over the national Congregational - Christian Churches as moderator.

Paul himself reveals how greatly women assisted him in his mission, and in strengthening the church wherever it was begun.

A note of deep appreciation in his references to Lois and Eunice, the mother and grandmother of Timothy. One perceives how important a place was occupied by Lydia, "The seller of purple" in the church at Philippi, where Paul was her guest.

Jesus, Himself, however, in such episodes as that with the woman of Samaria (John 4) showed a freedom from customs and convention in contrast with the limitations and prejudices of many of His professed followers.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, March 15 — If the statement that it's impossible for a feminine screen star to live a normal life in Hollywood has been made once, it's been made a million times. You've read it in countless fan magazine stories and Film ville columns; you've seen it used repeatedly as the theme for "backstage" movies and radio serials. And, next time you encounter it, I invite you to give a thought to the Hollywood career of a girl named Jeanne Crain.

Jeanne, who's Mrs. Paul Brinkman in private life, is now — thanks to the arrival of a daughter who will be christened Janine — the mother of four children. And I do mean the mother, not just the woman who bore them. No matter how strenuous the demands of her acting jobs have been, she's always found time to be with her spring - offs and assume the major responsibility for their care.

This Mrs. Paul Brinkman is, I think, quite an amazing little person. Despite her status as one of Hollywood's highest - paid, hardest - worked, and most - popular stars, and despite her motherhood, she looks more like a highschool kid than do most of the youngsters still in school. She has all of the normal enthusiasms of a young married woman, and I've noticed that, unlike most stellar wives with whom I've talked, she always uses the word "we" rather than the word "I" in talking about the affairs of the Brinkman family. Never once, in the seven years that she's been married, have I heard of marital friction in her household.

I don't think I've ever met a more "normal" young lady.

She's A Hollywood Social Success When: She can safely snub anyone earning less than $1000 a week - and avoid being snubbed by those who earn more ... Indigent scions of Europe's titled families, here for a "visit," give her triple-A rating as a potential source of support ... She can risk the loss of face by stopping her fight to lose weight . . . The society editors of the local papers never have to ask the drama editors how to spell her name ... She never hesitates to mention the poverty that preceeded her present affluence ... Instead of using the broad A's acquired in her studio diction classes, she feels free to relax and talk like a native daughter.

Remember, a few years ago, when Hollywood studio bosses were importing efficiency experts by the train - load in a belated effort to trim their production costs. Now, it seems, they're consulting psychologists. Instead of giving in to purse - pride, and doubling, in their publicity, the prices paid for stories, they're making it a practice to cut the price in half in announcing story purchases. For instance, MGM recently broadcast the news that it had paid $35,000 for screen rights to a story entitled "Jefferson Selleck." That varies sharply from the publisher's announcement that the purchase price was $82,500. By minimizing the amounts paid for yarns, the headmen undoubtedly reason that they can whittle down the demands of other writers.

You hear a lot about the forgetfulness of movie fans, but after talking with Fay Wray the other afternoon, I'm not so sure that the charge should be accepted at face value. Miss Wray is currently essaying a comeback after ten years of complete retirement, and for nearly ten years before that she had been semi - inactive. Yet when 20th Century - Fox announced that she had accepted a role in "Condor's Nest," she received more than 400 letters from former fans who wanted to welcome her back to the screen.

Judging from the results of an experiment carried out by RKO, the female of the species is not only deadlier than the male but, also more unforgiving. When "Clash by Night," a picture in which Barbara Stanwyck plays an adulteress who tires of her infidelities and returns to her husband, was previewed, studio bosses handed out "audience reaction" cards which asked whether or not she should have been forgiven. The men who filled out the questionaire were virtually unanimous in opining that since she had repented of her misdeeds, she should have been forgiven by her husband. Seventy percent of the ladies who replied contended, on the contrary, that she was a no-good hussy and that her spouse was a sap for taking her back.

Arthur Hunnicutt, born and raised in the Ozarks, tells me that his "pappy" had a champion bloodhound. "The last time pappy loaned him to the sheriff," said he, "that dog not only caught the criminal but traced a pint of blood he'd donated to the Red Cross all the way to an army camp in Virginia!"

IN MOVIELAND

Next Thursday night will bring a whole new set of memories, but meanwhile let's think about other years and other Oscars. I have witnessed eight other presentations and each one brings back sharp recollections. For instance:

1943—Jennifer Jones was the star of this one, winning for her first big role, in "Song of Bernadette." No one was happier for her than her husband, the late Robert Walker. Oh yes, the actress' boss, David Selznick, now her husband, was also there.

1944—This was the year of the big "Going My Way' sweep. Bing Crosby was handed his Oscar by the emcee, Bob Hope, who then kidded while Bing was trying to make a serious speech. The other winner was a girl named Ingrid Bergman. Leo McCarey picked up a couple of Oscars for directing and writing the original story for "Going My Way." The next day Crosby, Bergman and McCarey went back to work on their picture together, "Bells of St. Mary's."

1945—"The Lost Weekend" and Ray Milland won this year. I can recall Milland fortifying himself with a drink or two before the event. Joan Crawford was the star of a great comeback story, winning for "Mildred Pierce" after Hollywood had said she was washed up. She got her Oscar at home in bed, where she was ailing. I've often wondered whether it was a cold, or nerves, or Joan's natural showmanship.

1946—This event was noted for "The Best Years of Our Lives." And Harold Russell's holding an Oscar in each artificial hand. Also for Olivia DeHavilland's snub of her sister, Joan Fontaine.

1947—The year of the big upset. Rosalind Russell came prepared to win for "Mourning Becomes Electra," but her friend, Loretta Young won the bog prize for "The Farmer's Daughter."

1948—You couldn't forget John and Walter Huston, arm-in-arm with their three Oscars for "The Treasure of Sierra Madre." It was a great father-and-son act that was soon to be broken up by Walter's death.

1949—Brod Crawford and "All the King's Men" swept the boards like an election for Willie Stark, the character he portrayed. Olivia DeHavilland was on tap again, this time for "The Heiress." Her confident and self - praising speech had the audience open - mouthed in amazement.

1950—This was the year of the absentee winners. Both Judy Holliday and Jose Ferrer got the news in New York. Only the supporting Award winners, Josephine Hull and George Sanders, were present to receive their Oscars.

Auction Pinochle Demands Skill

By OSWALD JACOBY and ALFRED SHIENWOLD
Written for NEA Service

The most important bidding problem in auction pinochle is: "How much help is it reasonable to expect from the three cards in the widow?" The answer will surprise most experienced players.

You may safely count on the window to increase your playing strength by at least 20 points. But don't count at all on increasing your melding strength by any important amount.

Most players respect this principle in the case of the one-card possibility. For example, suppose you hold the following: Spades A 10 9, Hearts A 10 K J 9 9, Diamonds A 9, Clubs A 10 J 9. What should you bid?

As it stands, the hand will meld 120 points (100 for aces, and 20 for the nine of hearts). With a normal widow, the hand will produce about 150 or 160 points in cards. Therefore the hand is normally worth less than 300 points.

If the queen of hearts is in the widow, however, the hand will meld 270 points. The total value of the hand will be about 400 points.

Should you bid 400 on the chance of finding the queen of hearts in the widow? Not unless you're playing for matchsticks. The odds are almost 5 to 1 against you. Only a crazy millionaire will give his opponents an even money bet when the odds are 5 to 1 against him. And he may stay crazy, but he won't stay a millionaire very long.

Let's look at a slightly different example: Spades A 10 9, Hearts A 10 K J 9, Diamonds A 9, Clubs A 10 Q J 9. What should you bid?

As it stands, the hand is worth less than 300. It will be worth 350 to 400 points if the widow contains either the queen of hearts or the king of clubs. Does it pay to bid on the chance of finding one of these two cards?

This is still a bad bet although not so bad as the first case. The odds are still 2 to 1 against you. Yet most pinochle players would bid 350 on the hand.

Our next example will surprise even most conservative players. You hold: Spades A 10 9, Hearts A 10 A J, Diamonds A 10 K Q, Clubs A 10 K J. What should you bid?

Once again the hand is worth very little as it stands. But this time there are three possibilities of filling a flush. The hand is worth about 350 points if the widow contains the king of hearts the jack of Diamonds, or the queen of clubs. Does it pay to bid 350 on the chance of finding one of these three cards?

No. The odds are 6 to 5 against getting any of these three cards. Those aren't outrageously bad odds, but they're bad enough. It's a losing proposition to give your opponents an even money bet when the odds are actually 6 to 5 against you.

Once in a blue moon you pick up a hand in which there are more than three favorable ways to get melding strength. Then the odds are in your favor. These hands are so rare, however, that you can afford to ignore them in adopting a bidding policy.

Depend on finding playing strength in the widow, but don't count on finding any additional melding strength.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)— President Truman believes there is no indispensable man in a democracy. He says he has worked to organize the government so it could function efficiently no matter who is president.

"I do not believe the fate of the nation should depend upon the life or health or welfare of any one man," he says in an interview in the widely-heralded new book, "Mr. President," out today.

The book is by William Hillman, former Hearst newsman, now a commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System. Truman collaborated in it even beyond the author's fondest dreams. He turned over reams of his diary entries, notes and memoirs, and gave Hillman exclusive interviews. Thus the volume gives an unprecedented view of a president's private papers while he is still in office.

Corruption in government — "There would be no corruption if it were not for the corrupters"; Pendergastism—the Missouri boss was a clear thinker whose word was better than "the contracts of most businessmen;" and "flaws" in the U. S. Constitution it makes no provision to fill a vacancy in the vice-presidency.

The book puts the president on record six months after the close of World War II as vigorously opposed to "babying" the Soviets.

It has him favoring limits on the service of Senators and Representatives to cure those "terrible legislative diseases" — senility and seniority.

It quotes his "terrible" fears that a third World War was imminent on two occasions in the last four years.

The president speaks of wishing to lecture on problems of government from "precinct worker to president" when he leaves the White House.

Though the book is packed with much that is new, it still represents a selection of materials. Hence it is noteworthy for its ommissions as well as for what it says.

It makes no mention of many "incidents" seized upon by critics over the years, such as the Truman-Wallace fumble, the firing of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson in another cabinet row, the brush that led to the angry resignation of Harold Ickes as secretary of the interior, the "hot" letter, and apology, to the Marines, etc.

Some Truman associates who saw advance copies say it can be interpreted either as a swan song, or a fresh call to political arms.

Either way, it can be used as a campaign document if administration Democrats so choose.

The president puts a non-political tab on it, telling the author in a letter Oct. 1, 1951:

"I expect there will be those who will construe this as a political act. You and I know better."

The book is published by Farrar, Straus and Young, Inc., and retails for $5. The Democratic National Committee recently denied a report that it planned to invest $200,000 of campaign funds for 75,000 copies.

The volume divulges for the first time such material for the historian, biographer and stump speaker as:

1—a scorching memo from the president on Jan. 5, 1946 to Secretary Byrnes upbraiding him for not keeping him informed of what Byrnes was doing at the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Moscow in late 1945. He told Byrnes he had infinite confidence in him and in his ability but "there should be complete understanding between us on procedure."

He told Byrnes he was "tired of babying the Soviets" and "do not think we should play compromise any longer." The Russians understand only one language — 'How many divisions have you," said the memo which carried this introductory note:

"I wrote this memo and read it to my secretary of state. So urgent were its contents I neither had it typed nor mailed, but preferred to read it in order to give emphasis to the points I wanted to make. H. S. T."

Hillman said the president told him on the occasion of giving him this memo that Russia could have peace any time she really wants it.

2.—The president's belief that a third World War was imminent during the Berlin crisis in 1948 and when the United Nations forces were taking a licking from the Chinese Reds in North Korea in late 1950.

A diary entry Sept. 13, 1948 said: "Have a terrific day. Forrestal, Bradley, Vandenbert the general, nc, the senator Symington brief me on bases, bombs, Moscow, Leningrad, etc. I have a terrible feeling afterward that we are very close to war. I hope not. Discuss situation with Marshall at lunch. Berlin is a mess."

A memo dated Dec. 9, 1950, American warships were poised to withdraw retreating American forces in Northeast Korea, said: "We had conference after conference on the jittery situation facing the country. Attlee, Formosa, Communist China, Chiang Kai-Shek, Japan, Germany, France, India, etc. I have worked for peace for five years and six months and it looks like World War III is near. I hope not—but we must meet whatever comes—and we will."

3—A reference to name left out but news libraries show Truman apparently was referring to Henry Wallace, then secretary of commerce as a "pacifist 100 per cent" and a "dreamer" who "wants us to disband our armed forces, give Russia our atomic secrets and trust a bunch of adventurers in the Kremlin Politbureau." Wallace has denied the atomic secrets accusation.

This diary entry was dated Sept. 19, 1946, the day before Wallace was fired for speaking out of turn on foreign policy. It began "Mr. blank spent two and one — half hours talking to me yesterday. . ." News clippings show that Wallace was the only caller for that length of time at the White House on Sept. 18. That was the day the president drew from Wallace a promise not to make any more public statements on foreign policy, at least while the Paris Peace Conference was going on.

But apparently this did not satisfy Byrnes, then carrying on peace conference talks in Paris, and Truman fired Wallace two days later for a New York speech of Sept. 12 protesting against a "get tough policy" with Russia.

At a news conference the day of the speech Truman told reporters he approved it in advance and said it was in line with administration policy. On Sept. 14, after resounding diplomatic repercussions from Byrnes, the late Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) and others, the president withdrew his approval of the speech. He said he intended merely to express approval of Wallace's right to deliver it.

On Sept. 19 the president held a trans-Atlantic talk with Byrnes. When he fired Wallace the next day he pledged his full support to the man who now, as a southern political leader, wants to see Truman defeated if he makes another presidential try.

4—A critical letter - tamer and briefer than rumored in the past—to Bernard Baruch, who had turned down a presidential request that he serve on the Democratic Finance Committee when the party was badly in need of campaign expense money in 1948. The president told the elder statesman on Aug. 19 of that year:

"A great many honors have passed your way, both to you and your family, and it seems to me when the going is rough it is a one-way street. I am sorry that this is so."

5—A description of John L. Lewis as a "demagogue in action," as a man who had "overreached himself" in the 1946 coal strikes, and who for the first time found he had "no pipeline to the White House."

RECORD TROUT

COEUR D'ISENE, Idaho, March 14 (AP)— A fisherman caught a 34-pound Dolly Varden Trout (char) in Lake Pend Oreille yesterday and claimed a world's record for the species. The fish was landed by Elmer Dreisbach of Bayview. This tops a 32-pound Dolly landed in 1949 by Nelson Higgins, Pullman, Wash.

The term "leatherneck" for U. S. marines dates from the time that its men wore leather collars for protection when storming enemy ships.

Bible Comment

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Saint Paul was in his ideas, ideals, and vision amazingly far in advance of his time.

On many social matters, such as work, mutual aid, citizenship, and social responsibility what Paul wrote is applicable to the world of today. Especially is this true of what Paul wrote concerning liberty, of which he had in every sense a glorified conception.

The one respect in which Paul was very much a man of his own time was in this attitude toward women and their position in the Christian Church.

Paul's enunciation of what has been called "the far - reaching principle" that in Christ there is neither male nor female (Galatians 3:28) might logically have led him to a conception of equality.

But there was no suggestion of equality in his injunction about women covering their heads (I Corinthians II) and especially in that about their keeping silence in church.

Yet these opinions of Paul, restricting women, have had a deep influence down to our own times in establishing limitations and prejudices regarding women. The process of women's emancipation has gone far in some communities.

I doubt whether there is anyone today who would claim that there is anything un - Christian about a woman's bobbing her hair, if she wants to. But in some parts of the Christian Church other of Paul's restrictions are still in effect.

Women entering and worshipping in church must have the head covered, and when the brilliant woman-preacher, Maude Royden, wished to exercise her pulpit gifts she could not do so in her own Church of England, but had to find a place in the Congregational City Temple in London.

Ordained women as pastors and preachers are now numerous and recently a woman, Miss Kenyon, presided over the national Congregational - Christian Churches as moderator.

Paul himself reveals how greatly women assisted him in his mission, and in strengthening the church wherever it was begun.

A note of deep appreciation is in his references to Lois and Eunice, the mother and grandmother of Timothy. One perceives how important a place was occupied by Lydia, "The seller of purple" in the church at Philippi, where Paul was her guest.

Jesus, Himself, however, in such episodes as that with the woman of Samaria (John 4) showed a freedom from customs and convention in contrast with the limitations and prejudices of many of His professed followers.

Won't you invite these callers in and make them welcome at your house? They are good people — friendly neighbors — and they want you to find the joy of Christian fellowship that they share in the Presbyterian Church. In these days of turmoil and uncertainty, the certainty of Christ and His Teachings — the certainty of finding peace and comfort — the certainty of the Christian life — is bringing thousands of new friends to the Presbyterian Church. Answer your doorbell when it rings! You'll like it here.

40th Anniversary OF Girl Scouts OF THE UNITED STATES

On the fortieth anniversary of the Girl Scouts of the United States we pay tribute to the many adult volunteers who have made Scouting possible throughout these years. Locally, 179 adults are registered as troop leaders and assistants, troop committee members, council and council committee members, giving of their time and talents to make Scouting available to girls of the Twin Cities. In addition to those who help directly in administration, the Scouts are grateful to all who have contributed to developing their troop camp, all who have served as counselors at day camp and who have contributed to the Community Chest.

The Fourth Girl Scout Law, "A Girl Scout is a friend to all and a sister to every other Girl Scout" will be the theme of the annual birthday celebration to be held this afternoon at Ouachita Parish High School auditorium. Shown above are Diane Duffey of troop 41, Intermediate Scout, Penny Prophit, of troop 28, teen-age Scout, and Mary Jo Strausser of troop 34, Brownie Scout, with the bag in which each troop will place a smaller bag containing its contribution to Juliette Low World Friendship Fund.

National Emphasis for 1952-53

FOUR OIL, GAS WELLS COME IN

Three New Locations And One Test Plugged And Abandoned

Four oil and gas wells were brought in during the past week, according to a report from the local office of the department of conservation, minerals divisions. Also listed were one well plugged and abandoned and three new locations.

Union parish was the scene of most of the activity with two of the producers and one new location in that parish. Other parishes in which producers were located were Catahoula and LaSalle, with Concordia and LaSalle each possessing one new location.

The Crescent Producing Co., Inc. Tensas Delta No. 3, was brought in at 8,600 feet with a capacity of 45 bbls. It is located in section 11, township 9, Range 7 East.

In LaSalle parish, Trout creek field, the Justiss Mears Oil Co.-Whatley Heirs B-2, was completed on March 6 at a total depth of of 3,240 feet and gauged at 70bls. It is located in Sec. 25, Township 8, Range 2 East.

In the Monroe field of Union parish two producers were located. They are: Miss L. Feazel-Mrs. G. Anderson Co.-Frost No. 14, completed on March 10 at 2,196 in 13 MCF. Its location was given as Sec. 12, Township 20, Range 2 East. Interstate Natural Gas - Fee Gas Co. No. 319 was completed March 2 in 773 MCF at a depth of 2237 feet. Location for this well was Sec. 17, Township 19, Range 3 East

The single well plugged and bandoned was the Gilbert Montgomery Co.-Holt Dixon Unit 1 located in Sec. 6-16-9E of the South Delhi field of Franklin parish.

New locations listed were:

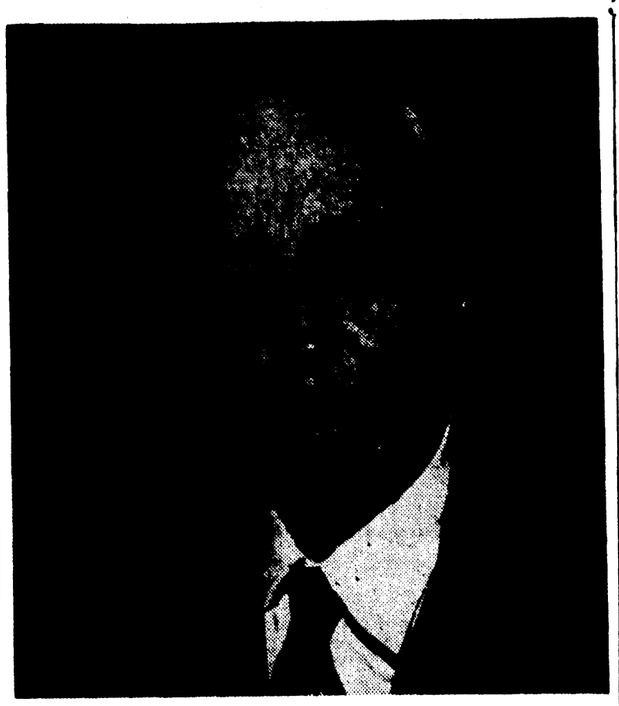
H. L. Hunt et al Fisher Lbr. Corp. E-14, 760' north, 660' west of the SE corner, Sec. 15-6-7E of the Lisenmore Landing field of Concordia parish.

LaSalle parish (Trout Creek field)——Justiss Mears Oil Co., Inc., et al-Nebo Oil Co. No. 1, 1,980' west, 660' north of the SE corner, Sec. 19-8-3E.

Union parish (Monroe field) Miss L. Feazel and Mrs. G. Anderson-Frost No. 16, 660' north, 640' east of SW corner, Sec. 3 6-21-2E.

In 1915 an earthquake caused a Nevada mountain to grow 30 feet, says the National Geographic Society.

PREDICTS OIL EXPANSION HERE



Granville A. Humason, who is visiting in Monroe this week, said he believed Monroe would be the center of large oil producing areas, which in time would surpass the present gas deposits. A resident of Houston, Texas, Humason was instrumental in the development of the Caddo fields in west Louisiana and Humble oil fields in Texas.

Pioneer Developer Says Rich Oil Deposits Here

Granville A. Humason Thinks Fields Hardly More Than Scratched

A visitor to Monroe who was instrumental in the development of the Louisiana and Texas oil and gas fields said that Monroe is located over oil deposits which, he believes, will be much more extensive when developed than the presently existing gas strata.

Granville A. Humason, who now resides in Houston, Tex., while visiting the McCarthy families here, said he had worked in and around oil and gas fields "nearly all of my 77 years, and I am more than confident that you are living on land under which even more oil than gas can be found." He said he had watched the early explorations in the oil fields in Caddo and Texas and later developed a drilling bit which made possible the opening up of vast fields. Humason was a resident of Shreveport during the development of the Caddo fields.

The Humason Rock Bit, considered by drillers as the most important single invention in the oil drilling business made possible the faster and deeper drilling of wells. This in turn opened up the vast stratas of oil throughout the south.

Developed in 1913 in Shreveport, the Humason bit of today is much like the original one and is being sold by the Reed Roller Bit company of Houston and the Hughes Tool Company. The bit was first tried in the drilling of the Stokely well No. 1 at Mooringsport in the Caddo field by Lee Kennebrew. The work which previously would have required 14 days took only one hour and 45 minutes with this bit.

In 1915 the bit was used by S. P. Farrish, later president of the Reed Roller Bit Company, in the drillings of the Humble oil fields of Texas. Following this use, the bit became known throughout the drilling world and has been accepted as the foremost implement of its kind since that time.

In spite of the favor which the bit found with drillers, 25 or 30 were manufactured before Shreveport backers decided not to finance the bit and Humason sold the invention with its patent rights to the late Howard Hughes, Sr. In 1917 a license with a 15 per cent royalty was sold to C. E. Reed, later to become the founder of the Reed Roller Bit Company. Royalties amounting to almost $2 million have been paid to the Hughes estate for the manufacture of this bit.

"The Reed Company, which should be a Shreveport concern," Humason said, "is now worth from $50 to $60 millions."

Now a curiosity with most people, the old time devining rods or "wiggle stick" were used extensively during the early explorations in the oil and gas fields.

Humason said the Savage brothers, who were highly regarded in the exploration work throughout Texas, depended heavily upon this method of discovery. They also brought in the first well in the Caddo fields.

The "wiggle stick" was made of a 3 foot length of steel about ⅝ of an inch in diameter. One end was ground to a point with the other turned as are umbrella handles. The stick was balanced on a person's hand. When particles of iron in the ground caused the stick to move or become unbalanced, the men would mark the spot as having oil. These iron particles were found wherever there were stratas of oil, the oilman said.

Humason now has two new inventions, one of which is on the present market and the other to be marketed within a year. His combination brading - head, casing-head, Christmas tree and blow-out preventer is being sold by the Humason Tool Company of Houston. Soon to be sold is the drill stem tester.

When asked about the growth of Monroe, Humason said he was amazed at the changes which have taken place, but "I'm sorry that all of the beautiful trees which used to line DeSiard are gone. I remember how they formed an arch over the entire street, but that was many years ago."

With a bit of nostalgia, the old oilman said "they ruined the beauty of the place when they took down those trees."

As for its future, Humason said Monroe has much to do and will in time become a "great oil center." "The only trouble around here is that they did not drill deep enough to reach the oil," he commented, pointing out that he knows of several Texas men who are looking to this area for future expansion.

Four oil and gas wells were brought in during the past week. according to a report from the local office of the department of conservation, minerals divisions. Also listed were one well plugged and abandoned and three new locations.

Union parish was the scene of most of the activity with two of the producers and one new location in that parish. Other parishes in which producers were located were Catahoula and LaSalle, with Concordia and LaSalle each possessing one new location.

The Crescent Producing Co., Inc. Tensas Delta No. 3, was brought in at 8,600 feet with a capacity of 45 bbls. It is located in section 11. township 9, Range 7 East.

In LaSalle parish, Trout creek field, the Justiss Mears Oil Co.-Whatley Heirs B-2, was completed on March 6 at a total depth of of 3,240 feet and gauged at 70bls. It is located in Sec. 25, Township 8, Range 2 East.

In the Monroe field of Union parish two producers were located. They are: Miss L. Feazel-Mrs. G. Anderson Co.-Frost No. 14, completed on March 10 at 2,196 in 13 MCF. Its location was given as Sec. 12, Township 20, Range 2 East. Interstate Natural Gas - Fee Gas Co. No. 319 was completed March 2 in 773 MCF at a depth of 2237 feet. 'REDICTS OIL EXPANSION HERE

Granville A. Humason, who is visiting in Monroe this week, said he believed Monroe would be the center of large oil producing areas, which in time would surpass the present gas deposits. A resident of Houston, Texas, Humason was instrumental in the development of the Caddo fields in west Louisiana and Humble oil fields in Texas.

Pioneer Developer Says Rich Oil Deposits Here

A visitor to Monroe who was instrumental in the development of the Louisiana and Texas oil and gas fields said that Monroe is located over oil deposits which, he believes, will be much more extensive when developed than the presently existing gas strata.

Granville A. Humason, who now resides in Houston, Tex., while visiting the McCarthy families here, said he had worked in and around oil and gas fields "nearly all of my 77 years, and I am more than confident that you are living on land under which even more oil than gas can be found." He said he had watched the early explorations in the oil fields in Caddo and Texas and later developed a drilling bit which made possible the opening up of vast fields. Humason was a resident of Shreveport during the development of the Caddo fields.

The Humason Rock Bit, considered by drillers as the most important single invention in the oil drilling business made possible the faster and deeper drilling of wells. This in turn opened up the vast stratas of oil throughout the south.

Developed in 1913 in Shreveport, the Humason bit of today is much like the original one and is being sold by the Reed Roller Bit company of Houston and the Hughes Tool Company. The bit was first tried in the drilling of the Stokely well No. 1 at Mooringsport in the Caddo field by Lee Kennebrew. The work which previously would have required 14 days took only one hour and 45 minutes with this bit.

In 1915 the bit was used by S. P. Farrish, later president of the Reed Roller Bit Company, in the drillings of the Humble oil fields of Texas. Following this use, the bit became known throughout the drilling world and has been accepted as the foremost implement of its kind since that time.

In spite of the favor which the bit found with drillers, 25 or 30 were manufactured before Shreveport backers decided not to finance the bit and Humason sold the invention with its patent rights to the late Howard Hughes, Sr. In 1917 a license with a 15 per cent royalty was sold to C. E. Reed, later to become the founder of the Reed Roller Bit Company. Royalties amounting to almost $2 million have been paid to the Hughes estate for the manufacture of this bit.

"The Reed Company, which should be a Shreveport concern," Humason said, "is now worth from $50 to $60 millions."

Now a curiosity with most people, the old time devining rods or "wiggle stick" were used extensively during the early explorations in the oil and gas fields.

Humason said the Savage brothers, who were highly regarded in the exploration work throughout Texas, depended heavily upon this method of discovery. They also brought in the first well in the Caddo fields.

The "wiggle stick" was made of a 3 foot length of steel about ⅝ of an inch in diameter. One end was ground to a point with the other turned as are umbrella handles. The stick was balanced on a person's hand. When particles of iron in the ground caused the stick to move or become unbalanced, the men would mark the spot as having oil. These iron particles were found wherever there were stratas of oil, the oilman said.

Humason now has two new inventions, one of which is on the present market and the other to be marketed within a year. His combination brading - head, casing-head, Christmas tree and blow-out preventer is being sold by the Humason Tool Company of Houston. Soon to be sold is the drill stem tester.

When asked about the growth of Monroe, Humason said he was amazed at the changes which have taken place, but "I'm sorry that all of the beautiful trees which used to line DeSiard are gone. I remember how they formed an arch over the entire street, but that was many years ago."

With a bit of nostalgia, the old oilman said "they ruined the beauty of the place when they took down those trees."

As for its future, Humason said Monroe has much to do and will in time become a "great oil center." "The only trouble around here is that they did not drill deep enough to reach the oil," he commented, pointing out that he knows of several Texas men who are looking to this area for future expansion.

A-AHH CHOOO!

Willard

JACK? YOU AND BOON LOOK BEAT!

THIEVES HIJACKED ANOTHER LOAD OF OUR PELTS AS WE RETURNED TO OUR PLANE FROM A TRAPPER STATION, SABLE!

...WE PASSED A PILE OF SNOW-COVERED BOULDERS AND SUDDENLY—TWO ROBBERS, CAMOUFLAGED IN WHITE, AMBUSHED US... THEY EVEN HAD WHITE MASKS!

DROP YOUR GUNS!

...WHILE ONE THIEF COVERED US, TH' OTHER WENT DIRECTLY TO TH' SECRET COMPARTMENT IN OUR PLANE AND TOOK ALL OUR FURS!

IT WOULD BE UNBELIEVABLE, BOON, BUT THERE IS SOMETHING I SHOULD TELL YOU...

THE OTHER DAY, I OVERHEARD "PAPA" AN' CHINCHILLA TALKING ABOUT THE SECRET COMPARTMENT IN YOUR PLANE!

..."PAPA" SAID THERE WAS MUCH MONEY IN THE FUR RACKET IF PEOPLE USED THEIR BRAINS...

...AND CHINCHILLA SAID—"BOONDOCKS SURE IS A TRUSTING SOUL TO CONFIDE IN US ABOUT HIS BUSINESS SECRETS!"

IT MAY MEAN NOTHING...BUT IT STRUCK ME AS ODD THAT A GIRL WOULD THINK IT STRANGE THAT HER FIANCE TRUSTED HER!

MM..M.. I BELIEVE CHINCHILLA IS HONEST... BUT I'LL KEEP ALERT! I'M DUE TO MEET HER NOW!

LATER

PARKA? (GULP)... IT'S A WHITE PARKA WITH A WHITE MASK!

A sweeter wash is a cleaner wash

Prove it yourself—in your own linen closet.

THERE'S A GOOD REASON why we can make this guarantee so confidently. A Surf wash smells sweeter because it is so clean. Surf not only gets out the dirt and grime you can see in clothes—it also reaches deep into the fabric and gets out the soap scum and odor that other washday products leave in.

You can easily prove this yourself with a simple test. Use Surf the next time you do the family wash. Then compare the sweet smell of cleanness in your Surf wash with anything in your linen closet that was washed with the product you've been using. You'll be delighted with the new sweet, clean difference.

Today, or weeks away, your Surf-washed clothes will smell as clean as they look and look as clean as they smell. That's your proof that they're clean clear through!

UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE: The makers of Surf—Lever Brothers Company—guarantee you the sweetest wash you've ever had—regardless of the product you are now using, with or without rinsing—or your money refunded.

We guarantee, if you switch to Surf, you'll have the sweetest wash on earth!

QUIZZING HIS CAPTIVES BY SIGN LANGUAGE AND SYMBOLS DRAWN IN THE ARCTIC SNOW, FLASH LEARNS THAT THE GIANTS CAME FROM RHEA, SATURN'S FIFTH MOON. FLASH KNOWS THAT RHEA IS BITTERLY COLD, AND HE QUICKLY SURMISES THAT ITS INHABITANTS ARE CREATING THIS NEW ICE AGE SO THEY CAN COLONIZE THE EARTH!

SETTING OUT ON A SWIFT SCOUTING TRIP, FLASH FINDS A HIDDEN JET-SLED. "WE'VE GOT TO LOCATE THEIR MAIN CAMP," HE TELLS DALE. "I'LL HIDE IN THE SLED, WHILE YOU GO BACK AND LET ONE SATURNIAN ESCAPE. HE'LL HEAD FOR HIS CAMP AND I'LL TELL YOU BY MINIRADIO HOW TO FOLLOW."

FOLLOWING FLASH'S ORDERS, DALE FREES ONE OF THE SATURNIANS. BUT WHEN SHE TELLS STARK WHAT SHE HAS DONE, THE EXPEDITION'S CHIEF IS FURIOUS. "YOU AND GORDON ARE A PAIR OF BLUNDERING MEDDLERS," HE SNAPS. "YOUR FRIEND GOT HIMSELF IN A JAM.. NOW LET HIM GET OUT OF IT! WE'RE BLASTING OFF AT ONCE TO MAKE TESTS AT THE MAGNETIC POLE!"

JUST AS FLASH EXPECTED, THE ESCAPED SATURNIAN HURRIES TO HIS JET-SLED AND TAKES OFF, UNAWARE THAT AN EARTHMAN IS STOWED AWAY ABOARD. THE GIANT HEADS HIS CRAFT STRAIGHT FOR THE SATURNIAN HEAD-QUARTERS IN THE ARCTIC.

AS THE SNOW-CAR SPEEDS OVER THE ICE PACKS, FLASH WHISPERS INSTRUCTIONS INTO THE MINIRADIO. HE HAS NO INKLING OF HIS PERIL, NOW THAT DALE AND STARK HAVE ROCKETED BEYOND THE RANGE OF HIS TINY TRANSMITTER!

PLUNGING INTO A VAST CAVERN AT THE BASE OF A GLACIER, THE JET-SLED REACHES THE HIDDEN POWER PLANT WHERE MEN FROM SATURN USE THEIR SECRET ELECTRONIC SCIENCE TO TURN EARTH INTO AN ICY WASTELAND IN WHICH ONLY THEY CAN SURVIVE!
